His Reason: Fisher to Hear Trial.

John E. Northup, first assistant state's attorney, withdrew yesterday from active prosecution of the sanitary district graft conspiracy cases after a bitter courtroom discussion with Chief Justice Harry M. Fisher of the Criminal court and after the chief justice had announced that he would hear the trial himself. The defense is expected to waive a jury.

Later in the day Mr. Northup issued a statement in which he said that a year ago, when he first conferred with defense attorneys in an effort to find a trial judge acceptable to both sides, the only judge whom the defense nominated was Judge Fisher.

Mr. Northrup at that time refused to try the case before Judge Fisher. He now indicates in his statement that he would not expect to get a fair trial before the chief justice.

Will Help Prepare Case.

The result of his controversy with the chief justice was that Mr. Northup presented his resignation to State's Attorney Swanson in open court.

Following a later conference with his superior, however, he agreed to help other prosecutors in preparing for the presentation in court of the evidence charging Timothy J. Crowe, president of the sanitary board during the "whoopee" regime, and eight former trustees and other officials with fraudulent acts. He will not, he reiterated, appear again in court so long as the case remains before Judge Fisher. The indictments against the sanitary board trustees and other officials also are squandering of public funds in the $1,000,000 bridle path, excessive payments of $730,000 on the ornamental lighting system, and diversion of public funds by pay roll padding and other means.

Questioned by Fisher.

Judge Fisher questioned Mr. Northup regarding the prosecutor's recent charges that an attempt had been made, through conferences with high public officials, to "fix" the sanitary case and assure the defendants an acquittal before they went to trial. Mr. Northup repeated his charges. The chief justice's questions brought from Mr. Northup the further statement that he had been told that a certain judge had given "what might be regarded as a promise" in the matter.

Further information Mr. Northup refused. The matter, he said, was up for the grand jury. Judge Fisher uttered a veiled threat to punish him for contempt of court, and declared that regardless of the conduct of the prosecutor, which he criticized severely, he would hear the cases.

Northup Issues Statement.

Mr. Northup's statement at the end of the day was as follows:

"The retention of the sanitary district cases on his own [Judge Fisher's] trial call and his setting of the case before himself for a hearing next Wednesday fulfills many a prophecy recently made to me. I professed otherwise, but proved to be the poorer prophet.

"About a year ago the counsel for the defendants called on me, following the suggestion of the then Chief Justice McGoorty that we confer on a judge to try the case. The only man they suggested to try the case was Judge Fisher, to whom I objected. They then observed: 'But suppose the chief justice assigns it to him. How can you help yourself?'

"I replied that I thought I could find a way to avoid this. The effort was made to assign the case to Judge Fisher, and all but succeeded, but I finally prevented it.

Will Remain in Office.

"This year Judge Fisher himself became chief justice of the Criminal court, and he has now assigned the case to himself. While I have refused to try the case before Judge Fisher, I will remain in the office and will, as requested by State's Attorney Swanson, assist to the utmost the men who will appear in court. After what took place last year with reference to the assignment of the case, and what has recently happened, I do not wish to assume the responsibility of presenting this particular case where it now stands."

State's Attorney Swanson announced that Harold M. Keele, one of his assistants, will succeed Mr. Northup as chief of the prosecution, and will be assisted by Assistant State's Attorneys John Holman, Grenville

1,000 CATTLE RUN WILD ON A SHIP; HUNDREDS DROWN

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

CRISTOBAL, Oct. 15.—The steamer Genevieve Lykes, with a list so perilous that canal tugs rushed to her assistance, and with dead and dying cattle strewn about the decks and hold, crept into port today after having barely escaped turning turtle when its cargo of cattle stampeded in heavy seas in the Caribbean. Only twenty of 1,000 head brought from Cuba will be in condition to deliver here.

Capt. D. Haralson, master of the ship, said that at about 2 o'clock this morning the ship struck bad weather off Porto Bello and the cattle began milling. Breaking through the fences of their pens, the beasts stampeded to starboard and caused a list that threatened to overturn the ship. Hundreds of steers were hurled into the sea, where sharks attacked them. Their bellowing of terror made a frightful bedlam.

TAXI DRIVER'S SKILL WINS HIM A RICH BRIDE

Beverly Hills, Cal., Oct. 15.—(AP)—The marriage of Miss Florence A. McAllister, 18 year old heiress to Oklahoma oil land riches, to her chauffeur, a former taxicab driver, was disclosed today.

The girl has been married for several weeks to Edward Challette, former chauffeur for Warner Baxter, movie actor, and later driver of a taxicab here. Friends indicated that his expert manipulation of a cab won the girl's admiration one night and she hired him as her private chauffeur.

The wedding became public after the bride's cash purchase of a $55,000 home and $37,000 furnishings here. Mrs. Challette is the daughter of the late Mrs. Florence McAllister, who died in 1930 leaving an estate of $3,000,000 to three children.

Edison Nears Coma; Pulse Grows Weak

BULLETIN.

New York, Oct. 16.—(Friday.)—Dr. H. S. Howe, who is attending Thomas A. Edison, said at 7 a. m., eastern standard time, he had received no word from the Edison home since leaving last night, and assumed there was no change in the inventor's condition.

West Orange, N. J., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—With his pulse showing signs of weakening, Thomas A. Edison lay today on the threshold of the coma which is regarded as the beginning of the end of the 84 year old inventor's long sickness from a complication of diseases.

The various bulletins issued at his home in Llewellyn park today by his physician, Dr. Hubert S. Howe, and his son, Charles Edison, revealed that there was such a steady ebbing of the once rugged vitality that Dr. Howe was holding himself in readiness for an emergency call at any time. Mr. Edison has taken no fluids for ten days and during the last six days has had only a few spoonfuls of stewed pears.

Several Bulletins Issued.

Today's first bulletin, issued at 8:45 a. m. by Charles Edison, said:

"Mr. Edison awoke at 7:45 a. m. today and went back to sleep again almost immediately."

The next official report of the inventor's condition was given out at 10:30 a. m. by Dr. Howe as follows:

"During the last twenty-four hours Mr. Edison has not roused. He shows no signs of discomfort, simply resting quietly. There is no evident emergency."

Sleep More Profound.

At 4 p. m., Charles Edison issued the regular afternoon bulletin, saying:

"Mr. Edison continues to fail and his sleep is gradually becoming more profound. There is no outward change."

All the members of the inventor's family, with the exception of his son William and a daughter, Mrs. Marion Oser, are in the Edison mansion. William Edison is in Connecticut and Mrs. Oser is in New York.

Japanese Freighter with 40 Aboard Sinking in Pacific

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 16 (Friday.)—(AP)—A wireless message from the American steamer President Jefferson, intercepted by the Mackay Radio station here today, said the Japanese freighter Yonan Maru, in distress, about 500 miles west of Dutch Habor, Aleutian islands, was sinking rapidly. The message did not explain how the vessel had been damaged. The President Jefferson, on which Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh are passengers, rushed to the aid of the Yonan Maru, which was 80 miles away.

The Yonan is a ship of 3,800 tons and is 423 feet in length. She carries a crew of about 40.

TWO THEATERS ARE TARGETS OF MYSTERY BOMBS

Two more theaters were bombed early this morning. They are the Byrd theater, 4734 West Madison street, one of the Essaness chain owned by the Greater Chicago Theater corporation, 910 South Michigan avenue, and the Lindy theater, 3427 Ogden avenue, controlled by Simansky & Miller, theatrical managers, also of 910 South Michigan avenue. In neither case did the damage exceed $200.

These were the fourteenth and fifteenth theater bombings since the war began between the Independent Theater Owners' association and the motion picture operators' union. However, so far as could be learned, this morning's bombings had no connection with the thirteen previous blasts. According to Sidney Spiegel, operating director of the corporation owning the Byrd, the bombing of that place doubtless was "an error." Neither the Byrd nor the Lindy is a member of the independents' association, and neither has been involved in the dispute. Meanwhile negotiations in the independents' dispute were at a standstill yesterday.

START CLOSING ARGUMENTS IN CAPONE'S TRIAL

Case Expected to Go to Jury Tomorrow.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Al Capone's income tax case will go to the jury in Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson's court about noon tomorrow, judging from the stage of the trial reached at adjournment last evening.

Opening arguments to the jury were begun by Assistant District Attorney Jacob I. Grossman at 3:30 o'clock after Judge Wilkerson had overruled all motions to delete the case, throw it out of court on legal technicalities, or direct a verdict of not guilty.

The defense will have four hours of argument today and the government one, leaving two hours for the government to close its case tomorrow morning. Judge Wilkerson will then instruct the jury. He told the attorneys that he would do this "adequately," which indicates some discussion of evidence by the court.

Weaves Evidence Into Chain.

Mr. Grossman, in his jury plea, wove all the tangled threads of evidence into a chain by which the jury was warranted, he said, in finding the defendant guilty. He pictured him on his Florida estate living the "life of an Indian potentate."

"Where did he get the money?" asked the prosecutor, and then proceeded to answer this question by telling of the evidence in which Capone admitted ownership of a gambling business in Cicero.

"You have the high privilege," he told the jurors, all but two of whom are from country towns, "of putting the stamp of disapproval on this whole Capone organization and the conduct of this defendant. Under the evidence you can do nothing but find him guilty."

Attorney Albert Fink, Capone counsel, told what he thought of the outcome in the course of arguments on legal points when he said:

"I have no illusions about what is going to happen in this or any of the so-called gangster cases until the Supreme court takes hold of it."

Court Drama Nears Last Act.

The closing scenes of this drama in which the United States government is pitted against the chief of Chicago gangland drew a capacity audience to the courtroom, but no one was allowed to stand and strict order was observed.

Capone sat all alone at the long defense table, listening to his lawyers argue shadowy points of law which seemed to have little to do with him. He yawned a few times, but on the whole was keenly interested. He got very little comfort, however, from any of the court's rulings, and saw one barrier after another rolled aside to clear the way for a jury decision.

There was some amusement in the courtroom when a trembling G. A. R. veteran, carrying a little bunch of posies, ignored the sacred court procedure and sought to make his way to the bench to pay his respects to the government that he fought for. He was brushed back by a bailiff, but later was given a seat inside the judge's enclosure, where he peacefully napped.

Fight for Mattingly Facts.

The defense closed its evidence with one more bookmaker witness and efforts to draw from government officials and prosecutors more facts regarding the damaging "confession letter," written by Capone's income tax attorney, Lawrence P. Mattingly. This letter admitted income of $266,000 for Capone. It may prove the sunken road at Waterloo for the defendant, as it is a vital part of the government case.

The defense brought out that Capone was in the Philadelphia penitentiary and was released on March 17, 1930. The Mattingly letter, in which the lawyer said he had been employed by Capone, is dated March 23 of the same year. Mr. Fink forced a stipulation from the government on these dates, after asking for a subpoena for the prison warden.

The defense sought to get Mattingly's grand jury testimony, but this was denied by the court, and arguments on legal motions began shortly before noon, lasting for about two hours. The jury was excused during this time.

Court Overrules Motions.

Motions to strike certain exhibits—particularly the records of the Cicero gambling house profits and the evidence that Capone had paid no income tax—and to strike out all indictment counts prior to 1928 under

Writ Spares Fifth Slayer at Death Hour

Four murderers were executed in the electric chair in the county jail early this morning. A fifth was snatched from death 35 minutes before he was to have been strapped in the chair because of the issuance of a writ granting him a trial as to his sanity.

All of the killers walked calmly to their doom. Jailers put them into the chair, one after another, with time clock precision, and carried them out lifeless, one after another, their crimes expiated. The executed slayers were:

Frank Jordan, 30 years old, a two gun robber, slayer of Policemen Anthony Ruthy and Patrick Durkin.

Charles Rocco, 24 years old, slayer of Courtney R. Merrill, south side banker.

John Popescu, 21 years old, Rocco's partner in the Merrill slaying.

Richard Sullivan, 35 years old, slayer of Christ Patras, restaurant manager.

Insanity Writ Saves Bell.

The man saved at the last minute is Frank Bell, 31 years old, known as "the squealer," and confederate of Sullivan in the killing of Patras.

Sullivan died believing that Bell had preceded him to the chair. This was Sullivan's idea of vengeance against Bell, born of a fierce hatred of his former partner in crime. William Meyering refused to tell Sullivan that Bell had been saved because he did not wish to "make Sullivan's unhappy last hour unhappier."

The executions of Jordan, Rocco, Popescu, and Sullivan were regarded by high police officials and prosecuting authorities as a warning that law in Cook county and Chicago still has teeth. They regarded the multiple execution, one of the largest in county history, as a significant step in discouragement of the murder habit here.

Jordan First in Chair.

Jordan was the first to die. He entered the death chamber in view of some 200 spectators, in the company of Warden David Moneypenny and several deputies, at 12:11 o'clock. One minute later the current was applied. At 12:15 the current was turned off and at 12:17 he was pronounced dead. Guards speedily removed Jordan's body, and the room was ready for the next man, Rocco. Warden Moneypenny and the same detail that accompanied Jordan accompanied him. In the rear stood Father Ernst, jail chaplain, murmuring a prayer. At 12:21 Rocco was strapped into the chair, and the current applied a moment later. At 12:24 the voltage was cut off, and five minutes later the jury of physicians agreed he was dead.

Popescu Follows Rocco.

Rocco's companion, Popescu, was next. The scene was a duplicate of that attending Rocco's execution. The current was applied at 12:32, cut off at 12:35, and at 12:38 Popescu was pronounced dead with the chaplain repeating a prayer for his salvation.

Within two minutes the last of the condemned men stepped into the room. It was Sullivan. He tried a feeble smile, unaware that Bell, the man he hoped and believed had preceded him, was still alive. Sullivan sat down in the chair without command. The current was turned on at 12:41 and off at 12:44. At 12:47 he was removed, lifeless.

It was all over and the crowd filed out of the death chamber and into the street, where two score policemen and jailers patrolled the streets surrounding the jail. In his cell, quivering, sat Bell, convicted of the same crime which Sullivan explated, but saved by the writ.

Judge Kelly Issues Writ.

The writ which temporarily gives Bell a new lease on life was issued by Judge James J. Kelly of the Superior court in an impromptu court session held in a reception room

JAPAN MAY QUIT LEAGUE IN ROW OVER AMERICA

Tokio Objects to U. S. Participation.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Oct. 16.—(Friday.)—Japan, it was semi-officially intimated this morning, may withdraw from the league of nations. The cabinet, it is reported, is considering ordering its representatives not to attend league council meetings in the presence of an American observer. Japan may also urge an adjournment of the council meetings.

BULLETIN.

TOKIO, Oct. 15.—Friday.—(AP)—Ambassador Debuchi cabled today from Washington that he believes it advisable for Japan to reconsider her attitude regarding proposed American participation in the league of nations' discussions of the Sino-Japanese controversy. The cabinet met this morning to consider the proposal.

BY EGBERT SWENSON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, Oct. 15.—The United States was invited to participate in the discussion of measures to end hostilities between Japan and China today by the council of the league of nations. The vote was 13 to 1.

The lone vote against the invitation was cast by Kenkichi Yoshizawa, Japan's delegate.

The decision to invite the United States to sit in on the deliberations in a consultative capacity was taken in the face of bitter opposition by the Tokio government, which again maintained, as it has from the beginning, that the dispute was "a private affair between China and Japan" and that Tokio would oppose any outside interference.

Asks Tokio for Instructions.

"We are still loyal members of the league of nations," Yoshizawa said at the conclusion of today's long secret meeting. "We objected on judicial grounds alone to inviting America, which does not belong to the league. I have acted in close conformity with my government's instructions and I now must again ask Tokio for directions as to my future attitude."

The invitation to the United States will be ratified at a public session of the council tomorrow morning. At this meeting the relations between the council and the Washington spokesman will be defined. The invitation will be dispatched to the United States at the conclusion of tomorrow's sessions.

Thus, it is assured that when the league's executive board sits down to attempt to settle the Chinese-Japanese troubles Prentiss B. Gilbert, American consul at Geneva, will be present, since Secretary of State Stimson has already notified the league to this effect.

Opposition to Japan's thesis that the league covenant does not authorize a nation, not a member, to participate in affairs of the league, even without a vote, was led by Foreign Minister Aristide Briand of France, who flooded Yoshizawa with oratory in an effort to swerve the Tokio spokesman.

Seeks Expert Opinion.

But the Japanese delegate held his ground and suggested that a committee of juridical experts be appointed to decide the legal phase of the invitation—whether it was proper or not. Briand branded the objection as irrelevant, stating that America would be asked to participate under article XI. of the league covenant, which provides that the council "shall take any action that may be deemed wise and effectual to safeguard the peace of nations."

Yoshizawa insisted that his suggestion be voted upon. It was, and he lost, 12 to 2, the German delegate, Gerhard von Mutius, voting with the Japanese.

BID ANGERS JAPAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Oct. 15.—Japan today reacted angrily to the decision of the council of the league of nations to invite the United States to participate in the Manchurian discussion. The government officials became so excited over the decision that Edwin Neville, the American charge d'affaires, in the absence of Ambassador Forbes, hastened to the foreign ministry to explain Washington's stand.

Mr. Neville particularly pointed out to Vice Minister Nagai that the role of the United States at Geneva must, as in the past, continue to be that of an observer.

A belief that America's intervention in the dispute would give birth to anti-American public sentiment in Japan was expressed by Nagai in his discussions with Neville.

"The Japanese public is particularly sensitive to any intimation that the United States was inclined to interfere with Japan's affairs," the vice minister said. "Our attitude rests on two other points: the principal involved and the determination to settle the controversy without outside intervention."

The foreign office today also instructed Katsuzi Debuchi, ambassador to the United States, to inform Secretary of State Stimson of the reaction to the league's invitation.

The Tokio government repeated its desire that the United States keep its hands out of the Manchurian dispute. It sent messages to the Japanese delegation at the league of nations' sessions at Geneva to "use every effort" to secure the abandonment of the proposals that an American observer participate in the discussions.

Calls Action "Unfair."

The following statement was issued:

"If America had any intention of making the present participation in the league's debate serve as a precedent and accordingly attended the league's sessions in the future, surely there is cause for congratulations, but if American participation is exceptional and limited to far eastern troubles only, there appears to be something unfair and irrational regarding such a step."

U. S. Will Accept Invitation.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15.—(AP)—Determined to do its utmost for the preservation of peace, America is ready to ignore Japanese protests and accept the league of nations' invitation to participate in its efforts to prevent a war in the orient.

Acknowledging the opposition of Japan, but minimizing reports picturing it as a flat repuff, officials feel that when the American position is thoroughly understood at Tokio the objections of that government will be withdrawn.

The purpose of the United States was described as purely one of helpfulness. Bound up with a primary motive of keeping Japan and China from open war is an extreme solicitation lest the integrity of treaties be impaired.

Kellogg Pact Guides U. S.

This concerns principally the Kellogg-Briand pact under which China and Japan renounced warfare as an instrument of national policy. There is also the nine power Pacific treaty which pledged them to arbitrate disputes. The participation of the United States in the league's discussions will be limited to questions involving these treaties and will not extend to any action the league might take under its own covenants.

The attitude of the Washington government was outlined by Secretary Stimson today in a conversation with Ambassador Debuchi of Japan. The cabinet member emphasized that America does not intend to be swerved from its purpose of throwing the full force of its influence into an effort to maintain peace.

Authorize Funds for Opening Kimball Avenue

The opening of Kimball avenue for two blocks, between Barry avenue and the intersection of Milwaukee and Diversey avenues, was assured yesterday when Ald. John S. Clark [30th], chairman of the city council finance committee, authorized the use of $11,176 out of the Kimball avenue bond fund to purchase a right of way. The improvement had been held up for six years because of a lack of funds to purchase the property needed for the street opening. Business men of the district working with Ald. Walter J. Orilkowski [39th] finally obtained a transfer of money out of the bond fund to pay for the property.

Cop Goes to Aid of Son and Drives Off 3 Robbers

James Fitzgerald, 19 years old, was putting an automobile in the garage in the rear of his home at 9218 Manistee avenue last night when three men attempted to rob him and take the car. Fitzgerald resisted and shouted for help. His father, Policeman Nicholas Fitzgerald of the South Chicago station, heard his cries and went to his help. The robbers fled when the policeman fired at them.

18 Seized in Gambling Raids Win Jury Trials

Eighteen men arrested in eight gambling raids on Wednesday afternoon were granted jury trials when arraigned yesterday before Municipal Judge Matthew Hartigan. Among those arrested was Philip Grossman, who obtained a pardon from former President Coolidge on a liquor conviction. He was seized at 14 North Halsted street.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 16 [Friday].—Official railway telegrams reaching Tientsin yesterday report that Mongolian bandits attacked the 40th Manchurian regiment Wednesday morning at Tungliao, northwest of Mukden, at a junction of newly built railways near the Jehol border. The bandits were repelled with heavy losses and retired in the direction of Kaitung, north of Tungliao.

The railway telegrams adds that during the fighting Japanese airplanes reconnoitered above and dropped two bombs.

Insist Japan Issued Arms.

Advices from Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang's provisional Manchurian government headquarters, now located at Peiping, add that a Japanese regiment is at Tungliao, and also assert that arms and ammunition used by the Tungliao attackers were distributed by the Japanese from the Mukden arsenal.

Six trains of Japanese troops, the first of which was armored, departed from Hsinmin shortly afterward. The Peiping-Mukden railway is occupied by Japanese troops as far as Paichipu. As a result the railway has been compelled to abandon traffic from there to Mukden.

Peiping has also notified the government that the Mongolian Prince Darkhan is in Peiping, stating that the Japanese have urged him and 48 others in inner Mongolia to secede.

The Chinese Eastern railway has assembled 300 coaches at Manchuli where Russian troops are reported waiting, evidently with the intention of preserving order along the Chinese Eastern railway. Japanese civilians are evacuating Taitsihar.

Five more Japanese destroyers have been ordered to south China waters. Eighty-seven thousand veterans of the Wu Chang uprising of 1911 against the Manchus have been organized to fight against Japan.

anese troops continue extending the zone of operations and seizing more towns in Manchuria, the chaos of banditry is spreading rapidly and the size of lawless units is increasing.

Cables from Dairen and Mukden cite Japanese official reports of small bands of refugee soldiers and bandits, disguised in civilian clothes, as daily entering the walled city of Mukden, the International Settlement and the south Manchurian railway zone and fomenting disturbances. Yesterday a small uprising in the walled city was quelled only after a sharp battle, with Japanese gendarmes victorious.

Anti-Corean violence has extended to the Chinese Eastern railway, a Chinese mob butchering two men and two women at Antah.

Nations Send Investigators.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MUKDEN, Manchuria, Oct. 15.—This city is rapidly filling with diplomatic officials and military observers, sent here from legations at Peiping and from embassies at Tokio to investigate the Sino-Japanese troubles for their governments.

George C. Hanson, American consul general at Harbin, and Laurence E. Salisbury of Chicago, secretary of the American embassy at Tokio, who are investigating the Manchurian situation for the United States government, are scheduled to return here tomorrow for the purpose of completing their inquiry.

(According to dispatches yesterday, the two were held up by Chinese bandits on their way to Chinchow to investigate Japanese bombings there and forced to turn back.)

An official Japanese report today stated that a detachment of Japanese cavalry clashed with 200 Chinese troops 15 miles north of the Peiping-Mukden railway, near Hsinmin, in a two hour fight. One Japanese soldier was killed. The Chinese casualties were 16 killed.

A Japanese infantry company defeated a band of 200 Chinese troops east of Chiaho, it is also reported. Five Chinese soldiers were slain. It is also announced that Japanese troops, rushed to the Liaoho river district, northwest of Mukden, yesterday, did not succeed in giving battle to 5,000 Chinese troops, who had crossed the river and escaped.

LEAGUE EXPLAINS ITS POSITION ON DECISION TO INVITE AMERICA

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

GENEVA, Oct. 15.—Following is the text of a communique issued here tonight explaining the league of nations' position on inviting the United States to join in the deliberations of the council on the Manchurian situation:

"At earlier debates of the council certain members expressed the opinion that the Sino-Japanese dispute concerned the execution not only of obligations resulting from the covenant, but also from those of the pact of Paris, article 2. The council examined today at a private meeting a proposal to send an invitation in this connection to the United States government, one of the promoters of the Paris pact, which, in a recent communication, had expressed warm sympathy with the attitude adopted by the league and had proclaimed its desire to support the league's action.

"The proposal submitted to the council aims at requesting the American government to send a representative to sit at the council table in order to furnish information and make communications to it. The Japanese representative expressed doubts of the constitutional and legal character regarding the question of whether the council could proceed to such an invitation and whether it could do so by a simple majority vote.

"Without taking a decision on the legal and constitutional aspects of these questions the council unanimously, except for one vote, expressed itself in favor of issuing such an invitation to the United States government. The text will be drawn up tomorrow."

LEAVE HOOVER PICTURE OUT OF CENTENNIAL BOOK

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 15.—(AP)—The Maryland Federation of Women's Clubs has issued its own George Washington bicentennial booklet after repudiating the one prepared by the national federation in which President Hoover was likened to the nation's first executive.

The new pamphlet was mailed by the federation today. It was devoted exclusively to Washington and carried his picture on the front cover in contrast to the national booklet's cover, which had Washington and Hoover pictures side by side.

The national federation's pamphlet was repudiated by the Maryland federation as "political in tone," "partisan," and "unwise." It was outlawed in Maryland by the state federation in its plans for the Washington celebration.

SENATORS SCAN NEGOTIATIONS OF U. S. AND LEAGUE

Fear Participation Will Set Precedent.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15.—(AP)—Vividly recalling its unyielding battle against adherence to the league of nations the senate is maintaining a close watch on present negotiations between Washington and Geneva.

Among the determined band that succeeded in rejecting President Wilson's proposal for American entry there is a discernible undersurface rumbling of concern. When congress meets definite and outspoken opposition to any program of further participation in league councils is in prospect.

Proponents of the league are no less vigilant in their scrutiny. Should the league be successful in stamping out the sparks of war now flying in the orient they are prepared to urge anew their pleas for closer coöperation in international affairs.

See Danger for America.

Many members of the senate view the administration's willingness to participate actively in the league's discussion of the oriental situation, so far as the Kellogg-Briand treaty is involved, as establishing a precedent.

From an obscure beginning in 1920, America's coöperation in league of nations activities has grown steadily. Never before, however, has the United States sought a part, either active or passive, in the deliberations of the league council.

The first participation in league activities was in 1920 when an American representative, sitting in an advisory capacity, joined in the settlement of the Aland islands dispute between Finland and Sweden.

Since then the United States has been represented at some 40 conferences called by the league, usually in an "advisory" or "consultative" capacity."

Contribute $40,000,000.

The dollars and cents contributions of the American government to league expenses since the first small start of $70 in 1923 have totaled nearly $40,000,000.

America's diplomatic dealings with the league received their greatest impetus last year with the reorganization by Secretary Stimson of the American consular office at Geneva. Previously the bulk of the diplomatic interchanges between Geneva and Washington were conducted indirectly by the American legation at Berne.

Large quarters close to the league secretariat were obtained and Prentiss Gilbert, assistant chief of the western European division of the state department, was appointed consul general.

Johnson Makes Protest.

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 15.—(AP)—United States Senator Hiram Johnson of California tonight issued a statement deploring the willingness of the United States to treat with the league of nations on the Sino-Japanese situation.

"What the American people said in most emphatic terms should not be done the administration now does," Senator Johnson said. "Into the league of nations America is shoved despite our people. We've a new kind of government. The old, cumbersome mode of the constitution has been superseded by a dictatorship and an oligarchy.

"May the Lord protect America for the few intervening months when Americans may speak with ballots."

U. S. DOLLAR INTEREST IN CHINESE-JAPANESE ROW TOTALS BILLION

New York, Oct. 15.—(AP)—While keeping a weather eye on the political aspects of the Sino-Japanese dispute in Manchuria, Wall street's chief interest in the controversy centers around American investments estimated at close to one billion dollars in that part of the orient.

The lion's share of this capital interest lies in China and Japan, with comparatively few American investments in Manchuria. The largest oriental interests of American firms are in oil, with public utilities second and tobacco third.

In China American investments are practically all in actual production and shipping plants, whereas in Japan, where direct foreign participation in business has been discouraged, Americans hold approximately $422,000,000 in Japanese dollar bonds issued for governmental and industrial purposes.

There is in addition an annual trade of about $140,000,000 with China and nearly a billion dollars with Japan.

LAVAL DECLARES ALL NATIONS ARE IN SAME BOAT

Broadcasts on Eve of Visit to Washington.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Oct. 15.—No one nation can expect to find an isolated safety in a world beset by economic dangers, Premier Pierre Laval declared in a radio address broadcast to the United States on the eve of his departure for Washington tomorrow.

"The interests of nations are so tied up," he said, "that no one nation can be sheltered completely from the dangers which menace the others."

Premier Laval attributed the economic and social evils of today to trouble which "has its roots in the very progress of a civilization which has developed too rapidly." France has escaped distress and remained "healthy," he said, because of "her work" and "her saving."

As to the remedy, the French premier declared he harbored no illusions that one would be found in his four days at Washington with President Hoover. He warned his auditors not to expect too much.

"Personal talks and frank explanations between leaders of nations may appear to be the surest method of finding the way back to normal conditions," he explained, "but it would be too much to expect definite solutions from them. At Washington we shall exchange our ideas. I shall tell President Hoover what my country thinks, what she wishes, and what she can do."

He told his radio audience that it was in response to an invitation from a "country to which we feel ourselves closely united that I leave tomorrow to be gone nearly three weeks."

Premier Laval Leaves Paris.

PARIS, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Premier Laval, accompanied by his daughter José, left Paris for Havre early today to sail for the United States to talk with President Hoover on world problems.

STIMSON TUNES IN FOR LAVAL'S TALK, GETS SONG

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15.—(AP)—Secretary Stimson likes music. But he would have traded an unknown soprano for the familiar voice of his friend Premier Laval of France with the greatest of pleasure today.

With keen anticipation he had asked to have the little used state department radio tuned in on the Paris speech of the French statesman who soon is to visit Washington.

But instead of the tones of the premier all that could be wrung from the loud speaker except for static was the faint but insistent voice of a soprano singing an unrecognizable tune.

NAVY SLASHES MILLIONS FROM 1932 BUDGET

Ties Up Warships; 4,000 to Lose Jobs.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—A program calling for drastic retrenchments throughout the whole naval establishment, both afloat and ashore, was submitted to President Hoover today by Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams.

All told, it provided for reductions in navy expenditures during the 1933 fiscal year of in excess of $50,000,000 below the estimates submitted to the budget. It called for a 15 to 20 per cent slash in the number of warships kept in commission, enlisted personnel reductions of in excess of 4,000 and the closing or placing on an inoperative status of approximately twenty navy properties.

As prepared for the President, the economy program was filled with political dynamite, as any move to close navy stations hit by the report today would raise a hornet's nest of opposition. The major shore properties recommended for closing included the navy yard and Charleston, S. C., navy yard, the Newport naval training station, the naval hospital at Charleston, S. C.; the naval hospital in the Virgin Islands; radio stations at Great Lakes, Ill.; Savannah, Ga.; St. Augustine, Fla., and the New Orleans navy yard.

Would Curtail Recruiting.

The report also recommended curtailment of marine and naval recruiting activities, the reduction of civilian personnel by 2,000 men, the postponement of the construction of $3,000,000 naval hospitals at Washington and Philadelphia, and curtailment of activities at the Philadelphia aircraft factory and the naval supply depot at Brooklyn, N. Y.

The cuts in enlisted personnel will run around 2,500 for the navy and 1,500 for the marine corps. They will bring the total cuts in the naval establishment, since the Hoover economy ax first hit the navy, up above 10,000.

The major cuts in warships afloat will be decommissioning the battleship Wyoming, the partial decommissioning of the battleship New York, the placing in reserve of two 10,000 ton 8 inch gun cruisers, two of the navy's newest and finest war vessels, and the laying up of a considerable number of submarines and destroyers. Battleships in full commission will number ten in 1933, compared to the treaty limit for this country of fifteen.

Slash $60,000,000 off Budget.

The Adams economy program was prepared in compliance with the President's command that the navy attempt to slash $60,000,000 from its 401 million dollar estimates. Indications that it did not meet with the full approval of the President was seen when White House observers reported that Mr. Adams left in a huff. It was also said that voices raised to a high pitch carried through the doors of the President's study during the time Secretary Adams was submitting his report.

A short White House statement issued after the conference conveyed the impression that President Hoover felt the navy had made a successful effort to cut appropriations. It read: "Secretary Adams and Admiral William V. Pratt, chief of naval operations, and heads of the navy department have made strong and successful efforts to bring about reductions in the navy budget without injuring the efficiency of the navy. Details will now be worked out by Col. Rupp and the budget officer of the navy."

Regardless of the sweeping nature of the shore property reductions recommended to President Hoover, the closing of any appreciable number of these stations would come as a shock to veteran naval officers. These admirals and captains have seen many attempts launched to close political navy yard properties, but in virtually every instance pressure brought in congress or at the White House have wrecked such economy programs.

Hit Forty Communities.

The fact that the program recommended by the navy department represented a cross section slash of the whole navy establishment and thus hit probably forty communities may have the effect of modifying the White House economy efforts. Strong political pressure already has been mobilized to prevent the closing of such places as Charleston, or Boston, Secretary Adams' home city.

The inflammable situation in the orient, where Japan and China are threatening to go to war, also may have the effect of reducing the size of the White House navy cuts.

If the program goes through as ordered the United States fleet in 1933 will be at its lowest ebb of combat efficiency and power since pre-war days. Less than 75 per cent of the vessels in operation in 1929 will be in commission that year. Battleships will be reduced to ten, plus a training ship; a fleet short of cruisers will lay up two of its best; destroyers will be cut to less than 75 per cent of the 1929 quota, while a proportionate reduction in submarines will be made. One or two aircraft tenders also will be placed in reduced commission. Probably 25 airplanes will be laid up.

Appropriation estimates for new warship construction were cut something around $20,000,000. Work on three battleships undergoing modernization will be slowed up so these vessels can not be commissioned in 1933. Appropriations for the six destroyers cut off the destroyer program by White House order also were deleted.

U. S. CHECKS BOOKS, FINDS TREASURY IS $502,106,600 IN RED

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15.—(AP)—Cold figures emphasized the difficult financial position of the government anew today, the deficit passing the half billion dollar mark.

For the first three and a half months of the fiscal year, which began July 1, the treasury books show the government to be $502,106,600 in the red.

Even as this was revealed, fiscal experts of the department were pondering over how to adjust the situation—whether taxes should be increased. President Hoover has said the study will continue some time, with no decision likely before congress returns to work in December.

The deficit is $485,000,000 more than it was for the same period of the previous fiscal year. At the close of business Oct. 13, the government had collected from all sources $629,768,231 and had spent $1,131,874,831.

HARVARD BARS AIMEE; STUDENTS REPRIMANDED

Boston, Mass., Oct. 15.—(AP)—A group of Harvard students who had invited Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton, California evangelist, to visit Dunster house, at the college, said today that her visit had been barred by Harvard authorities.

The group of a dozen students entertained Mrs. Hutton at luncheon in a Boston hotel. They said they had been taken to task for extending their invitation and explained they had been given to understand that any student whose name was used in connection with the activities of the evangelist would be dropped from the rolls of the college.

The students said they had invited the evangelist, who is conducting revival services in Boston, to luncheon because they wanted to hear her theory of saving souls and to ask her about her "four square gospel" and find out "what it's all about."

Irish Public Safety Bill Passes Second Reading

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

DUBLIN, Oct. 15.—The public safety bill for the suppression of sedition and terrorism, which was introduced in the Dail Eireann yesterday, passed its second reading this evening, 82 to 66. The Republican party, led by Eamonn De Valera, and the Labor party stubbornly opposed the bill. Minister of Justice Fitzgerald-Kenny created a sensation by reading a decoded document obtained by the police allegedly proving that the organizations the bill would ban were in close touch with communists in Moscow and that Russian money was entering the Free State.

REVEAL CURRAN'S SPENDING SPREE AT BRIDEWELL

Vouchers Tell Story of Huge Food Bills.

The household expenses of State Representative James Curran which were paid by the city while he was superintendent of the Bridewell averaged more than three times as much as the salary he drew for the job, according to figures disclosed as the result of a financial report issued yesterday by Richey V. Graham, the new acting superintendent. Curran was Bridewell superintendent under the former city administration.

Curran and his family cost the taxpayers a minimum of $40 per day for food, according to the vouchers for maintenance. The upkeep of the Curran family fluctuated from $1,200 to $1,800 per month, the vouchers show. Besides the expenses, paid for by taxpayers, the superintendent lived, rent free, in a spacious residence on the Bridewell grounds.

Salary $5,000 a Year.

The city budget provides for a $5,000 a year salary for the superintendent of the House of Correction, which is the official name of the Bridewell, and also for the maintenance of his family.

The reports of the efficiency experts of the staff of Mayor Cermak figure that the average cost of keeping the Curran family was $1,500 per month, or $18,000 per year.

"The meat bills averaged $1,000 a month," said one of the old time Bridewell employés. "Of course now and then a little party was put on by the superintendent for his friends and maybe they helped to eat up that much meat."

Cites Present Savings.

Graham, who is acting as superintendent without pay, inadvertently called attention to the Curran extravagance when he issued a report of the savings now being made in operating the institution. He called attention in his report to the fact that the superintendent's residence has been closed and that this money was being saved to the taxpayers. An examination of the vouchers of the Curran régime then revealed the large meat bills and maintenance costs.

According to one Bridewell employé, the Curran family at various times contained some thirty-five or forty members and included uncles, aunts, nephews, and nieces.

Curran also put into operation a private miniature nine hole golf course in the front yard of the Bridewell.

Curran from Political Family.

Curran, who last month was kidnaped and held captive by bandits who let him out near Springfield after giving him $2 for expenses, could not be reached at his home, 1914 South Ashland avenue, for an explanation of the disclosures. He represents the 15th district in the legislature and comes of a family long identified in Republican politics.

Graham, who is chairman of the state board of prison inspectors and who is acting as Bridewell superintendent without pay, is a son-in-law of Mayor Cermak. In following out the retrenchment policy of the Cermak administration, Graham expects to effect a saving of about $148,000 during 1932. His budget estimates for 1932 are $646,661 as compared with $795,000 during the Curran period.

TARIFFS TO SAVE ENGLAND "BOOED" BY LLOYD GEORGE

Liberal Chief Speaks from Armchair.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 15.—David Lloyd George, veteran leader of the Liberal party, took his turn on the political stage tonight. From his sick chair in his country home at Churt, Surrey, he spoke over the radio, bitterly attacking the "food taxing" Conservatives and denouncing the general election as a partisan intrigue whereby the Conservative leaders hoped to engineer a Tory majority.

He scorned the suggestion that protective tariffs would help to extricate the nation from its difficulties. The wily leader strongly urged the Liberals to vote for the free trade Labor party. He compared nations with protective tariffs—the United States, Germany, and France—with Great Britain under free trade.

"Tariffs did not save the mark in Germany," Lloyd George cried. "Tariffs did not help France. Under tariffs the French franc fell to one-fifth its former value. In England under free trade the pound has fallen only by one-fifth."

Then turning to the United States he said:

"Here, indeed, ought to be a paradise for protectionists. It is an immense country with inexhaustible resources. Yet there are 8,000,000 men and women walking the streets of the United States for work or bread. There is more actual privation through unemployment in one American city than in the whole of Britain. The specter of bankruptcy is stalking through that rich country, whose streets two years ago seemed paved with gold.

"That's what protection has done and is doing to our greatest industrial competitors. Why, therefore, should protection be supposed to be a remedy for Britain's ills?"

MacDonald Howled Down.

Earlier in the day miners staged a massed attack on Prime Minister MacDonald's meetings in the Seaham Harbor division. For the first time in the campaign he was shouted down at the Shotton colliery, where miners greeted him with hoots, cat-calls, and jeers.

After fifteen minutes of uproar, in which the prime minister was unable to make himself heard, the meeting broke up.

"Howls have never cowed me and never will, Mr. MacDonald told his antagonists, who replied with renewed outbursts of booing and yelling.

His opposition again was in full force at Thornley tonight, when the audience again attempted to drown out his words. But Mr. MacDonald, in a defiant mood, threatened to have the heckler thrown out, a rebuke which silenced the crowd.

RELIEF WORKERS START DRIVE FOR $8,800,000 FUND

Huge Army Launches War on Winter's Misery.

$170,090,130 Needed

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15.—(AP)—An estimate that it will take $170,090,130 to keep the distressed from being hungry and cold in 214 cities this winter went today to the President's relief organization. This "bare minimum" figure was presented to Walter S. Gifford, director of the national unemployment organization, by the Association of Community Chests and Councils.

The greatest army of workers ever assembled in Chicago under the banner of charity started out yesterday on their job of collecting $8,800,000, which will stamp out misery this winter among the poor and jobless.

The forces were organized in divisions, sections, and groups, much as a military force is organized into divisions, regiments, and companies.

Indeed, there was a military precision about this drive for money which seemed to augur well for the accomplishment of the task, and Samuel Insull Jr., head of the fund campaign, and Edward L. Ryerson, president of the fund, were frequently complimented for the thoroughness with which they have done their work.

Cermak Reads Proclamation.

Colors were unfurled, a bugle and drum corps played, and the leaders of the campaign made speeches in front of the city hall yesterday as a crowd gathered to witness the ceremonial opening of the drive for funds. Mayor Cermak read his proclamation, in which he formally inaugurated the drive, and called upon the citizens to give generously and quickly.

Later, at a meeting in the Hotel La Salle, some 1,200 workers assembled under the trades, industries, and professions division. They have been called the shock troops of the army of charity, and their quota has been set at $6,000,000. These workers received inspiration from the showing of a motion picture, taken during the stirring days of 1919 and showing the victorious Yanks returning.

"Another War," Says Dewey.

"This is another war," exclaimed Charles S. Dewey, chairman of the division. "It will be short lived and victory will be ours, but yours will be a great reward when you have won. You will know then that you have done a great task, and your reward will be the gratitude of the thousands whom you have saved from despair."

Those at the meeting were told of the latest special contribution to the fund, that of the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company, which donated $150,000. This sum raised the total thus far in hand to $1,352,428. The bank's contribution is a corporate gift and does not include the individual gifts from its employés.

First reports from the "shock troops" will be received next Tuesday, when the leaders of the various sections will meet at the Union League club to state what donations and pledges they have received. The heads of the sections, who addressed the workers yesterday, are Merle J. Trees, vice president of the American Bridge and Iron company; Arthur Andersen, president of Arthur Andersen & Co.; John F. Gilchrist, vice president of the Commonwealth Edison company; David A. Crawford, president of the Pullman company; Scott Brown, lawyer, and Charles Rubens, retired.

Hear Campaign Plan.

Orlin F. Corliss, Salvation Army leader, who is assisting Mr. Dewey, told the workers how they should seek the heads of business firms, asking that the entire working forces be requested to donate one day's pay a month for six months to the fund. The companies should match the donations of their employés, he said.

Contests intended to stimulate interest in the fund among Chicago and Cook county school children were announced yesterday. Pupils are asked to write essays and to compose words for campaign songs, and the prize winners will receive visits to Washington and Springfield, to meet President Hoover and Gov. Emmerson, and other prizes including books and medals.

Theodore R. Gerlach, president of the Illinois Manufacturers' association, addressing the Chicago Furniture Manufacturers' association, appealed to that group to lend their aid to the relief drive in fullest measure.

The physicians of Chicago are prepared to do their bit in alleviating suffering among the poor and unemployed during the coming winter, it was announced last night by Dr. John R. Harger, president of the Chicago Medical society. Dr. Harger said that the medical profession will coöperate with charitable organizations in Chicago to make certain that none of the city's jobless should suffer from lack of medical care.

JANITOR HANGS SELF.

Ottawa, Ill., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—When the proprietor of the Della Allen shop in Mendota reached the place of business this morning he found the body of the store janitor, Richard Schmidt, 64, hanging on a rafter in the basement. Schmidt had killed himself last night.

ALDERMAN RAPS REVENUE BOARD FOR ITS SECRECY

Hodes Blames Commission in Finance Muddle.

The governor's revenue commission was criticized yesterday by Ald. Barnet Hodes [7th] for holding secret conferences while considering a program to relieve the financial distress of the local governments. The taxpayers, Ald. Hodes said, should be advised as to what is occurring behind the closed doors.

The alderman, who is chairman of a city council subcommittee on taxation, has called a meeting of his group, and has summoned to it the members of the special subcommittee of the governor's commission which is working on a legislative program. The purpose of calling them, he said in a printed statement, is to determine what has been done since the governor's first conference on July 1.

"Finance Trouble Growing."

"In the meantime," the statement read, "Chicago and Cook county are in worse financial shape than they have ever been. Every month has meant millions, and still, with this crushing burden becoming more onerous constantly, no word from the governor's commission.

"Secret meetings, secret conferences, secret discussions. The people ultimately are going to pay the taxes. Why should they not be advised as to what is occurring?

"It is essential that the governor's conference tell the people the truth as to its determinations. The uncertainty of the situation is affecting the financial structure of Chicago and Cook county. There is the suggestion that there will not be enough money to run any form of necessary local government.

Criticizes Revenue Board.

"It is obvious that the responsibility during the last four months for the present crushing revenue muddle must be placed directly in the lap of the gentlemen who constitute the governor's conference. They have done nothing, and they have hampered others from doing anything.

"The special subcommittee, if closely studied, shows definitely individuals belonging to specialized group interests—Samuel Insull, George F. Nixon, Insull's real estate man; and Omer N. Custer, chairman of the state tax commission, declared by some to be close to Insull."

Report Progress on Bills.

The revenue commission was said to have made considerable progress last night in preparing its tax program for the proposed special session of the legislature. Several more bills were discussed and agreed upon, according to reports after the secret meeting. It is planned to have another meeting on Monday or Tuesday to approve the entire program.

Mr. Nixon, as a member of the commission, yesterday outlined to the Illinois Association of Real Estate Men, meeting in Aurora, three recommendations which he said would be turned over to the governor by the commission within ten days.

The recommendations are that the general assembly originate forms of taxation based on the ability of those taxed to pay; that more economical administrations be required of the state, counties and municipalities; and that there be some permanent relief for real estate owners and a one year moratorium of Cook county's delinquent taxes.

MAYOR TO TAKE UP WORK NEXT WEEK ON 1932 BUDGET PLAN

Mayor Cermak said yesterday that he would begin next week to coördinate the city departments' estimates of necessary expenditures for next year with the report of J. L. Jacobs, efficiency expert, in which reductions in expenditures of approximately 15 per cent under those of 1931 are recommended.

From the departmental estimates and Mr. Jacobs' report the mayor will compile a tentative city budget for 1932, which will be submitted to the city council finance committee.

In reply to questions about the $100,000 survey ordered by the board of education, Mayor Cermak said that the survey being made of the entire city government, including the library and municipal tuberculosis sanitarium would not cost the city $50,000.

TEACHERS TO MEET

Teacher delegates from 153 south side schools plan to meet at Hyde Park High school this afternoon to perfect an organization for the promotion of a plan to speed the collection of Cook county's taxes as a means of relieving the unpaid teachers. North side teachers are to take up the subject at a massmeeting today at Senn High school. The teachers plan to demand that additional judges be brought from downstate to help County Judge E. K. Jarecki dispose of the more than 200,000 cases of protested taxes.

James Armstrong, secretary of the Chicago Principals' club, after a conference of the principals and Gov. Emmerson at the Stevens hotel yesterday, said the governor had expressed hope that a special session of the legislature might be called next week. The session will consider relief measures.

President Lewis E. Myers of the school board yesterday asked an early hearing before the governor's revenue commission on the board's recommendations for relief. Final approval of the relief bills by Chapman & Cutler, attorneys, is expected today, according to Thomas V. Sullivan, school board attorney.

LAWYERS ARGUE AGAINST TAX ON PIT MEMBERSHIP

Contentions of attorneys for the Chicago Board of Trade that memberships in its organization are "privileges" and not taxable properties were taken under advisement by the board of assessors yesterday. The assessors have already tentatively placed $10,850,000 on the books as the valuation of 1,550 memberships in the Board of Trade.

Attorneys Walter Jacobs and J. Sidney Condit appeared at the hearing on behalf of the board. They argued that the memberships were licenses and privileges under the grain futures act of the department of agriculture. Attorney Jocobs declared the members engaged in interstate business and were regulated by the secretary of agriculture.

The attitude taken by the assessors was that memberships in the Board of Trade constituted personal property in the nature of an investment. Charles E. Fox, director of appraisals, recalled that one man had purchased a membership for $25,000 solely for speculation and not for actual trading in grain. The last known sale of a membership was last week. The price was $7,000.

TITLE AND TRUST TO PAY $175,000 ON CLIENTS' TAX

Sum Will Cover Amount Not Protested.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The Chicago Title and Trust company is planning to pay between $165,000 and $175,000 in taxes for certain of its client, following the Morrison hotel's payment on Wednesday of $261,000.

The trust company is concerned with about forty properties for which a bondholders' or other protective committee or a receiver has been appointed. Ervin R. Barney, attorney for the trust company told the county treasurer yesterday that a meeting would be held today to determine upon the tax payments.

The taxes are for 1928 and were due July 10, 1930. Objection was filed in the County court to the taxes on each of these properties and Judge Jarecki has set a hearing for Oct. 27. In the meantime, the trust company will pay the part of the tax which they deem legal and fair.

Calls Parley to Map Plans.

County Treasurer McDonough, after a conference yesterday afternoon with Assistant State's Attorney James Clancy, issued a call for his committee to decide upon a practical and expeditious method of collecting delinquent taxes from those who have cash.

The treasurer's office yesterday compiled a list of the largest real estate owners in the section immediately north of the river who have not paid their 1929 taxes, due May 15 last. A list of some of these will be presented at the committee meeting today.

The owners listed are those who have filed objection to their taxes in the County court. From the data collected yesterday it is probable that a score or more of property owners will be selected against whom action will be asked at once.

COUNTY EMPLOYES TO GET LAST PAY TODAY UNTIL DEC. 1

Four thousand county employés will receive their pay today for the last half of September. The pay roll is now almost two weeks overdue. The announcement was made yesterday by Edward J. McCabe, secretary to County Treasurer McDonough. The pay roll, he added, is the last the county will be able to meet until Dec. 1, the beginning of the fiscal year 1932 for the county.

Eighteen hundred mothers and six thousand children in the mother's pension lists will also receive county benefits which recently were curtailed because of the lack of funds.

Funds for the pay rolls have been raised through fees and penalties which have accrued to the county clerk's and county treasurer's offices. These amount to $350,000. The remainder of the $550,000 necessary was borrowed from the county hard road fund.

ACCEPT REPORT ON GOVERNMENT MERGER PLAN

A report of its subcommittee urging the consolidation of the main functions of all the local governments in Cook county under a body to be known as the Chicago Metropolitan council was accepted yesterday by the city council committee on efficiency, reorganization and consolidation. A public hearing on the report will be held soon, said Ald. B. A. Cronson [4th], chairman.

The consolidation, according to Ald. John A. Massen [48th], co-author of the report with six other aldermen, would save the taxpayers $50,000,000 annually in governmental costs.

WE WANT BEER! AMERICAN LABOR VOTES ONCE MORE

Asks for Legalized 2.75 Per Cent Brew.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Oct. 15.—(AP)—Organized labor launched its drive today against depression, backing American Federation of Labor leaders in an attack all along the line with salient points ranging from beer to building projects.

WILLIAM GREEN.

President William Green and all other general offices were re-elected amid cheers, indicating the confidence of the rank and file, and the recommendations of the executive council were almost unanimously adopted.

Cincinati was chosen for the 1932 convention just before final adjournment.

Vote for 2.75 Per Cent Beer.

The federation voted to ask the next congress for 2.75 beer, which Green said might be "the spark that would set the wheels of industry turning."

It had already backed the executive council's extensive plan for temporary and permanent relief of unemployment, embodying public building projects, maintenance of the United States wage standard, job assurance, prohibition of child labor, shorter work week, stronger employment agencies, insurance for workers with dependents, and financial relief from public and private funds.

After bitter debate, the convention voted down any form of unemployment insurance or the so-called "dole" system, but speakers warned "capital and industry" that they must share the burdens of labor willingly "or else pay for them unwillingly." It disapproved "prosperity talks" unless they have a definite objective.

Oppose War Dept Cancellation.

Resolutions adopted today opposed cancellation of war debts, pledged support to bituminous coal miners in their wage fight, affirmed it was nonpartisan in politics, but would scrutinize candidates to ascertain their attitude toward labor, and referred the proposed probe of "intolerable conditions" among Hoover dam workers to the executive council.

Leaders in the "beer group" and on the resolutions committee made it clear they believed mild beer was "reasonably sure of accomplishment" and would "promote the cause of true temperance." An attempt to have the A. F. L. seek repeal of the eighteenth amendment was overwhelmingly defeated.

Lesser resolutions adopted today favored exclusion of all immigrants but Canadians, entry of the United States into peace deliberations at Geneva, readjustment of patent laws, independence for the Philippine islands, and denounced the "yellow dog" contract.

Flying Priest Killed

FATHER GEORGE WOODLEY.

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Oct. 15.—(AP)—The body of Father George Woodley, killed in a fall down a 20 foot bank in the Chickaloon district, northeast of here, while he was returning to his hunting camp with the carcass of a mountain sheep, was brought here today.

The Catholic priest's head was crushed when he struck the bottom of the ravine. The body was partially submerged when found yesterday by searchers. He had been missing since Tuesday.

Father Woodley, a secular priest, recently returned to Alaska in his own plane to engage in mission work along the lower Yukon river. He was to have started work within a few days. At one time he was pastor of the Anchorage church.

The body will be taken to Boston to be buried beside that of his mother.

Italy's Jobless 747,000; Gain of 54,000 in Month

ROME, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Italy's unemployed as of Oct. 1 totaled 747,000, an increase of 54,000 in the month of September.

BRITTEN LEARNS BEER WOULD NET U. S. 300 MILLION

Mills Survey Bares Huge Loss in Revenue.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—It isn't just the economic benefits which the return of beer would bring to the farmers and the unemployed which interest Representative Fred A. Britten [Rep., Ill.], he said today, but, rather, the psychological effect of giving the American people what so many of them want.

FRED A. BRITTEN.

And in expressing this sentiment he also disclosed that a study of what the return of beer would do for the country in the way of taxes has been made in the treasury department. He had learned, Representative Britten said, that this study showed that 300 million dollars might be collected in the first year from a beer tax of $10 a barrel. Independently of Mr. Britten's statement it was reported that it was Undersecretary Ogden L. Mills who ordered the beer study made.

Moreland Sees Hoover.

"The conference at the White House yesterday afternoon between Ald. James C. Moreland of the Chicago city council and President Hoover over the general benefits to be derived by a modification of the Volstead law," the Illinois congressman explained, "appears to have revolved only around the interests of the farmer and the unemployed.

"To my mind, much the greater value in the return of a wholesome glass of beer is its psychological effect upon 20 million or more adults who would immediately be made cheerful by an authentic announcement that the wishes of the American Bar association, the American Medical association, the American Federation of Labor and the American Legion would be given the same serious governmental consideration that is heaped upon the farmer whenever he breathes for relief."

Were it not for the "paid bigots, like Bishop James Cannon Jr., Dr. Clarence True Wilson, F. Scott McBride, and others of their ilk," said Representative Britten, "prohibition would die an immediate natural death."

Would Aid Farmer, He Says.

"Undoubtedly," he continued, "the state control of the manufacture and distribution of beer would prove of enormous value to the farmer, the industrialist, the transportation company and the unemployed, and I disagree with those who say that the sale of soda water and other soft drinks would be materially reduced."

Judge Halts Broadcast of Trial After Protests

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 15.—(AP)—Protests by the Bar association and Superior court officials today caused Judge Harry W. Falk to halt a radio broadcast of testimony in the retrial of David H. Clark, former deputy district attorney, on charges of slaying Herbert Spencer, magazine editor.

MORAN "LEGGER" SHOT IN HOTEL; ACCUSES WIFE

Guests in the Park Central hotel, 443 Wrightwood avenue, were aroused early this morning by a pajama clad man running down the corridor screaming, "I'm shot!" P. J. Farrell, the manager, summoned police, and Sergt. Harry Calsee and his squad hurried to the hotel. They found Charles M. Reynolds, the pajama clad man, holding his right arm. A bullet had torn into the flesh. "My wife shot me," was all he would say.

Detectives searched his room. They failed to find his wife, but discovered 24 suits. On the roof of an adjoining building, directly opposite his room window, they also found two revolvers, one containing a discharged cartridge. Reynolds refused to amplify his story of the shooting except to say that his wife's name is Jacqueline. Later he admitted he was an independent bootlegger and a former member of the "Buggs" Moran crowd. Police took him to the station after a thorough search of the hotel floors failed to disclose his wife.

START CLOSING ARGUMENTS IN CAPONE'S TRIAL

Case Is Expected to Go to Jury Tomorrow.

Capone Prosecutor Paints 'Picture of Guilt'; Calls on Jury to Convict Chief of the Gang

The first of the government's closing arguments in the income tax case of Al Capone, delivered by Assistant District Attorney Jacob I. Grossman, was the concluding event at yesterday's session of the trial. After the defense had rested its case Mr. Grossman stepped to the rail of the jury box and addressed the jurors.

"My duty, gentlemen," he began, "is to present a picture of the evidence as it has been unfolded before you. You have heard it little by little. I propose to show the complete picture."

He then explained the indictments, stating that in each of the years covered by the true bills—1924 to 1929—the defendant had an income of more than $5,000, the necessary fact, and that his income actually was thousands more. He listed the income in these figures:

Year.	Income.	Year.	Income.
1924	$120,000	1927	230,000
1925	250,000	1928	140,000
1926	195,000	1929	104,000

On this income, said Mr. Grossman, the tax amounted to more than $216,000 and not one cent was paid.

Says Capone Proved Revenue.

"Capone himself produced witnesses to show that he got revenue in these years," the prosecutor said. "His defense witnesses said he lost large sums in race bets in four of those years. These losses totaled $217,000.

"Where did Capone get this money? At the start we find a man living on a fine estate in Florida, spending money like a baron and with the lavishness of an Indian prince.' We have heard of jewels, and fine furnishings—everything bought with cash.

"The Florida people were interested in where all this money came from, and they asked Capone. He told them. He said he was a gambler in Cicero and Chicago and was in the real estate and cleaning and dyeing business and added that he had an interest in the dog tracks.

Men Under Assumed Names.

"We see, furthermore, by going to his offices in the Metropole or Lexington hotels that he was surrounded by an organization of men who use assumed names. When they moved into the Lexington hotel these men wouldn't even use their own names. They pushed the register aside.

"More of that organization appeared on the witness stand. You saw men who testified that when Capone called them and said, 'Come to my office,' they went. He pulled a string and they came running. These witnesses could remember nothing save that Capone lost money.

"The Florida people who came here to testify before you included some who fronted for Capone. There was Parker Henderson, who cashed Capone's checks for him and tried to disguise his handwriting when he did so. He bought Capone's home with Capone's money, and later it was transferred to the name of the defendant's wife.

"Everything was cash with Capone. The witness Ryder from Miami told you of the $1,000 bill wrappers he saw lying around the Palm Island estate, and said that Western Union boys were arriving every hour.

Recalls the Cicero Raid.

"Now let's go to Cicero. Here we find the gambler, Shumway, a witness who said he was in a gambling house there as cashier. Capone was around, and when the place was raided, Capone directed that Shumway take the money. That indicated proprietorship. Three other witnesses—Bragg, Morgan, and the Rev. Mr. Hoover—said that Capone entered while the raid was going on, saying, 'I'm the owner here.' He came so fast he didn't stop to dress. He wore a pair of trousers over his pajamas.

"Recall, gentlemen, the cross-examination of Bragg and Morgan, particularly the question asked by defense counsel: 'Are you sure it wasn't Ralph Capone?' That in itself shows something, when they attempt to prove it was some one else.

"The government's case was proved by the defense when it put witnesses on the stand to show deductions [which could have been taken from the tax]. Capone made money, said these witnesses, and he lost money, but he had a gross income of more than $5,000.

Cites Tax Evasion Evidence.

"All through this case there is evidence of the defendant's attempts to get out of paying income taxes. He lived at the Metropole hotel, where he had eight rooms and his bills were $1,200 a week, under the name of Mr. Ross. When he moved to the Lexington, he gave the name of Mr. Phillips. At various times we have seen him under the name of Mr. Brown, and when he received money in Florida by telegraph that was under the name of A. Costa.

"You remember that Jack Guzik instructed Fred Ries, the gambling house cashier, not to turn any money over to Al. That was to prevent the government from finding out what Capone's percentage was. Yet we find the defendant purchasing automobiles, furniture and wearing apparel with the Guzik checks. Ries turned $177,500 of these over to Guzik in 1927 and $24,500 in 1928.

Points to Cashed Orders.

"Remember that of the $77,000 Capone received by Western Union in Florida over a period of two years, he cashed many of the orders himself. He cashed $29,200 of these orders and let Parker Henderson and others cash the rest of them.

"All through this testimony, gentlemen, you have heard certain names mentioned together—Al Capone, Jack Guzik, Charles Fishetti, Ralph Capone, and Pete Penovich. They all constitute one gang. Guzik was seen with Capone in the office of the gambling house. They were seen together at the Lexington and the Metropole. Some of the wire transmittals were sent by Fishetti.

"What has that to do with this income tax case? It means that when one embarks on a life of crime, one crime leads to another. The watchword of the gang was 'Sign nothing.' Conceal your name and conceal your income. They have carried their concealment to the witness box. Their witnesses told of the money Capone lost on the races, but they didn't tell you where he got it. Now, write your own ticket.

Capone Talks Despite Peril.

"But the government began to investigate this case, and about a year later Capone came in with Mattingly. He was told that this was a fraud case, and whatever he said was at his own peril. But he was so desperate he talked anyway. He talked in Florida, but didn't realize it would be heard as far as Chicago.

"Gentlemen, I think the evidence has shown beyond all possibility of a doubt that this defendant had an enormous income. All that you can do is find him guilty."

the statute of limitations were made, argued, and denied.

Mr. Fink argued at some length for dismissal on the ground that the statute under which the indictments were drawn is unconstitutional.

"The Circuit Court of Appeals has sustained the constitutionality of this statute," said the judge. "How is it permissible for this court to hold it unconstitutional?"

Mr. Fink argued that the charge of willful attempt to evade the income tax statutes was too vague.

No Evasion Evidence—Fink.

"There is not a scintilla of evidence," he said, "to sustain the charge that an attempt was made to evade. There was no affirmative physical act proved."

The court wanted to know if it was not a willful attempt to defraud the government for a citizen to form a plan of carrying on a business without keeping books or bank accounts, and transacting it so as to make it impossible for the government to find out the situation of his business.

Mr. Fink argued that this was not an attempt to evade, but established a motive. The motive might not go forward to an overt act.

"You cannot say that omission is equivalent to commission," he said.

Defense Attorney Michael Ahern spoke up.

"You may get brass knuckles but cannot be charged from that with an attempt to strike," he illustrated.

"Well, I think I will hold the act constitutional," said the court.

Loses Plea Against Evidence.

Mr. Ahern then sought to get a ruling on blocks of evidence which he wanted stricken. The court refused to do this unless the attorney became specific. The motion for a directed verdict was then formally denied, also a motion to dismiss the case on the ground of the insufficiency of the entire evidence to prove the defendant guilty, as a matter of law.

Court will open this morning at 9:30 o'clock. At 10 o'clock the case of Philip D'Andrea, Capone bodyguard, who was arrested in court last Saturday with a gun in his possession, is scheduled. D'Andrea has been in jail without bond. His case may be disposed of this morning, but if it is likely to take any considerable time the court may put it over until Monday morning.

Details of yesterday's proceedings are given below.

EVIDENCE IS CONCLUDED

The morning session began with a dispute among counsel over the absence of Harry Belford, a bookmaker, who was still on the stand as a defense witness when court adjourned on Wednesday and who had not been cross-examined. However, Belford arrived after a minute or so and settled that problem.

Belford was cross examined by Assistant United States Attorney Dwight H. Green.

Q.—What is your business? A.—I haven't any now. I was a bookmaker at Hawthorne in 1925.

Q.—Where did you first meet the defendant? A.—At Colosimo's.

Q.—Did you discuss your testimony in this case at the Lexington hotel? A.—Yes, some one called me up and said Mr. Brown [Capone] wanted to see me.

Q.—Why didn't you tell him to tell Mr. Brown to come and see you? A.—I told him to tell Mr. Brown to call me himself if he wanted to see me.

Q.—Well, what happened? A.—Mr. Capone called me up and I went down there. He asked me if I remembered what he lost at Hawthorne.

Q.—And you remembered immediately? A.—Not exactly.

Another Bookmaker Quizzed.

Budd Gentry, another bookmaker, was called to the stand by the defense. Attorney Fink examined him.

Q.—Did you have any business transactions with the defendant in 1929? A.—Yes, at the Hialeah race track, at Miami.

Q.—Did you have a working interest in a book? A.—Yes, 5 per cent. We had a bankroll of $30,000, 60 per cent of which was put up by Mr. Capone and 40 per cent by Mr. Cohen.

Q.—Did you have any additional transactions with the defendant? A.—Yes, he bet on the horses.

Q.—Do you recall whether for the whole season he was winner or loser? A.—He lost about $110,000.

Q.—Did you ever see the defendant play poker? A.—Yes, stud poker.

Q.—How many were in the game? A.—About six.

How Capone Entertained.

Q.—Describe to the jury the manner in which the defendant entertained. A.—I used to go over there (Capone's Palm Island home) every night, except when he was sick. There were lots of people, but I can't recall their names. There were newspaper men and— (Mr. Green objected on the ground that the witness was not answering the question).

Q.—Well, were there big parties there? A.—After the Sharkey-Stribling fight there was a big party and they (Sharkey and Stribling) were there.

Q.—Did you ever see Tex Rickard there? A.—I've seen his wife there.

Q.—How much did you see the defendant lose in poker games?

MR. GREEN—I object, your honor, unless the witness was watching all the time.

THE COURT—This witness merely watched sporadic games. [To Mr. Fink]. What light could he throw on the entire enterprise of poker playing?

Cross-Examined by Green.

MR. FINK—I withdraw the question.

Prosecutor Green began the cross-examination.

Q.—What horses did the defendant bet $10,000 on? A.—Several.

Q.—How much was his first bet with you. A.—I think it was $1,500 or $2,000.

Q.—What were the names of the horses he bet on? A.—I don't remember the names.

THE COURT—Can you give the name of just one horse that this defendant bet on? A.—I have five or six in mind, but they just won't come out.

MR. GREEN—That's all.

Defense Calls Irey to Stand.

The defense then called Elmer L. Irey, chief of the intelligence unit of the bureau of internal revenue at Washington, who had been a government witness.

Q.—[By Mr. Fink]—Was the investigation you started against this defendant on Oct. 18, 1928, for criminal prosecution? A.—It was based on charges of fraud and we started the investigation to determine whether there should be criminal prosecution.

Q.—When this man Mattingly came [to see government tax officials] did he know you were making a criminal investigation against this defendant? A.—He knew we were investigating his tax liability.

Date of Capone Imprisonment.

Q.—Are you able to tell us about when the defendant was incarcerated in the Philadelphia prison and when he was released? A.—I am not.

Assistant United States Attorney Samuel G. Clawson objected on the ground of immateriality.

MR. FINK—Your honor, we thought the government would stipulate the dates. We regard the fact of his incarceration and the date of his release of great importance. He was released on March 17, 1930, and this letter written by this man Mattingly was dated March 23, and he set forth that he had been retained by the defendant and had inquired into his tax liability.

Mr. Clawson said that perhaps the dates could be agreed on.

Prosecutor Green was called to the witness stand by Mr. Fink.

Q.—Did you talk with Mattingly? A.—Yes.

Q.—Was Mattingly before the grand jury? A.—Yes.

Q.—Will you, as an officer of the government, let me have the Mattingly testimony before the grand jury?

THE COURT—That is not a proper question.

MR. FINK—Then I ask your honor to direct the United States attorney to produce Mattingly's grand jury testimony. [At this point the jury was excused from the courtroom.]

THE COURT—I have never heard of such a request. Why haven't you called Mattingly? In the first place, the district attorney hasn't any right to turn over grand jury testimony. That is never done in the federal courts.

MR. FINK—We wished to see whether Mattingly's testimony before the grand jury contradicted the statements he made in that letter.

MR. AHERN—Your honor, I move that you direct the United States to put Mattingly on the stand, so that we can cross examine him.

THE COURT—I will not do that.

Defense Verdict Plea Overruled.

MR. AHERN—I now ask the court to direct a verdict of not guilty for the defendant.

THE COURT—Your motion is overruled.

MR. AHERN—I move that a directed verdict of not guilty be entered with respect to all counts relating to the years prior to 1928.

Mr. Ahern argued that the statutes provide a three year statute of limitations in all internal revenue cases, with a proviso for a six year statute of limitations in cases containing an element of fraud. The six year statute could not apply, he said, for willful attempts to evade and defeat taxes, as alleged against Capone, could not be construed as attempts to defraud the United States.

Mr. Grossman replied that the Circuit Court of Appeals had settled this question in the cases of Ralph Capone, brother of the defendant, and State Representative Lawrence C. O'Brien, both convicted of tax frauds. Then the noon adjournment was taken.

Argue on Legal Points.

Legal arguments occupied the first hour of the afternoon session, the defense supporting its contentions for a directed verdict of not guilty and for the exclusion of the "evasion" counts.

The government fought these motions and at 3 p. m. Judge Wilkerson finally overruled the defense and set 3:30 for the beginning of the first closing argument by Assistant United States Attorney Grossman.

Mr. Fink then rested the defense case after having included in the record the stipulation that Capone served in the Philadelphia prison from May 18, 1929, to March 17, 1930, on a year's sentence for carrying a concealed weapon. The prosecution waived rebuttal evidence and Mr. Grossman began his argument to the jury, which is given in detail on this page.

BRUENING FACES LIFE BATTLE IN REICHSTAG TODAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 15.—The struggle between friends and enemies of the German republic grew more tense tonight. The final curtain is scheduled to go up in the reichstag tomorrow afternoon. The 577 members of the reichstag will vote on a series of motions directed against the Bruening government, including a straight motion of no confidence, a motion for the cessation of all reparations payments and others calling for the repeal of all emergency measures decreed by the government in an effort to prevent the collapse of Germany's financial structure.

The reichstag tonight was less confident than a couple of days ago that Chancellor Bruening would get a majority. Out of a fair number of deputies of both the government and opposition parties, opinion was equally divided as to the final outcome and all were sure that the majority would be very small either way.

The first real violence in the capital since the resignation of the first Bruening cabinet last week broke out today, when communists raided food stores in five parts of the city. They battled police sent to end the disorders. A policeman and five communists were wounded by gunfire and thirty persons were arrested. A goose and a few sausages were the total loot.

ARREST 7 DRUNKEN DRIVERS.

Benton Harbor, Mich., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—A drive on drunken drivers, started today by city and state officers, resulted in seven arrests. Fines of $50 were imposed at arraignments held immediately before Justice Elizabeth Forhan. John Davis, 30, Hartford, Mich., unable to furnish $200 bond, went to jail.

NORTHUP QUITS AS PROSECUTOR IN CANAL CASE

Rows with Judge Fisher, Who Will Hear Trial.

Beardsley, Henry Seyfarth, Jo Calvin Webb, and Leroy Mather.

They will require a short time, possibly two weeks, to familiarize themselves with the case, and will ask a continuance for that purpose from Judge Fisher on Monday, Mr. Swanson said. Thereafter, he said, the cases will be pushed as rapidly as possible.

Judge Fisher opened the proceedings in his court with the announcement that he had called a meeting of the judges of the Criminal court to discuss the sanitary district cases.

"As a result of this meeting certain conclusions were reached," he said. "First, that this case should take its ordinary course, without regard to what may have been said about it in the press. The other is that Mr. Northup should answer certain questions as a preliminary to the making of the assignment in the ordinary course."

The chief justice then read the prosecutor's statement of Monday, in which it was charged that secret conferences had been held "with high public officials" with a view to "wrecking the prosecution. The discussion between them was as follows:

JUDGE FISHER: Did you make that statement?

The Prosecutor Answers.

MR. NORTHUP: I made that statement, and I have information on which to base it.

JUDGE FISHER: Do you know of your own knowledge that there was such a meeting?

MR. NORTHUP: I was not there. I know I was informed, on what I regard as very creditable testimony, that there were such meetings, and I am convinced from the course of events and everything that was involved in it that there were meetings of some character with reference to this case. I cannot conceive that they were different from what I stated.

JUDGE FISHER—Why wasn't that brought to the attention of the court instead of the press?

MR. NORTHUP—I had very good reasons for not bringing it to the attention of the court. I would not have anticipated any relief whatever from the court on the matter.

JUDGE FISHER—If there is a plot, then of course it is contempt of court.

MR. NORTHUP—If there is a plot, it should be investigated by the grand jury, and I am willing to have the grand jury investigate it.

JUDGE FISHER—Why, then, didn't you present it to the grand jury instead of going to the press, when there is a case pending?

MR. NORTHUP—I took it as a case in which there is tremendous public interest, and a case in which I am charged with responsibility. I felt very keenly what had been done in the case in the past, and, knowing what had been done, I was justified in my opinion in giving out the information.

JUDGE FISHER—Do you think you have a right to try your case in the press?

MR. NORTHUP—I was not trying the case in the press.

JUDGE FISHER—Or to intimidate the court?

MR. NORTHUP—I was not trying to intimidate the court. I was simply trying to get a fair trial, nothing more and nothing less.

Asked About Statement.

JUDGE FISHER—What about the statement this morning?

MR. NORTHUP—What about it?

JUDGE FISHER—Did you make a statement that judges under any circumstances ought to refuse to try this case?

MR. NORTHUP—I did, where the stipulation was with reference to those judges such as it was to Judge David, who said that he had been acquainted with some of the defendants for twenty-five years, and that it would be a miscarriage of justice for him to hear the case.

JUDGE FISHER—But taking your statement of this morning in connection with your previous statement, can you escape the conclusion that this was a direct threat to coerce the judges not to try this case, or that they will not be able to extricate themselves from its sordid coils?"

"An Appeal to Conscience."

MR. NORTHUP—No, sir. It was an appeal to the conscience of the bench of Cook county, or to its public spirit.

JUDGE FISHER—Was any judge present at any of these meetings that you speak of?

MR. NORTHUP—Not that I know of.

JUDGE FISHER—Did any judge in any way participate, to your knowledge, in these things?

MR. NORTHUP—Judges don't have to participate in such meetings. The meetings are the same when they do not participate.

JUDGE FISHER—Have you any information that any judge of this court has in any way given out any hope, or any promise in connection with this?

MR. NORTHUP—Only what I have heard, and I am willing to have the matter aired before the grand jury. I will produce witnesses there, a number of them.

JUDGE FISHER—What have you heard?

MR. NORTHUP—That this case was not to get a fair trial, for one thing.

JUDGE FISHER—That is not my question. Whether you know of any judge . . .

Reports of "Influence."

MR. NORTHUP—I could not have heard of any judge, because the case has not been assigned, and nobody knows to what judge it will be assigned. I did hear that when the case was assigned, the influence and the efforts were going to operate, and that the defendants were given assurances that they could rely upon the manipulations.

JUDGE FISHER—Assurances from any judge?

MR. NORTHUP—No, no assurances from any judge. I perhaps may qualify that. There were certain statements referred to me—I did not refer to them in those articles—in which a judge's name was mentioned.

JUDGE FISHER—As having been conferred with?

MR. NORTHUP—No.

JUDGE FISHER—As having given promises?

MR. NORTHUP—I do not know. It might be considered given as a promise.

JUDGE FISHER—What is it?

MR. NORTHUP—The grand jury is the proper forum for that.

JUDGE FISHER—Do you refuse to answer here?

MR. NORTHUP—Yes.

Aims to Bring Case to Trial.

JUDGE FISHER—The problem before this court is now to have this case set for trial and tried. If I were to take at this time the action I think ought to be taken in connection with Mr. Northup's method of trying cases, that might be considered as another effort on the part of the courts to delay the trial. I will not at this time do any more about this.

MR. NORTHUP—I am willing that it be taken at any future time.

JUDGE FISHER—That is a possibility.

The judge then continued his criticism of the prosecutor's methods. He asserted that Mr. Northup's invocation of rule 15 of the Criminal court procedure, under which the prosecution took the trial of the first sanitary district indictments from the hands of Judge Charles A. Williams by an allegation that the judge's son had been a district pay roller, had caused a number of judges to refuse to sit in the Criminal court unless the rule was repealed.

Mr. Northup replied with the charge that Judge Fisher himself had circulated a round robin among the judges of the Circuit and Superior courts, seeking the repeal of the rule which gives the prosecutor a right to object to the judge assigned to try a case.

Judge Fisher announced on Wednesday that he would try all cases in which the defense waived a jury. The sanitary district defendants indicated before Judge David that they would do that.

"The case therefore will remain on my call," Judge Fisher said yesterday.

Mr. Northup whirled to State's Attorney Swanson, who stood beside him.

"Well, damn it," he exploded, "if he tries this case you can have my resignation now."

The state's attorney and his assistant then retired to Mr. Swanson's chambers for their conference.

FIND WALKER'S SECRETARY PUTS MILLION IN BANKS

Seabury Seeks Mayor's Aid for Committee Quiz.

New York, Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Transactions amounting to more than a million dollars have been reconstructed from the fifteen bank and brokerage accounts of Russell T. Sherwood, Mayor James J. Walker's missing business agent and personal accountant, by the Hofstadter legislative committee, it was learned today.

Sherwood is missing presumably out of New York state, and Samuel Seabury, counsel for the committee, charged recently that Mayor Walker is "keeping him out of the jurisdiction of the committee."

No one around the committee's headquarters would confirm that Sherwood's accounts show large sums banked and used for stock market trading, but it is known that the search for him has intensified and inquiries have even been made at the passport bureau in Washington to learn whether he has left the country.

Hunted Since August.

Subpoena servers have been looking for him since the first of August, when he went away on vacation at the time that Mayor Walker departed for Europe, and although he finally was located in a hotel at Atlantic City he disappeared again as soon as it was said that Mr. Seabury was going to try to force him to come back to the jurisdiction of the committee. Through friends of Sherwood, Mr. Seabury was informed soon after he disappeared the first time that he was unwilling to testify about the mayor's affairs while Mr. Walker was out of the country, but would be willing to do so as soon as the mayor returned. Unable to reach Sherwood in any way, Mr. Seabury announced when Mayor Walker came back that he was depending on the mayor to produce his agent. The mayor neither has produced nor made any comments on the situation, beyond remarking that he "didn't know anything about it."

It was learned today that the federal income tax authorities have added the name of Undersheriff Peter J. Curran to their list, now totaling 60, of Democratic politicians who banked huge sums in recent years, and are investigating to see whether they filed income tax returns commensurate with their bank deposits. Curran banked $662,000 since 1925. The total deposits of the six politicians in that period is well over $2,000,000.

Banks More Than Salary.

The day before Assistant Deputy Sheriff Joseph Fisherty came under the scrutiny of the tax men because it was shown at a public hearing that he had banked $260,000, which is far more than his salary in that period.

Sheriff Thomas M. Farley's deposits were considered by the investigators in making their inspection, although he was by far exceeded by his undersheriff. Farley extracted the greater part of $360,600 from his "good banks," he testified recently.

The other politicians whose income tax returns—or lack of them—are being investigated are Registrar James A. McQuade, who banked $510,600; City Clerk Michael A. Cruise, who banked $142,800, and Chief Clerk Harry C. Perry, who deposited $135,000.

U. S. JUDGE CENSURES COAST GUARD THAT FIRED ON BOAT CREW

Providence, R. I., Oct. 15.—(AP)—Federal Judge Ira Letts today asserted the coast guard "showed an indifference for the safety of human life" in firing on a motor boat in Mount Hope bay April 11 last. He said the court would not support "acts of lawlessness." The shooting resulted in the drowning of one member of the crew when the vessel sank following a fire.

Three survivors of the affair, Raymond Coleman and Leo P. Mosseau, both of Tiverton, R. I., and Warren Mosher of Fall River, Mass., were released with fines of only $1 costs when they pleaded guilty to a charge of attempting to import contraband liquor.

Counsel for the three men said they had "fished" the liquor from the Sakonnet river where it had been dumped by rum runners.

AUTO MAKERS TO CHASE OLD CARS INTO JUNK HEAP

Called Menace to Safety and Business.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—College boys will have to search pretty hard for 1910 model tin lizzies in the future, for the Automobile Chamber of Commerce and the Institute of Scrap Iron and Steel have reached an agreement to establish a chain of 300 junk yards across the continent.

More than 3,000,000 cars will be taken out of circulation yearly.

Henry R. Cobleigh, representative of the manufacturers' organization is in Pittsburgh attending the scrap dealers' convention in the William Penn hotel.

"This is a public spirited move as well as a selfish one for manufacturers in striving to get rid of the old wrecks," Cobleigh said. "In the first place, any car over seven years old is too far gone to be safe.

"Old cars, besides being eyesores, represent a huge waste in valuable parts and scrap steel in the chassis.

"People who go to a junk yard and buy a wreck for $20 are not responsible financially for the damage they do. They don't care if they bend a fender on their rattle traps, but they can't pay for the fenders they bend on other people's cars.

"Our selfish motive is this: We have found that some of the auto graybeards which are traded in on new cars never run. The dealer gives a big allowance and sells them to a junk dealer, who sells them to some one else to trade in on a new car.

"One old timer in St. Louis was traded in 14 different times before it was finally broken up. One out of three cars bought by junk dealers is sold again.

"Another reason is that careful drivers are going to give up car owning unless driving becomes safer. We want these cars junked so they can never run again. Parts may be salvaged, but the thing as a whole should never be a menace to safety."

Cobleigh is making a tour of the country sounding out opinion of dealers on the subject.

DIES IN HIS AUTOMOBILE.

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 15.—(AP)—Thomas Brickley, 60, traveling salesman of Hoopeston, died suddenly while riding in his automobile late yesterday, near Sadorus. Coroner William Strode ascribed death to angina pectoris. Brickley is survived by his widow and four children.

FOUR CONVICTED AS KIDNAPERS OF N. Y. BROKER

New York, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Four men were convicted tonight by a jury of kidnaping Charles M. Rosenthal, wealthy young broker, who was held for $50,000 ransom. A woman, whom the state accused of acting as a decoy for the quartet, was acquitted.

Those convicted were Nicholas Rutigliano, 33, hotel proprietor, reputed to have received the largest share of the ransom; Marcus Blumenthal, 28, salesman; Albert Sileo, and Theodore Adinolfi. Betty Stewart Green, octoroon, was acquitted.

The four were directed to appear Oct. 23 for sentencing.

Counsel for the four asserted that Rosenthal concocted a "diabolical plot" to have himself kidnaped in order to obtain funds he needed.

4 MURDERERS DIE IN CHAIR; FIFTH SAVED BY WRIT

Bell Spared by Judge on Eve of Execution.

off the lobby of the Chicago Athletic club. Judge Kelly personally delivered the staying order to Warden David Moneypenny less than an hour before Bell was to have died.

Late last night, when virtually all hope had been abandoned for Bell as well as for the slayers eventually electrocuted, two attorneys who had not before appeared in the case arranged to meet Judge Kelly at the loop club. They were Ralph J. Sharp and Joseph Nosek. With them were Mrs. Hazel Bell Richardson and Miss Myrtle Bell, sisters of the condemned man. They bore a petition alleging that Bell had become insane.

Under Supreme court decisions, following the famous case of Gene Geary, the first murderer saved from death by insanity petitions, it is mandatory upon judges to grant a writ where petitions are properly filed and drawn. A penalty is provided for refusal to obey this provision.

Judge Reads Petition.

Judge Kelly received the attorneys and the sisters of Bell in the reception rooms. Others, except for a newspaper reporter, were barred. Attorney Sharp presented the petition. The jurist read it slowly.

"Have you taken up this matter with Gov. Emmerson?" he asked. The lawyer replied negatively.

"Why wasn't this matter taken up with the governor?" persisted the judge. The attorneys gave no definite answer, but referred to the Supreme court rulings which compel judges to accept insanity petitions under regulations governing their filing. Judge Kelly inquired if the attorneys had the statutes with them, and when they said they carried no books on the subject, sent them to the law library in the county building. They procured the books on the matter.

Meantime, Judge Kelly tried to reach Benjamin Bachrach, public defender who represented Bell, Popescu, and Rocco at the trials. He failed. Judge Kelly, after reading the statutes and Supreme court decisions, signed the order, and summoned two deputies to rush it to the county jail. Fearful of delay, the judge then changed his mind and took the important writ to the jail himself. No date was set for the sanity hearing.

Not a Favor, Says Jurist.

Before the judge departed, Attorney Nosek "thanked him for the favor." Judge Kelly turned to him sharply. "This is not a favor," he returned. "It is a serious matter involving a man's life."

Up until the last minute the four men executed—Sullivan, Rocco, Jordan, and Popescu—who were together in one death cell, tried to amuse themselves and forget their fate by playing cards. Occasionally they varied the program with a phonograph which a jailer played for them. None of them showed deep signs of fear, and even Bell, alone in another death cell, who had been in a nervous state all day, braced up as the fateful hour approached. Not once did he lose hope of a reprieve. When the writ sparing his life was delivered and news of it given him Bell smiled, then bent over on his chair.

Convicted of Café Murder.

Sullivan and Bell were convicted of slaying Christ Patras, manager of the Villa Rica café, at 2572 North Clark street, on June 16, 1930. A jury fixed their punishment at death. Earlier Bell offered to turn state's evidence and testify against his confederate and this offer made Sullivan his bitter enemy.

Again Bell "peached" when he told Warden Moneypenny of a plot to break jail by Sullivan, William Lenhardt, since executed, and other desperadoes. And again Sullivan said he would be willing to die if Bell were taken to the chair first. Until the writ saved Bell last night it appeared that Sullivan would have his wish.

Because of Bell's help in thwarting the jail break Warden Moneypenny recently went to Springfield and urged the pardon board to recommend clemency for Bell to the governor. The plea was refused and the governor stood by the pardon board's decision.

Sullivan never forgave Bell for his stool pigeon tactics. Sullivan, as late as last night, shielded his real identity, admitting, however, that Sullivan was an alias. Several hours before he died dispatches from Manchester, N. H., identified Sullivan as being in reality Mark J. Davis, the "black sheep" of a good family. His record included prison sentences in New Hampshire and Massachusetts.

Jordan Desperate Killer.

Of the slayers executed Jordan was undoubtedly the most desperate. It was on the evening of April 30, in crowded Michigan avenue at Randolph street, that Policeman Anthony Ruthy, who figured in the successful Lingle prosecution, was called upon by a private detective to arrest Jordan. Jordan whirled on Ruthy and shot him down. Policeman Patrick Durkin of the mounted division, tried to head the murderer off, but was also shot and fatally wounded. A wild chase in loop streets followed, and ended when Ernest Schaeublin, a clerk, made a flying tackle and brought down the killer.

Jordan refused to admit the killings until questioned by Mayor Cermak. Then he confessed. He was tried speedily and sentenced to the chair.

Doomed on Guilty Plea.

The crime for which young Rocco and Popescu died was the killing of Courtney R. Merrill, vice president of the Union State bank of South Chicago. They stabbed him in an attempted robbery near the bank last Oct. 28. Both pleaded guilty before Judge Philip Finnegan, hoping their plea would win them life sentence. Instead, Judge Finnegan sentenced them to the death chair.

The youths and Bell were represented by Public Defender Bachrach. Bachrach expended every legal aid possible to save his public clients, but declined to go beyond what he considered his duty as public defender.

Fourteen Electrocutions in County.

Including this morning's executions, fourteen murderers have died in the electric chair here since the chair was substituted for the gallows in Illinois four years ago.

Never before, however, were more than two men electrocuted in one day. Among the outstanding multiple executions in the county since the first man, John Stone, was hanged in 1840 were those of the Haymarket rioters and the car barn bandits.

On Nov. 11, 1887, the Haymarket rioters were hanged. They were Albert Parsons, August Spies, George Engel, and Adolph Fischer. The car barn bandies who were hanged were Peter Niedmeyer, Gustave Marx, and Harvey Van Dine.

EDITOR TELLS JURY HOW JOCELYN LEE INVADED HIS HOME

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Twelve women jurors today heard Ivan St. John, editor of a film magazine, testify to an attack launched upon his premises, himself, and a policeman by Jocelyn Lee, red headed, 115 pound actress. Miss Lee was on trial before Judge Clarence Kincaid on charges of disturbing the peace.

"She broke sixteen windows in my house last May 24 when I wouldn't let her in where her divorced husband, Luther Reed, was dining as my guest," St. John said. "I'm 40 years old and have been around, but I never heard anything like the language she used. I gathered she was trying to tell me I was no gentleman."

The judge ordered St. John to repeat some of Miss Lee's words and with some reluctance the witness did so. It was at this point the jury women gasped.

SISTER REVEALS STRANGE LIFE OF HOARDER OF GEMS

A verdict of murder by unknown persons was returned by a coroner's jury yesterday in their inquiry into the death of John Ridderhof, 67 years old, diamond hoarder and eccentric of Oak Forest. Ridderhof was shot to death by three bandits on Wednesday.

Ridderhof's death brought his sister, Mrs. F. J. Sweet, of Kalamazoo, Mich., to his shack at 159th street and Cicero avenue in Oak Forest. She said that she had not seen her brother for thirty-nine years. Their father had been a preacher, Mrs. Sweet said, and Ridderhof had been turned out of the home early in life. He was the "black sheep" of the family, she declared.

Ridderhof had valued his unset diamonds at $100,000 in letters written to Mrs. Sweet. He lived in constant fear that robbers would kill him, and carried a .45 caliber pistol.

The police found twenty-nine valuable violins collected by the recluse on his travels through the world. A dust covered Egyptian lute and an ancient piano were discovered.

NOW is the Time to TRADE

Get the Biggest Allowance for Your Present Car on a New HUDSON 8 or ESSEX Super-Six TODAY

GET A NEW CAR AND BE READY FOR WINTER

Generous Allowances on All Makes

During 1931 there has been such a steadily increasing demand for previous Hudson and Essex models—and the cost of reconditioning such cars has been so low due to their rugged construction and built-in long life—that these models are now bringing higher prices. Consequently, these factors and our big Fall Appraisal Campaign permit us to give extraordinary, liberal trade-in allowances. For example—

HUDSON

1928—We are allowing as high as $410 on some models of the 1928 series.

1929—Now in big demand. Our trade-in price as high as $700 on some body types.

1930—Some cars in the 1930 series are being taken in as high as $815.

ESSEX

1928—On many cars we are giving as high as $285 on trade-ins.

1929—Our price is as high as $437 allowance on a new Hudson or Essex.

1930—Trade-in allowance as high as $551 on some body styles.

Get Our Appraisal TODAY!

You'll Never Get Back the Money You Spend Fixing up your Present Car. It's worth more NOW!

Add up what you will have to spend for new tires, battery work, valve grinding, motor overhauling and the many other repairs you will have to make to your present car to put it in shape for winter driving. Then take a good look at the big allowances we are making during our Fall Appraisal Campaign. Let that be your most convincing proof that NOW—right today—is the time to trade in your present car on a new Hudson Eight or Essex Super-Six that you know will serve you unfailingly and economically this winter and for winters to come.

Your present car is worth more right now, even in its present shape than it ever will be again. Next spring, even with the money you put into it this Fall, it will be worth perhaps several hundred dollars less than today. Even a week will lower its value. So, again we repeat—NOW is the time to TRADE!

The list at the left shows an example of the generous allowances we are making. But your car, regardless of make or model you own, will also command a high allowance. We just haven't room to list them all here. Come in to-day and let us appraise your car. Let us show you how easily you can get a 1931 model right off the showroom floor at a big saving. This offer includes the New De Luxe body styles, just introduced this Fall, as well as standard models. And at slight additional cost you can have Selective Free Wheeling and the Hudson-Essex "Startix" which automatically starts your motor and restarts it anytime, anywhere should it stall for any reason.

HUDSON ESSEX

Don't put it off. This offer is limited. Naturally, we can not continue to make allowances like these very long. You may be too late if you delay. Don't let another day go by without seeing these great cars and learning how inexpensive it is to have reliable transportation this winter.

OUTFITTERS TO GENTLEMEN

100 SOUTH MICHIGAN AVENUE

8 U. S. EDITORS WIN NICHES IN HALL OF FAME

Dickens Also Honored by Illinois Body.

Urbana, Ill., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Nine journalists of national and international fame were added to the editors' hall of fame at the University of Illinois at a meeting of the committee of the hall of fame today. The sixth annual meeting of the Illinois Press association opened this afternoon with approximately 300 editors from all sections of the state in attendance.

Seven of the nine editors elected to the hall of fame are in the general section, while two are in the state section.

Pulitzer Among Them.

Those to be included in the general section of the hall and who later will be honored when busts of them are placed in the hall include:

William Rockhill Nelson, founder and editor of the Kansas City Star; Joseph Pulitzer, editor and publisher of the New York World and St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Henry W. Grady, southern journalist and one time editor of the Atlanta Constitution; Samuel Bowles II., editor of the Springfield, Mass., Republican; Charles Dickens, reporter and editor, London True Sun, Mirror, Chronicle, Miscellany, Daily News.

Charles A. Dana, Chicago Republican and New York Sun, father of human interest story, and Harvey W. Scott, son of Illinois, who became editor of the Portland Oregonian.

White and Field Honored.

Those chosen for the state section are Horace V. White, Chicago Tribune and New York Evening Post, and Eugene Field, reporter and special writer for the Chicago Daily News, also St. Louis, Kansas City and Denver newspapers.

Past presidents of the press association are to be honored with their names on a bronze tablet, which will be placed in the hall of fame. Space will be provided on the tablet for additional names of presidents.

Tribune Wins Honors.

The Chicago Tribune was awarded first place honors in the metropolitan section in the annual daily newspaper contest held in connection with the Illinois Press association meeting. The contest was conducted by the school of journalism at the university at the request of the association. Second place honors went to the Chicago Daily News and third place to the Chicago Herald and Examiner.

In the section for dailies published in cities between 10,000 and 20,000 population first place went to the Dixon Telegraph, second to the Macomb Journal, and third to the Edwardsville Intelligencer.

In the 20,000 to 50,000 population class the Moline Dispatch was awarded first place, Danville Commercial News second, and the Champaign News-Gazette third. In the 50,000 to 110,000 population class the Rockford Register-Republic received first place honors, the Peoria Journal second, and the Decatur Herald third.

MASONIC CHIEFS ARE INSTALLED BY EMMERSON

Gov. Emmerson, past grandmaster of the Illinois Grand lodge of the Masons, installed the new officers of the organization yesterday in the Masonic temple at 32 West Randolph street. The installation ceremony concluded a three day annual meeting attended by 1,300 delegates from all parts of the state. Dr. G. Haven Stephens of Danville was installed as grand master, succeeding Edward C. Mullen of Chicago. Mr. Mullen was elected grand treasurer.

Other new officers are: William H. Barley, Joliet, deputy grand master; Grover C. Niemeyer, Chicago, senior grand warden; Hal C. McLoud, Springfield, junior grand warden; Richard C. Davenport, Harrisburg, reelected grand secretary; A. L. Honn, Martinsville, grand chaplain; Walter C. Lindley, Danville, grand orator, and Roy Adams, Harrisburg, deputy grand secretary.

REPORT HOOVER PICKS STECK FOR TARIFF BOARD

Washington, D. C. Oct. 15.—(AP)—Former Senator Daniel Steck of Iowa, was reported in authoritative circles today to have been selected by President Hoover as a member of the tariff commission.

Steck, a Democrat, left the senate last March after his defeat by Representative L. J. Dickinson, a Republican. He helped to frame the Smoot-Hawley act which the tariff commission administers.

There is now one vacancy on the tariff commission as a result of the death of Alfred P. Dennis, of Maryland, a Democrat.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

LIGHTENING THE REAL ESTATE TAX LOAD.

Organizations of real estate men have given support to various proposals to create new forms of taxation in Illinois. The thought has been that real property bears a disproportionate share of the costs of government and that relief can come only through transferring a portion of the burden to other forms of wealth, such as intangibles and luxuries.

These organizations are composed of men with substantial reputations for hard-headedness, and to find them following this line is therefore somewhat unexpected. The politicians, of course, want new forms of taxation. That is the way to get more money to spend for the strengthening of political machines. But the owners of real estate have nothing to gain by this process. Real estate is today the victim of overtaxation, but how can it possibly benefit real estate to victimize other forms of wealth in like measure?

The basic evil in the situation is excessive spending. That is why taxes are high. The only means by which taxes can be reduced is a slash in expenditures. Until that has been brought about it is a mistake in tactics, if nothing else, to discuss a redistribution of the tax burden, for the spenders will make it their business to pervert any such redistribution into an increase in the total tax bill of the state. Real estate will get little or no relief, but the tax spenders will get more money to squander.

One of the strangest aspects of the times is the fact that the great majority of individuals and business houses have made substantial reductions in their expenditures, the result either of the lowered costs or of lowered income, but governments are appropriating at the old pace and some of them are spending more than ever before. The drain is heavy and is the principal cause of the state of depression in which we find ourselves. This is no time to let attention wander. The necessary preliminary to any solution of the tax problem in Illinois must be a focusing of attention upon expenditures. When a 30 or 40 per cent reduction in the budgets has become an accomplished fact real estate can, if necessary, continue to carry its present share of the load without being rendered valueless in the process.

Discussion of theoretical equity in the distribution of the tax load is diverting in the precise sense of the word. It diverts attention from the fact of first importance: the excessive costs of government. It gives the spenders what they want above everything else: an alibi for their failure to reduce costs to a minimum and a means of obtaining additional revenue.

BARGAINING FOR REDUCTION.

The American people are not normally lacking in common sense, and if they exercise it in our foreign affairs they will consider certain factors in the problem of armament reduction. They will consider that the pressure on foreign governments for reduction of expenditure is heavier by far than upon ours. They will then ask themselves why it should be their government, rather than those of Europe, that is most active and insistent upon bringing reduction about, and why, as recent experience in international diplomacy warns them, we are to be expected to pay in various concessions for benefits more urgently needed by Europe than by the United States. They will, therefore, be disposed, we hope and believe, to scrutinize sharply any bargaining that American zeal engages in at the coming conference and they will refuse what their judgment regards as unfair or improvident commitments.

It seems to us fanciful to expect European governments to make any reductions in armament which their own critical financial condition has not forced upon them or may reasonably be expected to force upon them in due time. Our intervention is hardly needed to impress them with the gravity of their own situation, and common sense should warn us that it can only serve them as an opportunity to obtain from us unnecessary inducements for agreements upon armament reduction which their own urgent needs compel. That these concessions will be forthcoming their experience with our recent diplomacy and their knowledge of its special weaknesses must encourage them to expect.

Report indicates that they are not to be merely concessions of naval strength. It is said the President intends to use extension of the moratorium and debt revision as leverage to force or induce reductions of armament expenditure at the February conference. If so he has virtually repudiated the American contention that the financial obligations of our debtors are not to be modified by political considerations, and are just plain debts. To use debt revision as an inducement to European nations to reduce armies and navies is politics, and it represents a complete departure from the American doctrine of freedom from political entanglements. It necessarily implies the use of financial power for political ends and the assumption of political responsibilities most delicate and far-reaching. It would be thrusting the United States up to its neck in European politics and inextricably fixing it there. Mr. Hoover may be ready to pay this price for such benefits as he hopes to obtain from armament reduction. But we are confident the American people are not.

Mr. Henning says Mr. Hoover's friends feel that obtaining reduction in armament expenditure will put a feather in Mr. Hoover's cap. The much advertised diplomatic victory in winning parity is another feather. It is a rather bedraggled feather and as a diplomatic victory recalls the celebrated remark of King Pyrrhus. By this victory we induced Great Britain to promise not to do what she cannot do, in exchange for our promise not to do what we can do. Thus we avoided a race in which our victory was certain by getting a pledge we did not need in exchange for a pledge we had no need to give. The result of this unique diplomacy is a "parity" which does not exist and which our government will not permit to come into existence.

If our diplomacy is bent upon insuring the naval superiority of Great Britain and the continuing reduction of our relative naval strength our diplomacy has won us victories, but can we afford any more of them?

YALE AND CALIFORNIA HERE.

Football here Saturday presents two interesting games, teams coming from the Atlantic and the Pacific seaboards, Yale to play Chicago and California to play Northwestern. The visit of the Yale team is a deserved compliment to Stagg of Chicago, a great Yale athlete in his college days and a great athletic director and coach in forty years of University of Chicago sports. The Yale team hopes to honor the coach and defeat his team, which hopes to accept the honor and refuse the small end of the score. However that may prove to be, the game will be one of the high spots of a season which has opened with no sign of diminished interest in the great American college show.

It is the southern [Los Angeles] branch of the University of California which is coming from the west coast to bring the midwest another display of Pacific football, which is usually good, frequently too good. These Californians are not offered as the best of far western teams, but they are good, and Northwestern has not booked an eleven of inferior power for this spot on the schedule usually taken for a breathing spell. Northwestern defeated the strong Nebraska team for its opening game and followed that with the no score game with Notre Dame in the rain last Saturday. California gives it the last preliminary to the opening of its conference schedule. Coach Hanley has put his players through a robust hardening process for their championship dash.

Chicago has proved unexpected toughness and is neither Yale's nor any other team's setup. Northwestern is one of the best. Intersectional football will be flying all its colors here Saturday.

MR. WELLS ARRIVES.

Mr. H. G. Wells has landed on our shores to do some lecturing. He was reported on leaving the ship as being in an amiable mood, apparently reconciled to the worst and rather interested in seeing it come. The collapse of western civilization, being easily predictable from all known facts of the last two thousand years, would make any first class writing man eager for the assignment to cover it. It is to be gathered that Mr. Wells looks for it to come down like a rotten building, with horrific sounds and a great cloud of dust. It probably will be in the news reels as a spectacle, and no customers.

Mr. Wells apparently thinks that the best view can be obtained from the United States, but we doubt it. Very likely any place near the Bank of England, the parliament building or the Tower would offer the observer a better spectacle. If just a few more shorings give way in Great Britain Mr. Wells won't have any place to write home and will, if he's a sensible man, take out his first citizenship papers here as a fresh start in life.

Mr. Wells' great genius lies in his ability to perceive with the scientific and realistic mind what has happened to the human race and to conclude from the experience and the facts that something entirely different is bound to result from the same causes within the next fortnight. This distinguishes him among lesser people who reach the same conclusions but begin by denying that what has happened did happen. That makes it easy to know that it never will happen again, but it is not genius. Mr. Wells concedes cause and effect to the past, and only a great man beginning thus could deny his rules to the future.

It is to be hoped that his absence from England does not make the British catastrophe worse. Probably nothing could.

The Other Side

AN EX-BREWER'S VIEWPOINT.

[Rock Island Argus.]

The wets are being told by one of their own number, Conrad H. Mann, formerly a director of the United States Brewing association, who is at present the president of the Kansas City Chamber of Commerce and is serving as a representative in Missouri of Mr. Hoover's unemployment committee, that legalized beer, which Mr. Mann favors, will not produce employment for a million men or a billion dollars in revenue for the government. While he thinks the country is wet in sentiment, he declares that the weak spot in the argument of those who are advocating the return of beer is that no distribution system, similar to the old saloons, is provided. To produce employment and revenue there must be a big outlet for the beer.

In other words, the wets must provide an adequate substitute for the saloon system of other days. Mr. Mann frankly does not believe that if beer ever does come back it will make its advent via the saloon bar. His statements have won the praise of William Allen White, Kansas editor, who says Mr. Mann has spoken more wisely about prohibition than any one has for six years past. Some leading wets, while denouncing the saloon, have offered nothing in its place. Unless something of an adequate character is offered as a substitute, Mr. Mann is unable to see that the return of beer would bring about the desired economic results.

BABIES AND BOILS.

To prevent epidemics of boils in a maternity hospital, Dr. O. R. Chadwell sees that the following plan is carried out, with no change in any detail:

Every newborn babe is washed with soap and water, just as has always been done. It is at this point the new treatment is begun. A 5 per cent ammoniated mercury ointment is thoroughly rubbed into the skin following the bath. Every skin area must be reached and the rubbing must be thorough.

A lick and a promise rubbing will not do. The next day the baby, instead of being washed with soap and water, is well rubbed with sterilized cottonseed oil. Other oils have been tried, but none equals this one. Thereafter, anointing with cottonseed oil takes the place of the daily bath. The folds of the skin and the hip regions should be given special attention by the anointer. Never, after that first bath given in the first hour of life, is the baby given a bath with soap and water—at least, as long as the physician is bossing.

This plan was inaugurated in the midst of an epidemic of boils in a maternity hospital. The method of cure they used was as follows: Rub 5 per cent ammoniated mercury ointment into the blisters and boils twice daily. Anoint the remainder of the baby's skin with a 3 per cent ammoniated mercury ointment once daily for three days. After that period use a daily inunction of sterile cottonseed oil. Do not wash the baby with soap and water. Keep all infected babies away from others. In this case a week or ten days served to bring the epidemic under control.

Dr. Chadwell says this method has been in rather general use in the hospitals of New England for more than six years. During that time no hospital in which it has been used has had an outbreak of impetigo. From the hospitals the method is gradually spreading to New England homes. No baby on whom this method has been properly used has developed this form of impetigo in six years, and not because the New England skin is better than any other. The meat of the situation is in the care given.

Dr. Chadwell advises that babies be greased rather than washed. His authority stops when the baby leaves the hospital, but he is doing his best to piece out authority with moral suasion.

The obstacles he must overcome are several. The laundresses object to the mercury and grease on the clothes. Mothers don't like the cottonseed oil odor. He permits the substitution of rose water ointment for cottonseed oil on those occasions, such as exhibitions and shows, when "baby is to be smelt." Another objection arises from the interference with custom. The baby's bath is pretty well "dug in." It interferes with dusting. Many women like to use dusting powders on babies. Dr. Chadwell thinks getting away from dusting powders is of great advantage.

GIRL'S AGE AND WEIGHT.

B. P. writes:

1. I am a girl 15 years old, 5 feet 4 inches tall. What should I weigh?

2. What would you advise for freckles? I have had them for six years and want to get rid of them.

3. I have had eczema, mostly in the winter, for nine years. As soon as spring comes it disappears. Two years ago I did not have any at all. I was on a farm, was sunburned and blistered. This was the first time I ever had it in the summer time. What is the cause and what would you advise?

REPLY.

1. The average weight of girls your height and age is 119. Your nationality, your build, and the size of your bones have something to do with fixing the weight proper for you.

2. Nothing. As a rule, little can be done in the way of removing freckles, and the end is worse than the beginning.

3. The only promising plan is to find the cause and avoid it. In your case the cause has seemed to be some exposure incident to winter.

PROCEDURE OUTLINED.

Chicago, Oct. 10.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—In November, 1927, I sold two vacant lots to a party on a simple contract. He paid $250 at the time and was to pay the balance, $750, in November, 1929. He paid interest for the first six months and has not paid anything since. Do I have to go into court with some legal procedure? Or will a final notice to him be enough? He was to receive a deed when he completed his contract, which he has failed to do. One attorney said I would and another said he had forfeited all of his interest.

Subsection 2 of section 5 of the forcible detainer act authorizes a suit at law for possession "when a vendee, having obtained possession under a written or verbal agreement to purchase lands or tenements and having failed to comply with his agreement, withholds possession after demand in writing." While in a mortgage foreclosure the defendant is sometimes permitted to enjoy the use of the premises during the fifteen months allowed for redemption from the foreclosure sale, there is no such delay on these contract cases. The foregoing relates only to possession. To clear the title, the vendor may have to file a bill in equity if the contract has been recorded, and the court, before entering a decree, may order the refund of an equitable portion of the purchase money. If the contract has not been recorded, the vendor may resell clear of the vendee's equity.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

EVERYTHING is all set for the great Yorktown celebration next week. Yorktown is where Lord Cornwallis, the commander of the British army, got a kick in the pants when the ragged Continentals and the French soldats jumped on him and finished up the Revolutionary war. They've been mighty careful down in Yorktown about not having anything in the celebration that would hurt anybody's feelings. It's a pretty ticklish proposition, because in whoopeeing about the victory at Yorktown, of course, there had to be some little mention about who got licked. But the committee found out after awhile that the British wouldn't be sore about our bringing up the Revolutionary war now because they never heard of it. They never know they're licked until about two hundred years afterwards, and then it's too late to do anything about it. Since the Yorktown idea of a celebration was started the British have become quite interested in the Revolutionary war, and the London Times sent a special correspondent over to get an interview with George Washington and ask him what the silly row was all about. And now that they know we don't belong to them any more they don't seem to care a bit. If we did it would be just so many more people to carry on the dole, and they've got plenty enough as it is. And, besides, our reformers would be after them to make them stop drinking sherry, and, by Jove! what's the use of a country if you can't drink a glass of sherry in it? What, what!

REMEMBERING.

What do I like remembering?—
The day that the gypsy read
Our palms, and the dream we wanted
Once when we needed bread.

A song that a fiddler gave us,
A tea table set for two,
Dark rain against the windows,
Firelight, and dusk, and you.

Summer dies very softly,
Late tide and the charm is past,
Love is like that, you told me—
But it's sweet while the roses last!

And did Al ever play marbles for keeps? Now that this is started we might as well have it all, horrible though it may be.

A MAN DOWN IN FLORIDA threw away clothes, food, guns, and fish lines and lived in the wilderness for a year. He said he had proved that man could bum a living off nature without any of civilization's devices. And right in the next breath he says all he took were his spectacles and his false teeth. But what are those things but civilization's greatest contributions to the more or less human race? As Owen Meredith almost said in "Lucile":

We may live without poetry, music, and art;
We may live without conscience, and live without heart;
We may live without friends, live without signing checks;
But we simply can't live without false teeth and specs.

THEY'VE BEEN DIGGING HIS GRAVE FOR CENTURIES

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

OCTOBER 16, 1915.

CHICAGO.—James H. Phillips, 23 years old, proprietor of a jewelry store at 951 West Madison street, was murdered in his flat in the Buckley apartments at 1352 West Madison street. His body was found at the foot of the stairs leading to the fifth floor. A bullet had bored its way into his side above the heart. His rooms on the fifth floor gave evidence of a struggle. A woman's black velvet hat and short black coat lay on the bed. Phillips was a bachelor.

LONDON.—Great Britain has declared war on Bulgaria. The Bulgarian government was notified that a state of war exists between the countries as from 10 p. m. The Austro-German invasion of Serbia continues, but every foot is being contested bitterly by the Serbian soldiers, backed up by the British and French gunners. Austrian troops have stormed and taken the Serbian positions at Brino, Brdo, Cunak, and Slazard, the defenders suffering heavy losses, according to the German war office. The invaders also have captured Pozarevac, about 12 miles southeast of Semendria.

CHICAGO.—Citing various sections of United States statutes which prohibit "the transportation of explosives" on steamers carrying passengers, Mrs. Sarah Lund filed suit for $50,000 against the Cunard Steamship company, W. T. Turner, captain of the Lusitania, and Dudley Field Malone, collector of the port of New York. The suit was filed in the federal court in Chicago. Mrs. Lund's husband and father perished when the Lusitania was torpedoed by a German submarine last May. She charges that the Lusitania carried sections of submarines intended for reassembling and use in the European war and she fixes the amount of ammunition carried as upward of 5,471 cases of cartridges and ammunition, gun cotton and other explosives.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

OCTOBER 16, 1901.

CHICAGO.—Sir Thomas Lipton, the Irish sportsman, was the guest of the Chicago Athletic association at a banquet. Undaunted by two defeats in attempts to lift the America cup, he told the 300 guests that he will build a Shamrock III. in another attempt.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — Disorder marked the session of the opening day of the grand lodge convention of the Knights of Pythias. Harry Moore, editor of the Bulletin, which makes charges against Vice Chancellor Charles H. Cushing, and Henry P. Caldwell, keeper of records and seals, was expelled from the hall and action was taken looking to formal charges being made against all who were implicated with him in the affair.

NEW YORK.—The duke of Alba, one of the highest grandees of Spain, and in social and titular rank the leader of Spanish society, died from heart disease at his apartments in the Holland house. He was 52 years old and came here as the guest of Sir Thomas Lipton to witness the recent race between Columbia and Shamrock II.

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

OCTOBER 16, 1881.

WASHINGTON.—"If Guiteau is not crazy," says George Scoville, Chicago attorney, "he ought to be hanged." Mr. Scoville, for a man who makes no claim to familiarity with practice in criminal cases, is exceedingly adroit. Washington lawyers say he is managing Guiteau's case with a great deal of ability and already has succeeded in making a great many think that possibly he may be able to find twelve men to agree that the poor wretch is insane.

DUBLIN.—John Dillon, M. P., was arrested charged with treasonable practices and lodged in Kilmainham jail. The rearrest of Dillon caused the most intense feeling. A further warrant was served on Parnell, charging him with being reasonably suspected of having since Sept. 30 been guilty of treasonable practices as a principal. Instructions have been telegraphed to every military station in Ireland enjoining vigilance and the flying columns are held in readiness for immediate movement. The number of troops in Dublin is 5,000.

NORWAY'S CLAIM IN GREENLAND.

Chicago, Oct. 14.—Permit me to correct some erroneous impressions created by the story of your Copenhagen correspondent, John Ahl-Nielsen, which appeared in THE TRIBUNE on Oct. 5, regarding the controversy between Norway and Denmark over Norway's occupation of East Greenland, now known as Eric the Red's Land. The fundamental error in your correspondent's story is the assumption of Danish sovereignty over all of Greenland. Norway, whose economic interests in Greenland, especially in East Greenland, are paramount, has never recognized Denmark's sovereignty over more than the Eskimo districts in the southern and western coastal regions. The remainder of this vast arctic island has always been regarded by Norway as a no man's land.

Norway's formal occupation of East Greenland at this time is a legal strategic move. It was effected for the purpose of laying a substantial foundation upon which the dispute could be threshed out before The Hague tribunal. Topographically the coast may be "a strip of rock and ice," but the region abounds in seal, musk oxen, whales and other marine life. From 100 to 300 Norwegian ships are annually engaged in these hunting enterprises. Repeated threatened interference by the Danes has made it imperative for Norwegian economic interests to have the question of sovereignty permanently settled. This would have been difficult, if not impossible, if Denmark had been permitted to appear in court on the assumption of enjoying complete sovereignty.

Norwegians, not Danes, were indisputably the discoverers and first European colonizers of Greenland. The land was first sighted by the Norwegian Viking, Gunnbjorn Ulvsson, in 974. In 982 Eric the Red, a native of Jaeren, Norway, and father of the renowned explorer, Leif Ericson, established the first permanent settlement on the southwest coast. Until 1261 this Norse colonial outpost, which at its peak probably numbered 5,000 white inhabitants, was politically an independent republic. In that year, at the request of the colonists, the settlement became a crown possession of Norway. Greenland, Iceland, and the Faroe islands remained Norwegian colonies until 1814.

To understand how these Norwegian colonies got into Denmark's possession it is necessary to glance briefly at Norway's history. By the death of Haakon V. in 1319 the ancient royal line [Haarfagre dynasty] on the male side became extinct. The event resulted in a series of fateful dynastic changes which in 1397 terminated in a political union of Norway, Denmark, and Sweden under the terms of the treaty of Kalmar. Each nation, however, retained its identity and local autonomy. Sweden soon withdrew from this union, but Norway, from considerations of loyalty, remained together with Denmark. This Danish-Norwegian union lasted until 1814.

It is an error to infer that the Kalmar union made Norway a country ruled by Denmark. Norway during the union period had its own laws and a separate administration. The arrangement was a personal union in which the kings of Denmark also were kings of Norway. All state documents and official acts indicate unequivocally that the kings of Denmark regarded Norway, including her overseas colonies, as a realm distinct from Denmark. Until 1814, when the union was dissolved, the colonized portion of Greenland was unquestionably a Norwegian possession.

In the negotiations in 1814 regarding the termination of the union, which were conducted by Swedes and Danes under the terms of the treaty of Kiel, the Danish negotiator, Bourke, by a clever ruse made the Swedish negotiator, Welterstedt, believe that Greenland, Iceland, and the Faroe islands never had been possessions of the kingdom of Norway. This gave Denmark the coveted opportunity to appropriate them. The error was discovered too late and despite strong protest Denmark declined to make restitution. Norway was not officially represented in the negotiations and has never recognized the validity of the treaty of Kiel.

The ultimate fate of the early Norwegian Greenland colony is a tragic mystery of colonial expansion in the arctic. The colony seems to have lasted till about the fifteenth century, after which all is silence. In 1721 the Rev. Hans Egede, a Norwegian missionary, went to Greenland and laid the foundation of the modern colonial work among the Eskimos. This is the colony taken by the Danes in 1814.

It is not restitution of that colony that Norway asks. Title to it has long ago been relinquished. Norway never claimed more territory in Greenland than the colonized southern and western coastal regions. That this also has been Denmark's understanding is clearly shown by the fact that during the last few years Denmark has been seeking the consent of the powers to extend her sovereignty over the entire land. The remainder of Greenland Norway has always regarded as a no man's land, and on that understanding has since the seventeenth century conducted extensive whaling, sealing and hunting enterprises along the East Greenland coast far from the southern and western colony now administered by the Danes. Occupation by Norway of East Greenland was deemed necessary to prevent the enforcement of Danish economic monopoly measures pending adjudication of the question of blanket sovereignty.

HUNGER TURNS 3 LITTLE PUPILS INTO BEGGARS

Children's Fund to Aid in Cases Like This.

Cash contributions to the Hungry School Children's Fund will be received at the following Tribune offices: 1 South Dearborn street, 1101 East 63d street, and 4152 West Madison street.

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

Children of at least one family on the near west side eat no breakfast unless they beg for it from door to door. This state of affairs was revealed to teachers at the Kosciuszko school by the mother of the unfortunate youngsters. Circumstances forced Mrs. G—— at last to appeal at the school for lunch for her children, and the whole miserable story of their poverty came out bit by bit.

Three of the G—— youngsters are pupils at the Kosciuscko school. There are two others, a boy 18, out of work, and a baby a year old. Their father, a wood finisher, earned $25 a week when he had work, but he has not been employed for a year and a half.

Just Coffee and Bread.

For months, Mrs. G—— told the teacher to whom she related the pathetic tale, they have not eaten a square meal. Six dollars a week from one charitable agency and some groceries from the county have proved wholly inadequate to keep them nourished. The only food the children get from morning to night, day after day, has been coffee, boiled and reboiled, and stale bread, spread with lard.

In a neighborhood composed largely of families nearly as poor as they are themselves, the G—— children have fallen into the habit of visiting various homes and asking for something to eat in the mornings.

No funds have been on hand to date to meet such emergencies as the G—— family constitutes at the Kosciuszko school. Nevertheless the teachers managed to get in touch with a friend whose generosity was demonstrated last year by frequent checks, who agreed immediately to see to it that the three children in school, one 12, one 9 and one 7 years old, have an adequate lunch each day.

Fund Provides Lunches.

Hereafter the Hungry School Children's Fund opened by THE TRIBUNE and maintained by its readers, will finance the lunchtime necessities of these and hundreds of other pupils in 65 public schools who cannot afford to eat when the noon whistle blows. Miss Frances Swain, head of the domestic arts department at the board of education headquarters, is supervising the distribution of the total collected, apportioning it to the rooms of schools from whom applications are being received.

Donations to help the G—— youngsters and others in similar and equally distressing circumstances, may be mailed to the cashier of this newspaper, accompanied by the coupon in this issue.

EX-DRY LEAGUE HEAD FEARS U. S. WOULD VOTE WET

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—"I fear the result if we held a referendum on the prohibition question at this time," declared the Rev. Dr. Charles V. Carroll of Philadelphia, state superintendent of the Congregational church, in addressing the annual sessions of the northeastern Pennsylvania conference today.

Dr. Carroll is former president of the state Anti-Saloon league.

"The press is wringing wet," he said. "We have no national voice to meet the liquor problem, which is repeating its false statements persistently. If we held a referendum now on the prohibition question, I fear the result, but I am hoping against hope."

OFFICIALS AGREE TO QUIT PASSING OUT 'DRAG' STARS

Confer on Plan to Curb Gun Toting.

A conference of city and county law enforcing officials was held yesterday in the office of Sheriff Meyering to curb the promiscuous issuance of special badges, stars and credentials to civilians which virtually give them police powers and enable them to exercise special privileges. All the representatives agreed to stamp out the practice.

WM. D. MEYERING. [Walinger Photo.]

Further meetings of the group will be held to work out a standardization of the system of hand-out stars. The scheme hinges around a regulation whereby deputies engaged in law enforcing work will be compelled to carry credentials giving their description, a sample of handwriting and a photograph to prove that they have the right to carry a gun and star.

Promiscuous gun carrying was the keynote of the conference. Earlier in the day Police Commissioner Allman recalled all special stars issued by former administrations and announced that no more stars would be issued from his office.

Col. Henry Barrett Chamberlin, operating director of the Chicago crime commission, attacked the practice of giving out stars, which apparently gives persons authority to tote guns.

"No member of the crime commission carries a gun," said Col. Chamberlin, "even though the nature of the work is dangerous. If every friend of a public official carries a star and a gun, the public is going to lose respect for constituted authority."

Ald. Barnet Hodes of the 7th ward characterized the practice of putting "I got a drag" stars on automobiles as "flaunting authority and un-American."

WIFE HELD IN STABBING.

Mrs. Anna Jeski, 2279 Archer avenue, was held to the grand jury by a coroner's jury yesterday on a charge of manslaughter in the fatal stabbing of her husband, Anthony, Oct. 8 in their home.

CHANCES OF CURE FOR CANCER NOW ARE GREATER

Surgeons Call Delay the Chief Danger.

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 15.—[Special.]—The chances of cure for cancer are higher than ever before and a large percentage of cases can be prevented and many cured if treated in the early stages. Cancer of the stomach is curable. The modern operation for cancer of the breast is 90 per cent effective. Rapid strides have been made in treatment by surgery, X-ray, radium and generally surgical methods of cancer is fifty per cent successful if early action is taken.

Such was the note of hope sounded at the clinical congress of the American College of Surgeons here today by some of the world's foremost authorities on cancer.

Sir Charles Gordon-Watson of London expressed the belief that "research one day will give us the means of prevention, possibly even to prevent, cancer."

Dr. Charles blamed procrastination for many deaths from the affliction. "Surgery and radiology," said the doctor, "have made such strides in recent years that the present mortality [150,000 in the United States] from cancer might be reduced considerably if only the public would insist on obtaining competent medical advice at the earliest possible date."

Pessimism Is Denounced.

Dr. Donald C. Balfour of the Mayo clinic at Rochester, Minn., took the medical profession to task for pessimism with regard to cancer of the stomach.

"The fact that cancer of the stomach can be cured by removal of the local growth and regional lymph nodes," said Dr. Balfour, "has not been given sufficient prominent. Many cases have been reported of patients who have lived their normal expectation of life following removal of such cancer."

Dr. Balfour presented an analysis of the histories of 128 patients who had undergone stomach cancer operations at the Mayo clinic and who lived ten years or more following operation. One of the problems of cancer of the stomach, the surgeon said, was its relation to chronic ulcer. Failure to distinguish with certainty between the two, he declared, has been the doom of many patients.

Discussing the prevention of cancer, Dr. Robert B. Greenough of Boston said, "The individual who desires to protect himself must be alert to detect signs of chronic irritation wherever they occur, whether a sore spot, an ulceration or thickening of mucous membrane or of the external skin, or an abnormal discharge from one of the body cavities."

Mayo Predicts Longer Life.

Dr. Charles H. Mayo, one of the country's foremost surgeons, in an interview predicted that within the next quarter century the average span of life in the United States will be increased twelve years.

"Within that time," said Dr. Mayo, "we may expect to live to an average age of 70 years instead of 58 years, which is the average today.

"Education of the public, improved medical science, elimination of the danger of epidemics—all will contribute to a healthier and more long lived race, he said.

Opium Valued at $145,000 Tossed Into Sea from Ship

Providence, R. I., Oct. 15.—(AP)—Capt. Leon Mauriet of the Fabre line steamer Sinaia reported upon his arrival here today from the near east that 125 pounds of gum-opium, valued from $145,000 to $290,000, was discovered and thrown into the sea early Saturday as the vessel neared the American coast. Capt. Mauriet said that eight valises and one hand bag containing the drug were found hidden in a coal bunker. The valises bore no identification marks.

France Balances Budget Without Boosting Taxes

PARIS, Oct. 15.—(AP)—France has balanced the budget without resorting to loans, boosting taxes, or drawing on the sinking fund, Francois Pietri, minister of the budget, told the cabinet today.

MARY ASTOR REWED, IT IS REVEALED IN PLANE DAMAGE SUIT

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 15.—(AP)—Mary Astor, screen actress and widow of Kenneth Hawks, film director, who, it was learned today, married Dr. Franklin Thorpe, Hollywood physician, secretly in Yuma, Ariz., last June, made a brief appearance on the witness stand today in the $775,000 damage suits resulting from an air crash that killed Hawks and nine others.

She was subjected to cross-examination on her alleged concealment of her second marriage. She is one of the eight plaintiffs seeking $775,000 damages from owners of two airplanes that collided in midair over Palos Verdes 18 months ago during the filming of a picture.

WOMEN TEST OUT POISON TO ASSIST ACCUSED MOTHER

Lebanon, Ind., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Woman neighbors of Mrs. Carrie Simmons, on trial for murder of one of two daughters who died from eating poisoned sandwiches at a family picnic, made tests of poisoned sandwiches, which refuted the findings of a prosecution expert, it was revealed at the trial today. The state's expert said the tests he made showed the poison was put in at the time the sandwiches were made. Mrs. Ella White, one of the women, testified that they made sandwiches and carried them over the same route as those taken to the fatal picnic, placing poison in half when they were made, and in the other half at an hour's stop on the trip. The latter, she said, met the conditions found at the picnic.

Father of 14 Children Held for Abandonment

CULT CHIEF GETS LIFE TERM FOR ATTACKS ON GIRL

Followers to Seek Funds for Defense Fight.

CRIMINAL COURT.

George Klein, rape, sentenced to 5 years in the penitentiary; Charles Mischon, larceny, sentenced to 1 year in the Bridewell by Judge Rudolph Desort.

Walter Kania, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in Pontiac reformatory by Judge Philip Sullivan.

John Galovitch, John Kakula and Frank Beleckl, robbery, sentenced to 1 year to life each in the penitentiary by Judge John Prystalski.

Giuseppe Abbate, rape, sentenced to life in the penitentiary by Judge Harry Fisher.

Joseph Maria Abbate, self-styled "celestial messenger," was sentenced to life imprisonment by Chief Justice Harry M. Fisher of the Criminal court yesterday for raping Lucia Vitiello, 15 years old. Dressed in his ceremonial robes and protesting his innocence, Abbate was led away to the county jail.

"This man is guilty of a heinous offense," said Judge Fisher. "The purpose of punishment is not merely the incarceration of a man. In this particular case my judgment is that he be removed from society so that he cannot again commit such an offense."

Abbate's attorney, George A. Gordon, was allowed thirty days in which to file a bill of exceptions after a new trial had been denied. Judge Fisher set the defendant's bond at $50,000, and members of his cult announced that they would raise the money to obtain his release.

Earlier Abbate took the stand and revealed the origin and history of the cult of which he is the head.

Tells of "Ordination."

Assistant State's Attorney Dan Covelli asked him, "By whom were you ordained?" "By our Lord," answered Abbate. "Where did this take place?" Prosecutor Covelli wanted to know. "In a barber shop where I worked, at Polk and Clark streets, in 1906," said Abbate. The event took place at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon, while he was alone, the defendant declared.

Abbate claimed that among the powers given to him were to make the blind to see and the lame to walk.

The defendant's cult headquarters was established in 1917 in De Kalb street. By this time, Abbate said, he had collected 500 followers. In 1922 the cult leader was committed to the asylum at Elgin following an offense involving a young girl. He was released in 1925 and he came back to head his flock.

Girl Tells of Attacks.

The Vitiello girl testified that Abbate attacked her first in 1929 behind locked doors at the church. She charged that he attacked her several times after that over her protests, but, she explained, "He was the ruler and his word was law."

Mrs. Mary Vitiello, the girl's mother, was one of Abbate's followers, and did not help her, Lucia said. Recently she was sent to her father, Paul, in New York City, and after he had heard her story he informed the state's attorney's office and the charges were pressed.

TWO HURT BY AUTO.

Racine, Wis., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Frank Martyman, 35 years old, and Peter Piotrek, 44, both of Racine, were severely injured tonight when they were struck by an automobile driven by L. D. Grulich of Milwaukee as they were walking on highway 15.

Opera Pair Married Again, Certain Knot's Legal Now

New York, Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Miss Hilda Hopkins Burke and Desire Defrere, the "now they're married, now they aren't" Chicago Civic opera pair, finally got married in an honest to goodness ceremony this afternoon.

Hurrying here by motor from Baltimore, where they learned that the ceremony they were reported to have gone through with last Thursday was not at all legal and that the county prosecutor was threatening an investigation the pair took out their license at last, hurried to the parsonage of the Rev. John Lennert, pastor of the West New York Baptist church, and heard themselves formally and officially pronounced man and wife.

Immediately after the ceremony they took to the highway again, this time headed north. It was said that they intended to motor as far as Newburgh, N. Y., on their way to Chicago.

Meanwhile County Prosecutor John Drewen of Hudson county, N. J., where the license was issued, announced that he had asked the Rev. Mr. Lennert to appear at his office tomorrow for questioning in regard to the "licenseless" wedding ceremony, the clergyman is reported to have performed for the pair last Thursday.

After the first ceremony the happy pair went their way after—reputedly sending out a flock of telegrams informing friends in Chicago and elsewhere of the joyous event. They got as far as Baltimore, where they were overtaken by messages informing them of the hitch in their project.

Then appeared William S. Burke, former husband of the soprano, with papers in a $100,000 alienation of affections suit which he proceeded to file against the new mate of his former spouse in Baltimore.

Burke avowed that his home had been "wrongfully broken up" by the said Defrere who is baritone and stage director of the Chicago Civic Opera company where Miss Burke stars as a soprano. It seems that Miss Burke had overlooked the matter of serving her husband with papers when she divorced him in Illinois some weeks ago. It was her admission of this oversight that caused the marriage license clerk in New York to refuse them a license when they appeared there following Defrere's arrival from abroad.

BOARD FIGHTS PAROLE PLEA OF IRA PERRY JR.

The state board of pardons and paroles went into executive session yesterday to consider cases heard earlier in the week. Among the last pleas for clemency was that made by Attorney Harry K. Curtis, son of Vice President Curtis, who asked the parole of Ira D. Perry Jr., serving a term for murder.

Col. Henry Barrett Chamberlin, operating director of the crime commission of Chicago, said he had written a letter to the parole board opposing the release of Perry. Perry, the son of a wealthy inventor, was one of a gang of youthful robbers who killed several persons. After serving a few years of a life sentence he was paroled during the regime of former Gov. Small, but owing to the storm of criticism that followed the parole was canceled.

Col. Chamberlin said the widows of two of the men killed by Perry's gang protested against any parole for him. The Chicago Jewelers' association also protested.

POLICE NAB 13 GUNMEN OF NIGHT CRIME SCHOOL

Members of a syndicate of thirteen gunmen, organized to carry on night time robbery on a large and efficient scale, were arrested yesterday by Chicago avenue police. They were captured, one by one, as they walked into their headquarters at 1439 West Walton place, returning from their nightly rounds of the city.

Police were amazed at the operations of the gang. It held its own kangaroo court and operated as a school for inexperienced robbers. Gathering at nightfall, the bandits would disperse and then assemble again in the morning to divide their loot. Each man arrested carried a revolver and loot estimated at $1,000 was found in their pockets.

The recognized leader of the gang was Leo Gaisor, 22 years old, 1325 West Huron street. Those who violated rules of the gang were tried by a "judge" who was identified as Gus Baron, 22 years old, 1543 Cornell street.

2 LOUISIANA MEN APPOINT SELVES LIEUT. GOVERNOR

Choose an Office While Choosing Is Good.

Baton Rouge, La., Oct. 15.—(AP)—An unemployed man and a grocer came forward today to claim the office of lieutenant governor which they claim Paul N. Cyr deserted by reaching for the governorship now held by Huey P. Long.

L. D. Smith, unemployed, of Benton, took the oath as lieutenant governor before J. M. Brown, a notary public, and E. H. Reed, groceryman of Shreveport, said he was looking for somebody to administer the oath for the same job to him.

Follow "Governor's" Example.

Yesterday Walter L. Aldrich, unemployed, took the oath as governor with the explanation that he was as much entitled to it as Cyr, who took the oath the day before on the contention that Long was a member of the United States senate and could not be both governor and senator.

"The job is open," Smith said. "I thought I would take it. I plan to leave for Baton Rouge Friday to assume my duties and I want the people of the state of Louisiana to know that as lieutenant governor I will administer the affairs of my office according to the letter of the law and to the best of my ability."

Reed said he decided to take the oath because he believed if the state was to have three governors each one should have a lieutenant governor.

As the situtlon now stands, the governor's oath is held by Long, Cyr, and Aldrich, and the lieutenant governor's oath by Senator Alvin O. King and Smith, with Reed in the offing.

Cyr has not made it clear whether he considers his act of taking the governor's oath as meaning he has vacated the lieutenant governor's office. His counsel said he would not vacate the post unless Long leaves the governor's chair.

Secretary Wilbur Receives Degree of Doctor of Laws

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 15.—(AP)—Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, secretary of the interior, received the degree of doctor of laws today at the 67th convocation of the University of the State of New York. The doctor of science degree was conferred upon Dr. Frederick G. Banting of the University of Toronto. The degrees were conferred by Dr. Frank P. Graves, New York state commissioner of education.

CHARGES 9,500 ILLEGAL SIGNS CLUTTER CITY

Aldermen Order Survey for Cleanup Drive.

The charge that 9,500 billboards have been erected illegally in Chicago was made by Ald. Thomas J. O'Grady [14th], chairman of the city council judiciary committee, at a meeting of the committee yesterday. Building Commissioner Ericsson admitted that such a situation was "possible."

A subcommittee was appointed by Ald. O'Grady to study the building commissioner's records which the commissioner has hitherto insisted were not subject to inspection by the public. The commissioner was also directed to prepare a report on such billboard permits as he may have in his files and present it to the committee on Oct. 29.

Charges Slipshod Methods.

After hearing the building commissioner and his deputy, Robert Knight, Ald. John J. Lagodny [21] remarked: "It is apparent that the previous administration ran the building department in a very slipshod manner, to say the least."

The subcommittee, consisting of Ald. Lagodny, Ald. Frank J. Corr [17], and Ald. James R. Quinn [50], was also directed to draft an ordinance to remedy the defects in the present ordinance under which the billboard evil has grown.

"Have you a list of all billboards in Chicago?" Ald. O'Grady asked Commissioner Ericsson.

"I can't say that," was the reply. "We can prepare a list of all billboards for which permits have been issued."

"How long would it take you to bring in such a list?" Ald. O'Grady asked.

"Well, that's hard to say," replied Commissioner Ericsson.

Charges 9,500 Illegal Signs.

"It's evident you have a very poor filing system," said O'Grady. "I have ascertained, after a thorough investigation that there are approximately 9,500 billboards in Chicago which have been illegally erected. When you bring in your list of those which have permits, I'll furnish you a list of those which have no permits."

After several more replies from Commissioner Ericsson, which the aldermen considered evasive, Ald. Oscar Nelson [46th] remarked to him:

"You know, this is no reflection on you. You haven't been in office long. But it is certain that some one has sneaked by here."

"I can't police the city," said the commissioner.

Police May Be Inspectors.

"Well, when we pass a new ordinance, every policeman will be a billboard inspector," replied Ald. O'Grady.

Commissioner Ericsson revealed that he had only one inspector to inspect signboards. He said this inspector makes a visual inspection of from 50 to 75 billboards a day.

"Is there any way in which billboards could be put up illegally?" Deputy Commissioner Knight was asked.

"Certainly. They could put one up in a couple of hours if they wanted to," was the reply.

"And I say again that it's been done about 10,000 times," remarked O'Grady.

DIES OF POISON.

Owen Harris, 32 years old, 1606 West 78th street, died at the Illinois Central hospital yesterday of poison he swallowed at home on Tuesday. According to members of his family, Harris had been despondent since he lost a job nearly a year ago.

INSULL GIVES RESPIRATOR TO CITY HOSPITAL

A Drinker respirator, for use in combating infantile paralysis and diphtheria, was presented to the municipal contagious disease hospital yesterday. The machine, installed at the order of Samuel Insull, was accepted on behalf of the city by Mayor Cermak and Health Commissioner Bundesen.

When the mayor and health commissioner inspected the instrument a child, just recovered from paralysis, was wheeled into the room and placed in the "iron lung." Mechanical breathing began at once. "The machine acts to tide the patient over the crisis until the long paralysis is passed," Dr. Bundesen explained to the mayor. "It offers the only possible chance of recovery."

After the demonstration Mayor Cermak and Dr. Bundesen made a tour of the hospital. In the children's ward the mayor issued instructions that children should be kept a week or two after recovery from a disease in order that their vitality might be restored. "Many of these children are suffering from malnutrition," said Mayor Cermak. "When they have been cared for a week or two after getting well their bodies will be in better condition to stand the rigors of the coming winter."

Walks 100 Miles to Market with Herd of 1,100 Sheep

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

REGINA, Sask., Oct. 15.—Louis Chartrand has returned to pioneer transportation. Having 1,100 sheep to sell, 100 miles from market and no prospect of any profit if he paid the cost of railway transportation, he herded his flock and walked them over an old priaris trail to Moosejaw. The sheep walked the 100 miles in a week.

Chicago Negro Must Die for Murder During Holdup

Belleville, Ill., Oct. 15.—(AP)—Willie Green, 31, a Chicago Negro who repudiated his confession, was in jail today under sentence of death for murder in a holdup. Green was found guilty by a jury last night and sentenced to die in the electric chair. A date for the execution has not been set. Green, with two other Negroes, was accused of killing Max Newmark and Walter Hurnton, a Negro customer, in Newmark's grocery in East St. Louis last Jan. 21.

DOGS IN $70,000 HOME WITHOUT A HOUSE PHYSICIAN

The plight of the stray dogs who recently were furnished with a $70,000 dog pound at 34th street and Lawndale avenue was presented to the city council's judiciary committee yesterday by a delegation of women led by Mrs. Charlotte L. Hunt, president of the Chicago Humane Education society.

The dogs are now housed in the finest shelter in the country, but they have not the expert medical attention to which they are entitled, Mrs. Hunt told the committee. Some of the women wept as Mrs. Hunt described a visit to the dog pound last Sunday at which she saw several dogs who were sick and needed attention.

"The present police officer in charge out there doesn't know much about dogs," she told the committee. "There should be an experienced veterinarian in charge."

The committee decided to recommend an amendment to the ordinance, calling for the appointment of a veterinarian to the post of poundmaster.

19 Burmese Sail for London for Own Freedom Parley

RANGOON, Burma, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Nineteen Burmese sailed today for London to take part in a round table conference in November, which will decide whether Burma shall be converted into an independent state or an autonomous province within an Indian federation of states. Most of the delegates are understood to favor a dominion status. Burma is about the size of Texas, but has three times that state's population.

SEIZE 2 ON COUNTERFEIT CHARGE.

Isaac Mason, 31 years old, and Frank Bates, 37 years old, both colored, of 3535 Indiana avenue, were arrested yesterday by agents under Capt. Thomas J. Callaghan of the secret service on charges of counterfeiting.

SUPREME COURT PROMISES WAGE ACT RULING SOON

Hears Arguments on Its Constitutionality.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—The Illinois Supreme court, in session today, indicated it will hand down a decision promptly, very likely within a couple of weeks, on the constitutionality of the prevailing wage act. The justices, heeding a plea in behalf of public welfare, advanced the case to the head of their calendar. Oral arguments were started this morning and will be concluded tomorrow.

The decision, which without this special consideration would probably not be reached before the February term, will release $54,425,775 in county and state road funds, cash on hand and anticipated revenue, for awarding contracts late this fall and this winter. This will furnish employment during the cold months to approximately 4,500 men engaged directly on the projects and will put 8,500 men on winter pay rolls, preparing material for the opening of the spring construction season when 33,200 will be required for outdoor labor.

Amount of Work Unaffected.

This employment will follow the decision regardless of whether the Supreme court affirms or reverses the finding of the Sangamon county Circuit court that the prevailing wage act is unconstitutional.

If the lower court is reversed, work will be resumed on $4,500,000 worth of highway construction on contracts awarded by the state under the provisions of the prevailing wage act before the litigation was started. This construction, employing 4,000 men, has been suspended pending the final decision on whether the contracts are valid. If the Supreme court holds that the wage act is unconstitutional, state officials are in a quandary as to how or whether the contractors can be paid for their work.

The arguments in the case were opened this morning by Assistant Attorney General Julius J. Nelger, who defended the wage act, citing similar legislation in England, New York, and Kansas. The act provides that contractors on public construction shall pay wages no less than the rates prevailing for work of a similar nature in the vicinity of the job. He argued that the state was the employer, and, through the legislature, properly should fix the terms of the contracts.

Attorney A. M. Fitzgerald, who brought a taxpayers' suit in the name of Henry A. Mayhew of Springfield, stated in reply that the wage act was detrimental to the interests of society in that it tended to raise the cost of public construction. He added that the statute was class legislation and that it was unworkable.

Says Cost Is Increased.

Attorney S. S. Duhamel, retained by the Civic Federation of Chicago and associated organizations, told the banc of justices that the wage law increased the cost of road work approximately ten per cent. If the law continues to operate it will result, he said, in "a $7,000,000 a year gift of state highway funds to a privileged class, the road construction laborers."

Attorney Duhamel, whose nominal clients are Misses Roberta and Annie Craig Piggott, sisters, residing in Oak Park, cited a paving project on the Blue Island road through Harvey on which the state has advertised for bids under the prevailing wage act specifying that the union wage scale shall be paid by contractors. The union scale for common labor in Cook county is 97½ cents an hour but, the lawyer declared, there are hundreds of men in Harvey anxious to work for 60 or 75 cents an hour.

MAKES ALLOTMENT OF 105 MILLION TO FEDERAL AID ROADS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde today apportioned to the states a total of $105,875,000 previously authorized for federal aid in road construction for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1932. The apportionment was made two and a half months in advance of the usual date in order that the states might get an early start on plans for next season's construction, the department said.

In making the apportionment, 2½ per cent of the total appropriation of 125 million dollars was deducted for administration. The remainder was then apportioned on the basis of area, population and mileage of rural post roads in the various states. From the share allotted to each state there was deducted one-fifth of the emergency advance funds apportioned last December.

Illinois' apportionment amounted to $5,156,577, from which $680,023 was deducted on account of the emergency funds, leaving $4,476,553 available. Other central states received: Indiana, $2,698,897; Iowa, $2,799,505; Wisconsin, $2,640,713, and Michigan, $3,338,014.

ORDERS BERWYN POLICE INQUIRY BY GRAND JURY

State's Attorney Swanson yesterday ordered that the charge of brutality against Thomas C. Bartunek, former chief of police of Berwyn, and several of his subordinates be submitted to the grand jury within the next few days. The action was announced after a conference between the prosecutor and Attorney Joseph Braun of the Chicago Motor club.

M. M. Brooks, former president of the Cicero board of education and at present district manager of the Universal Car Loading and Distributing company, is the complainant against the Berwyn policeman. He lives at 3227 Clarence avenue, Berwyn.

Brooks charges that he was dragged from his car as he was driving into his private garage at the rear of his home. He was charged with driving without lights and taken to the Berwyn station and thrown into a cell. He was not allowed to communicate with his family or friends. He charges that while he was in the cell Bartunek beat him with a blackjack. The Berwyn police commission after a hearing of the charges reduced Bartunek from the rank of chief to that of patrolman.

VETS OF FOREIGN WARS ASK BONUS CASH OF HOOVER

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15.—(AP)—Despite President Hoover's emphatic and repeated opposition to a cash bonus, the Veterans of Foreign Wars today laid upon his desk a new demand for immediate payment in full. The President received in it silence.

With only a hasty glance at the 2,000 word petition, embodying the organization's complete legislative program, Mr. Hoover stepped outside his office and posed, smiling, for a photograph with the petition bearer.

He indicated to Darold D. Decoe of Sacramento, Cal., newly elected commander in chief of the Veterans' organization, that he would give more consideration of the lengthy document later.

The President's conclusion, however, was considered foregone. It was but little more than three weeks ago that he sped to Detroit to carry his anti-cash bonus fight successfully to the floor of the American Legion convention. Without mentioning the bonus by name, he left no doubt of his meaning when he told the close packed hall:

The program brought to the White House today by Decoe spoke not alone of "immediate cash payment of adjusted compensation certificates" but also of a need for world war widow and orphan pensions and an equalization of the pensions resulting from all wars.

"We intend to show how the distribution of approximately $2,000,000,000 will contribute to the welfare of more than 2,000,000 veterans faced by unemployment, part time employment, debts, and obligations in behalf of family dependents."

The foreign war veterans' chief said a move already was underway to obtain the signatures of 10,000,000 citizens as evidence of public sentiment in favor of cash payment.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—
WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

GOVERNOR DENIES EXTRADITION IN AUTO DEATH CASE

Extradition of John J. McKechnie, 26 years old, son of Mrs. Allen McKechnie, 707 South Clarence avenue, Oak Park, to face manslaughter charges in Manitowoc county, Wisconsin, as the outgrowth of an automobile accident there last winter, was refused by Gov. Emmerson yesterday.

The refusal was on the ground that McKechnie was not wanted to face the criminal charge but to make possible service on him in civil suits for damages. Miss Myra Boldt, to whom McKechnie was reported engaged, was killed and another young man and girl were injured when a car McKechnie was driving got out of control on a curve.

McKechnie's attorney said the youth is partly paralyzed and that the criminal charge was not filed until almost a year after the accident.

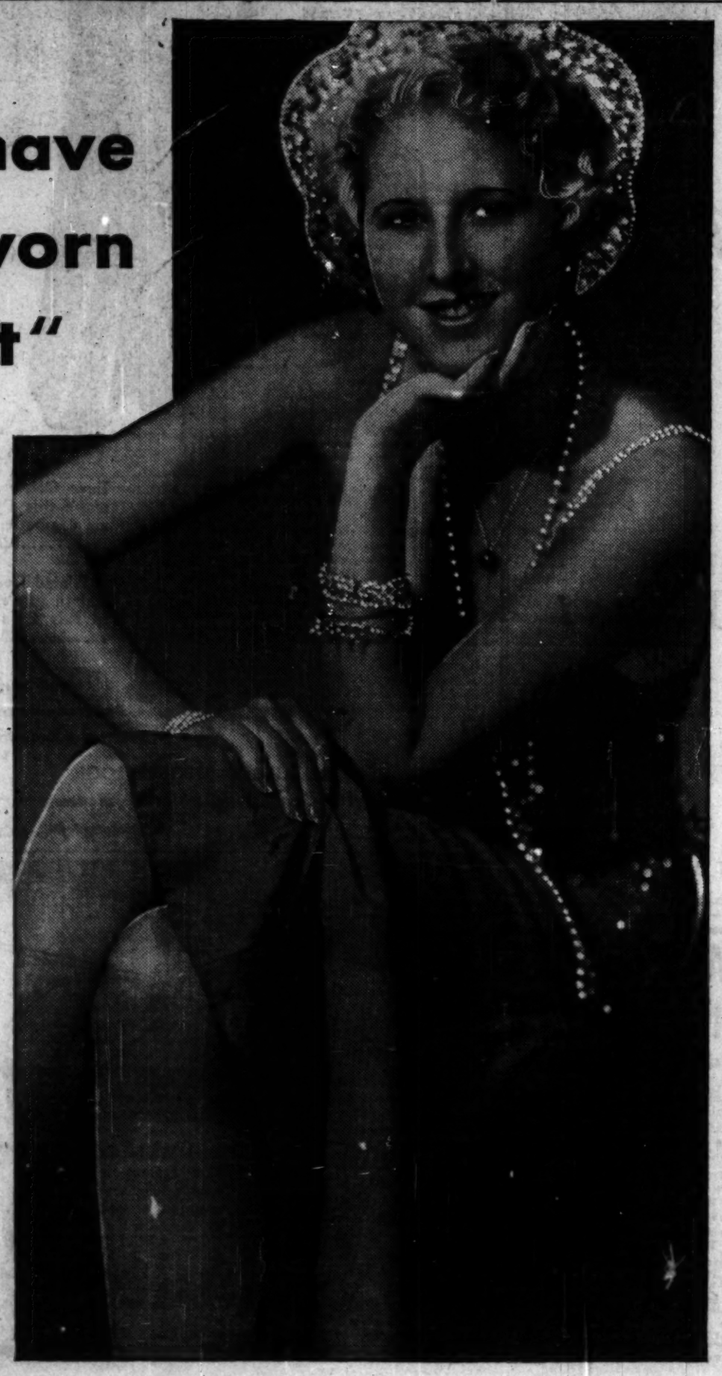
"Your morning shave is badly shopworn at midnight"



"I'M not trying to sell razors or razor blades. I don't shave and I don't give testimonials. But I'd like to tell you what I think of men who don't shave carefully. I believe my opinion really means something because I'm a hostess in a night club and we girls must take them as they come. So we learn as much about men in a week as the average girl learns in a lifetime.

"Of course it really doesn't make much difference to me, but you'd be surprised at the number of men who think their morning shaves will last until midnight and later. Along about 11 o'clock they're nobody's bargain and I wouldn't dance with them if I didn't earn my living that way.

"My experience has taught me that a man can't be attractive along about the time the milkman starts delivery, unless he takes a clean shave before he steps out for the evening. And speaking of milkmen—what I've said doesn't apply to night club customers alone. Most men aren't as particular about shaving as they should be. To get along with women a man should be clean shaven all the time."

Yes, few men shave as frequently or carefully as they should. Until now shaving may have been a somewhat disagreeable task. Now Gillette is manufacturing a fine new razor blade that can be used morning and night without discomfort.

It never irritates or roughens the tenderest skin. Every blade is equally keen. Try the new Gillette on our guarantee. Buy a package and use a blade or two. If you don't agree every shave is cool and pleasant, return the package to your dealer and get your money back.

SUITS ARE FILED AGAINST STOCKS OF CLOSED BANKS

Owners Liable Up to 100% of Their Holdings.

Depositors in closed banks were informed yesterday through the state auditor's office that suits have been filed against the stockholders of each closed bank, seeking judgment in an amount equal to the holdings of each stock owner. This is under the law which makes bank stockholders liable to the depositors up to 100 per cent of the par value of their stock holdings.

It was explained, however, that neither the state auditor's office nor a receiver appointed by the auditor has anything to do with the collection of this liability. The action must be begun by one of a bank's creditors acting for all of them.

"The courts usually appoint the same receiver to act on stockholders' liability as has been named as receiver by the auditor," said an assistant to State Auditor Oscar Nelson. "In only one recent instance has a different receiver been appointed."

Some Offer to Pay.

A few stockholders have offered the amounts of their liabilities, it was said. One case involved that of the owner of $17,500 of stock in a west side bank. He put that amount in escrow, but it has not been accepted pending the completion of the audit.

For the chain of closed Bain banks approximately 25 per cent of the stock was held by a holding company, according to the auditor's office. When the stock is in the name of the corporation the corporation is liable only in the amount of its capital, it was explained. If the total assets of the holding company consist only of stock in a closed bank, nothing may be collected because if one is worthless the other is also worthless, it was explained.

Attach Stockholders' Deposits.

Where stockholders have deposits in a closed bank the receiver is attaching the deposits as security under the liability law, the auditor's office said. No dividends will be paid to the stockholder-depositors pending final payments to all others, it was stated.

Many wealthy stockholders have signified their willingness to make payments whenever called upon to do so, the receivers have reported. In many of the closed banks, according to the auditor's office, there will be some money left to prorate among the stock owners after the depositors are paid in full.

In some cases the suits are being filed against those who owned stock as far back as five years ago. Under the law, it was explained, they are liable, even though they have sold their stock, if the losses that resulted in the banks' closing were incurred during their time of ownership.

Closed Bank to Pay $600,000.

Auditor Nelson announced yesterday that 12,000 depositors of the closed Lincoln Trust and Savings bank, 3959 Lincoln avenue, will receive $600,000 before Nov. 1. This is 20 per cent of the deposit liability. Receiver George W. Blomgren said there will probably be another payment before Christmas.

The checks are now being made out and dated Oct. 26 and will be put in the mail as soon after that date as certain legal requirements are fulfilled, it was announced. Preferred claims amounting to $125,000 will be paid at the same time.

RASKOB CONTRIBUTES ANOTHER $100,000 TO DEMOCRATIC PARTY

New York, Oct. 15.—(AP)—John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee, today put another $100,000 in the party's coffers.

Latest available figures show the Democratic organization owes Raskob $295,250 for loans.

The $100,000 contribution, however, was an outright gift. Just one string was attached to it.

"I am glad to contribute $100,000 to the victory fund," Raskob wrote to John W. Davis, general chairman of the drive for funds, "conditioned on $1,500,000 being raised."

The goal for the drive already had been set at $1,500,000. Five hundred Democratic supporters representing all states are on the general committee sponsoring the campaign.

Raskob made it clear in a letter to Davis that the Democrats could expect no more money from him and that he felt he had done his duty to the party. He wrote:

"This represents my full and final contribution to this fund. It is given gladly because of my belief in the cause to which I have already contributed very heavily in time and money."

Taste and Smell Legal Proof of Intoxicating Rum

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 15.—(AP)—Federal Judge Louis Fitz Henry ruled today that taste and smell are acceptable means of determining whether liquor is intoxicating. The ruling was made when government agents sought to introduce bottles of liquor into evidence at the trial of Oscar O. Mangold, of San Jose. The defense objected that the government had not proved by chemical analysis that the liquor was intoxicating.

THREE HELD AS AUTO THIEVES.

Mrs. Mary Korso, 20 years old, 1939 Van Buren street; Barney Roscinano, 20, of 2809 Van Buren street, and Rocco Trimarco, 21, of 826 Loomis street were held to the grand jury on charges of automobile theft yesterday.

DISABILITY ITEM IN INSURANCE GETS IT ON CHIN

Too Many Jobless Men Have "Breakdown."

New York, Oct. 15.—[Special.]—As a protective measure against the epidemic of nervous breakdowns which has swept the country since the depression, the leading life insurance companies are abandoning or modifying income disability clauses and returning to the simple waiver of premium, it was learned today. The premiums paid out to the can't-works and won't-works have become too great.

About twenty years ago some one hit upon a scheme whereby a policy holder's premium would be waived for the remainder of his life if he became totally disabled.

This, as one insurance executive explained today, appealed, as it makes their job a whole lot easier. And then came another break in their favor. The main offices went the entire distance, adding a further clause which, besides waiving the premiums, provided an income for disabled policy holders.

How Custom Began.

This started things humming, and many an agent sold the disability clause rather than the life policy itself. They popularized it by picturing benefits which, unfortunately for the companies, more and more policy holders began to cash in on.

Even before these bear market days, when nearly every one seems to be on his uppers, some of the actuaries were beginning to wonder whether or not their great experiment hadn't gone just a bit sour. Now since the depression has set in their worst fears are being confirmed.

The companies have announced no reductions in premium rates as yet, although the matter has been discussed. This means that persons who take out policies with the new modified disability clause will pay the same rate as the old policy holders unless reductions are made later. The policy holder of the future will not be required to pay his remaining premiums in the event of total disability, but he will have no monthly income from the policy. Either that or his disability income will be reduced.

"The sad truth is that there is too much of the human element and too little real fact involved," one executive explained. "It has proved a costly experiment. Many companies feel that they have taken it on the chin long enough. It's so easy for a man out of a job to have a nervous breakdown."

The first of the larger companies to make a move was the Metropolitan Life, which has announced that on Jan. 1 it will discontinue the income disability provision and return to the simple waiver of premiums.

Following the lead of the Metropolitan, the Travelers, the Mutual, and other large companies have taken steps in the same general direction, although the methods of approaching the problem have varied. The New York Life and Prudential have reached no definite decision, but have had several proposals under discussion. At the offices of the Equitable it was said that if the disability income is not discontinued it unquestionably will be reduced.

Doctor Gets Year for Drug Law Violation

Dr. Maurice J. Rabbins, 42 years old, for 17 years a police surgeon, yesterday was found guilty by Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley of violation of the Harrison anti-narcotic act and sentenced to serve a year and a day in the penitentiary at Leavenworth. Assistant United States Attorney Mary D. Bailey introduced evidence showing that on four occasions Dr. Rabbins had sold cocaine that had been seized by police to a woman government undercover agent. A motion for probation was denied by the court.

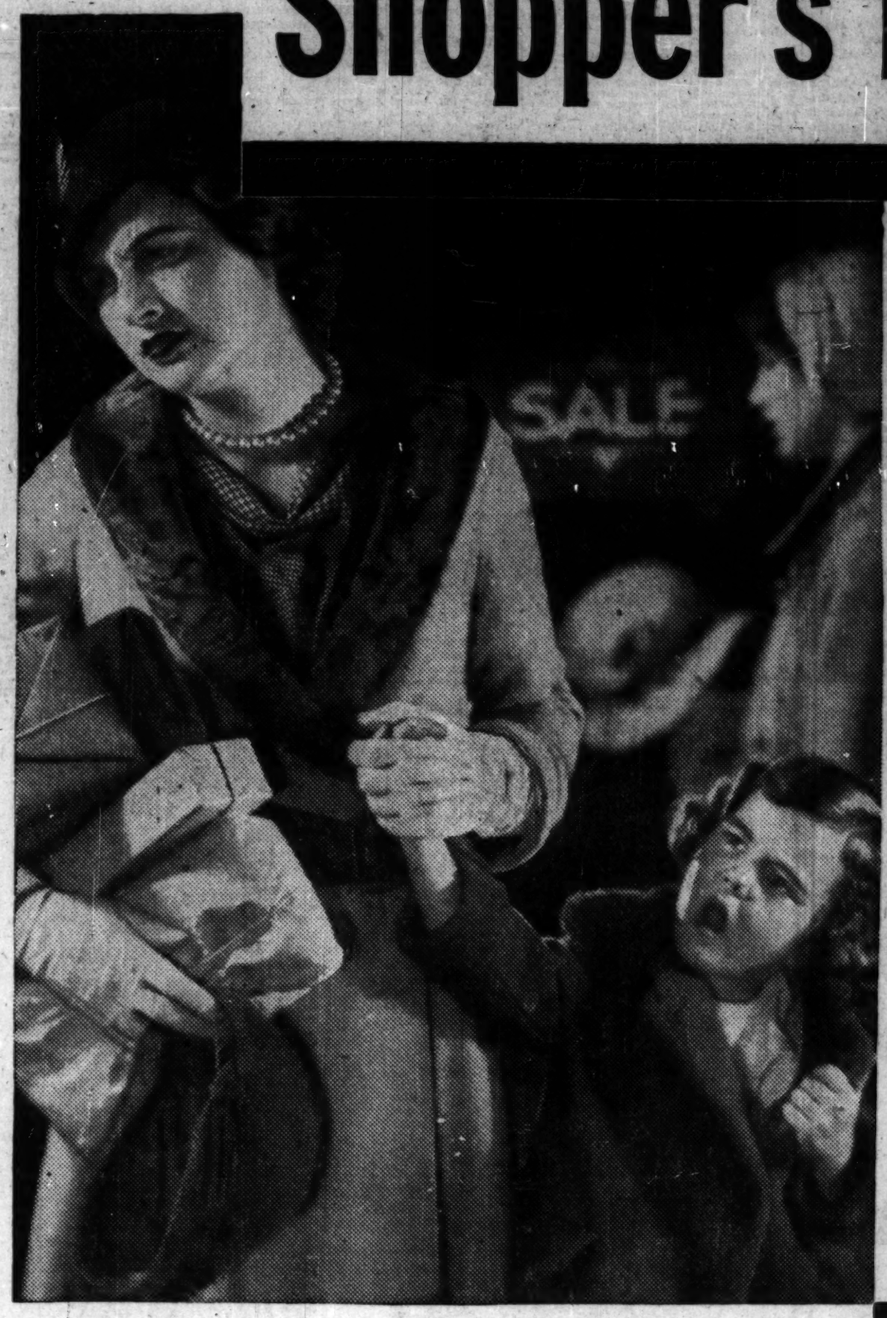
Shopper's Nerves!



POOR thing! She's literally worn out—ready to fly at the next salesperson who says : : :

"Sorry, we're out of pink" : : : "No—nothing in size 36" : : : Silly, you say, to be so irritated, so upset over things that trivial?

Certainly! But that's just the way most of us act when we have "bottled up" nerves. The result of living in "high gear"—at the American Pace!

It's really amazing, however, how a simple little thing can sometimes make a world of difference.

Science, for example, has lately pointed out some interesting facts about chewing gum—and nerves.

Biochemical research has now proved that chewing gum is a definite help in smoothing out tense and tired nerves. Wrigley's actually aids in counteracting nervous tension, in promoting nervous relaxation.

You might try it out yourself. Thousands are convinced there's really something in it. When "nerves" are getting the best of you—try Wrigley's. See if it doesn't relieve the tension and help to make your little troubles fewer!

If you really want to know: There are in that portion of the face directly connected with gum chewing, the trunks of the 5th or trigeminal nerve and also the 7th nerve. Gum chewing, which necessitates the massage and relaxation of these nerves (scientists say) definitely reduces nervous tension, promotes nervous relaxation.

SPAIN CUTS PAY OF 60 CATHOLIC BISHOPS IN HALF

Papal Nuncio Calls on New President.

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, Oct. 15.—The first act of President and Minister of War Manuel Azana's government today was to follow up the article, which separated church and state in the proposed constitution with such sensational results, with two decrees.

By the first, the salaries of Spain's 60 Catholic bishops are cut in half.

By the second, religious orders are warned that any attempt to discontinue now the educational activities, which are later to be denied them, will be punished by a confiscation of buildings.

Nuncio Calls on Azana.

Papal Nuncio Frederico Tedeschini called on President Azana today. Msgr. Tedeschini declared his visit had to do with the holy see's attitude on the religious issue. It is learned that the nuncio is expecting orders from the Vatican to protest the constitutional settlement on the religious question and that he then will go to Rome to discuss the situation with the pope.

The government, however, is convinced that a break in relations is near.

As he left the president's office, Msgr. Tedeschini smilingly said:

"The church may be wounded, but she is not hostile."

It is learned that he and a church committee of five now in Madrid, including the cardinals of Tarragona and Seville, are urging the Catholic deputies, now computed at 43, who walked out of the cortes, to return to their benches. The committee is also urging the clergy and nuns to keep calm despite the attitude of the deputies.

State Saves Over Two Millions.

The reduction in bishops' salaries will mean a saving of $2,150,000 on the annual appropriation of $6,450,000 by the government for the upkeep of the clergy. After two years, by virtue of the constitution, this item will cease to exist. Until then the lower clergy, some of whom receive as little as $64.80 a year, will not be affected.

The church won a victory in the cortes tonight when the constitutional commission backed down on an article that would have confined religious manifestations to the interior of churches and would have ended the picturesque street processions, one of the features of Spanish Catholicism. From now on, however, the church must ask permission of the civil authorities to parade.

The national assembly tonight also pledged religious freedom within the limits of public morality when it approved article 25 of the constitution, which reads: "Spain guarantees liberty of conscience and the right to practice any religion compatible with public morals."

Missing 'Element 87' Found; It's Worth $4,000,000 a Pound

Ithaca, N. Y., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Element No. 87, one of the two hitherto unknown components of the universe, has been discovered by Dr. Jacob Papish, professor of spectroscopy at Cornell university, in a substance known as samarskite, a lustrous velvet black mineral found in Norway, Siberia, and some southern states of this country.

It is worth about $2 a pound and 2,000,000 pounds of samarskite contain one pound of element No. 87, making the No. 87 worth upwards of $4,000,000 a pound. Of the ninety-two elements only No. 85 now remains unidentified.

Assisted by Eugene Wainer, a graduate student from Akron, O., and aided by a grant from the Hecksher foundation for the advancement of research, Prof. Papish has definitely identified the new element and has secured a spectrograph of it.

Full Report Next Month.

Repeated checks have confirmed its existence and a full report is expected before the National Academy of Science when it meets in New Haven next month.

Element 87 is an insoluble solid and cannot be isolated because of its high inflammability. It is unusually sensitive to light and because of this has possibilities for use with photo-electric tubes.

Its presence in the samarskite sample used was in such small proportion that Prof. Papish is convinced that it will never be abundant. The few milligrams which he has succeeded in obtaining in a sulphate compound are regarded as priceless.

Properties a Surprise.

Element 87 has always been represented on the charts by a blank space in a direct line under cesium and rubidium, highly radio active substances.

For many years Dr. Papish has been developing a theory of the evolution of the elements. Applying it to the missing element 87, he chose samarskite, a mineral rich in radio active substances. But when he isolated No. 87, it had very little, if any, radio active properties such as characterized elements akin to it.

GIVES RIDE; ROBBED OF $30.

A man he had given a ride in his automobile pulled out a gun and robbed Henry R. Hostetter, 7643 Stewart avenue, president of the Bon Ton Beverage company at 1527 Flournoy street, of $30 yesterday, between East 72d and 73d streets in Stewart avenue.

Shot, Seriously Wounded in Brawl; Names Assailant

Joseph Trinka, 29 years old, who gave the address 2629 South Springfield avenue, was shot and seriously wounded during a brawl late yesterday afternoon in a second floor flat at 513 St. Clair street. Despite his wound, which was in the right lung, Trinka went to the county hospital in a taxicab. He asserted that his assailant was John Pause. Both Trinka and Pause are pressmen. The police were unable to find Pause or any witnesses of the shooting.

FIRE AT SENN HIGH SCHOOL.

A tar pot, used in the roofing of a new addition to Senn High school, 5900 Glenwood avenue, caught fire yesterday and gave off clouds of smoke. David M. Davidson, principal of the school, ordered the students from the building. No damage was caused.

LILLIAN RUSSELL RING GIFT, SAYS CARUSO'S WIDOW

Hers When Married First, She Explains.

New York, Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Mrs. Dorothy Caruso Ingram, widow of the late Enrico Caruso, declared at an examination before trial today before Supreme Court Justice George V. Mullan that the $50,000 emerald and diamond ring, the ownership of which is contested in a suit brought by the daughter of the late Lillian Russell, Mrs. Dorothy Russell Calvit, became hers under an agreement made with the late Alexander P. Moore, once ambassador to Spain ,in 1928.

Mrs. Ingram revealed, according to Mrs. Calvit's attorney, Samuel Kornbluth, that Mr. Moore had given her the ring, which was once one of the famous gems of Lillian Russell, when they became engaged in March, 1927.

Arrangement with Moore.

Upon her breaking the engagement in January of the following year, Mr. Moore had made an arrangement with her whereby the first of the two to marry should retain ownership of the ring, she said.

He told her, Mrs. Ingram is said to have declared, that if he married first he would take back the ring to present to his fiancee, but that if Mrs. Ingram was the first to marry it was his desire that she retain it as a wedding present. Mr. Moore died without marrying again, and she became the wife of Capt. Ingram, a British officer, thus, according to the testimony, fulfilling the terms of the agreement.

Necklace Also Contested.

The ring, set with a large emerald surrounded by nine diamonds, is the second of two articles once belonging to Lillian Russell and later in the possession of her husband, Mr. Moore, which are now the objects of suits brought by Mrs. Calvit. The other is a pearl necklace now alleged to be in the possession of Miss Mary Elizabeth Leary of 876 Fifth avenue.

DREISER CALLS ON NOTABLES TO 'RESCUE' KENTUCKY MINERS

New York, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Charges that 18,000 miners in Harlan county, Kentucky, are held in a "reign of terror" will be investigated by a committee which Theodore Dreiser started to organize today.

The author invited four senators and fourteen business men, clergymen, editors, and educators to go to Harlan Nov. 6 for an inquiry into the "frightful reign of terror imposed by thugs and jailbirds." The group will gather at Lexington, Ky., Nov. 5.

Dreiser charged that authorities in Harlan county have joined with employers to deny "all constitutional and civil rights as well as ordinary human rights" to striking miners and their families. He described the community as an "armed camp full of legalized gunmen.

"Bunk," Says Judge

Harlan, Ky., Oct. 15.—(AP)—"Absolutely a bunch of bunk," was Circuit Judge D. C. Jones' comment today on charges made in New York by Theodore Dreiser, author, that a "reign of terror" exists in the Harlan county coal fields which have been the scene of labor disorders.

British Author Writes About Country Life

Delafield's Book Offers Contrast with U. S.

When I attended the P. E. N. congress in Holland last June (it seems a century!) E. M. Delafield was the belle of the party. She met John Meeker Jr., author of "Strange Cargo" and "American Beauty" first related to Edna Ferber's latest novel published and reviewed yesterday. She invited him for a week-end in Devonshire to meet her family.
FANNY BUTCHER.

BY ARTHUR MEEKER JR.

"Diary of a Provincial Lady," by E. M. Delafield [Harpers].

Of course, the first thing everybody wants to know after reading E. M. Delafield's admirable "Diary of a Provincial Lady" is whether or not it is autobiographical.

Let us be categorical and begin by saying that it is to a great extent a record of her own life. The Provincial Lady does live in Devonshire, in a beautiful eighteenth century house called Croyle. She has two children—a boy and a girl—a pet cat [whose name, however, is Fauntleroy instead of Helen Wills], a temperamental automobile, an intemperamental but delightful husband, and a set of neighbors whose humors might provide her with material for a number of diaries like this one.

E. M. DELAFIELD.

There is, though, one important difference. The Provincial Lady in the book confines her literary occupations to winning an occasional prize competition in a weekly magazine. But the real E. M. Delafield is one of the best known writers in England, with more than a score of books to her credit.

Her chosen field is the novel of character, and in her field she is supreme. The heroine of the "Diary" is no exception to this rule. Once before, in what I consider in some ways her best brilliant novel, "The Way Things Are" [which her husband says should have been named "The Way Things Are at Croyle"], Miss Delafield drew on her immediate surroundings as background for a penetrating study of the unforgettable Laura Temple. But Laura's point of view was not Miss Delafield's while the Provincial Lady's, with a few striking dissimilarities, is.

You will thoroughly enjoy following her adventures—or, rather, her lack of them—day by day with her husband and children and the servants [including the ubiquitous Mademoiselle], with the Vicar and his wife and old Mrs. Blenkinsop and Cissie Crabbe, the school friend from Norwich, and the odious Lady B., perfect picture of a certain type of insufferable Englishwoman, and a host of others. You will marvel at the amazing difference between country life in America—which, according to English ideas, is scarcely country—and country life in England, which, according to our ideas, is scarcely life.

You will laugh out loud very often, and smile to yourself even more, for it is an extremely amusing book. And in the end, if I am not much mistaken, you will be left with a feeling of genuine affection for its author.

Mary Borden, who contributes a neat word of introduction to the American edition, finds the author of the "Diary" a "very English lady, living in a very English village," and her method of writing a "very dry, sly, English way." I venture to disagree with her. The village I grant her, having seen it with my own eyes. But I have also seen Miss Delafield, who is half French by birth, and whose wit appears to be wholly so. She has told me she feels like an Englishwoman in France and like a Frenchwoman in England. It is this unusual combination, it seems to me, that gives the "Diary of a Provincial Lady," for those of its readers who have a nice sense of national characteristics, its private, particular attraction.

Bridge Experts Here Hailing New Method

Unified System Is Called Boon to Players.

The official system of contract bridge, which got its start in Chicago only a few weeks ago, is rapidly gaining converts here, according to teachers, and will eventually make it possible for perfect strangers to get together and enjoy themselves.

New York, where the official system was born of a conference of recognized experts, is reported to have turned definitely from the multiplicity of playing systems. Missionaries there had the first chance at the public and made good use of their opportunities.

The first effect of the promulgation of a new and carefully formed set of conventions has been a flocking of pupils, weary of striving to find some way to know what a partner meant by an original bid, to their teachers. And the teachers, themselves knowing the strength and the weakness of all the seventeen or more sets that have been in use in the past, have prepared themselves and are imparting the desired knowledge.

Without exception those interviewed yesterday recommended the new system because of its logical sequence of bids and even more for the promise that it holds of a standardization. Moreover, they hold, it is easy for the average player to grasp its mysteries; easier perhaps than any contract system of the past.

W. D. Holmes Huttig, one of the best known teachers on the north shore and one of the editors of the Bridge Magazine, had this to say of the official system:

"It is highly desirable that there be a standard set of conventions; as a matter of fact it is essential to the success of contract bridge. Individual formulas for bidding had become so complex that the game was seriously threatened. Much credit should be given the men who combined their knowledge, which they had gathered by their own hard work, to form the present system."

Charles True Adams, whose book "Contract Bridge at Sight" sold 32,000 copies in one Chicago book store, was one of the experts who pooled their interests to formulate the official system and is regarded as one of the leaders of the movement for standardization.

Two women teachers, who have for years instructed Chicagoans how to get all they should get out of their hands, expressed relief that the number of systems had been so materially reduced.

"I have taught them all," Mrs. Catherine Lewis said. "The official system has some very marked good points. It is easy for any pupil to grasp, and, if it is followed, two average players are almost certain to get the correct results from their two hands.

"The official system's forcing two-bid has the advantage that its requirements are not quite so high as in some others, under which many game going hands are passed out. The transition from two to three is logical, and it is a pleasurable system to play. A tired business man playing the official conventions won't have to go into nervous prostration.

"And teaching—teaching was never so simplified as it is now. We still teach more than one system, because some pupils want old favorites, but there are not nearly so many as there were."

Following are the comments of Mrs. Virginia Tubbs, who has taught bridge in Chicago for two decades.

"Since two heads are better than one, contract bridge should be at least a dozen times better than it ever was before. Many of the greatest bridge and contract authors have pooled their interest and knowledge to form the new official system, which will surely help to standardize the game.

"For the first time, it seems, strangers are going to meet soon over the bridge table and speak the same language. It is fascinating to study and I am sure it will appeal to all."

'SLICE OF FRANCE,' PLUS INDEMNITIES, GERMANS' 1917 TERMS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15.—(AP)—Last hour efforts of neutral America for a separate Austro-Hungarian peace after German terms proved too high today were written into world war history.

Germany's peace price two months before the United States declared war included "a slice of France" and general indemnities from all the allies.

This was reported to the state department in February, 1917, by Ambassador James W. Gerard and made public today for the first time in a supplemental volume of diplomatic correspondence.

"The attempt which followed to bring about peace by working through Austria-Hungary appeared as an alternative to failing in with the German proposal," the department said of the correspondence. "The episode forms part of the general effort in December, 1916, and early months of 1917 to bring about peace before being forced into the war by Germany's renewal of unrestricted submarine operations."

In January Germany was offering at Berlin and Washington to call off the submarine blockade if the President would bring about a peace basis acceptable to Germany. Gerard advised his government that German Chancellor Zimmermann, on Jan. 31, "gave me a reckless submarine note." He further reported:

"He said . . . that he hoped the President would stay quiet for two months, in which time he was sure they could, by submarine war, compel England to ask for terms; that Lloyd George was a wild man and was now the real head of the entente; that if peace was not made there would be an exhausted Europe and that then we would be confronted by Japan and the yellow races."

Four days later Gerard quoted Germany's peace price:

"Germany to give up Belgium, but retaining so-called guarantees such as railroads, forts, a garrison, commercial control, etc.; a slice of France through rectification of the frontier; would only give back a small part of Serbia, and Bulgaria can do as she likes with Rumania, and everybody must pay indemnities to Germany."

Gerard, in his telegrams to Washington during this period, advised the President that "if you decide to make any threats threaten war. Germans not afraid of break of diplomatic relations which simply means they can go ahead and do what they please and attack us if they win."

Good morning!

It's hard to believe that the scenes of this picture were not photographed on actual battlefields. [Some of them, I'm sure MUST have been.] It is one of the realest war cinemas I have ever seen.

"Comrades of 1918" is not spectacular, in the sense that we usually mean the word, but it is a gripping spectacle of tragedy and gallantry in the trenches and at home. Scene after scene of actual combat is presented and splendid direction and photography cause each to be indelibly etched on your memory. Bombs burst. Tanks roll slowly, ominously into action. Troops go over the top and men, single handed battle one another to the death. You fairly smell the smoke. You grow sick with pity for the fighters—many of whom are SO young . . . !

The acting is all fine; all convincing. The most effective performances are those by Gustave Diessl as one Karl who goes home to find his wife faithless, and Hannah Hoessrich as that wife. Her shame, sorrow, and horror at what she has done are terrible to witness.

The picture would be better, I think, if some of the battle scenes were cut, for there's a good deal of repetition here. But "Comrades of 1918" is, as a whole, a fine, worthwhile production, and a powerful argument against war.

See you tomorrow.

Maude Adams Invents New Stage Lighting System

New York, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Maude Adams, who is coming back to the stage after 13 years, has perfected a new process of stage lighting and a system of remote control. Miss Adams, who for years has been interested in photography and lighting, said the new bulb she has perfected is 30 times as powerful as modern spotlights.

St. Elizabeth's Drinking Glass Over 700 Years Old

COBURG, Germany, Oct. 15.—(AP)—The approaching celebration of the 700th anniversary of the death of St. Elizabeth has reawakened interest in a historic relic, the gift of a returning crusader to his wife and once the property of Martin Luther.

St. Elizabeth's drinking glass, a vessel of heavy smoked glass attributed to Egyptian workmanship, is one of the most prized items in the art collection of the princes of Coburg in the historic castle of Veste Coburg. It is adorned with an ornamental design and stands upon an irregular base.

Louis IV., langdrave of Thuringia, brought it back from a crusade and gave it to Elizabeth, his wife.

When she was driven from their castle, the Wartburg in Eisenach, by her brother-in-law after her husband's death, the glass was left behind.

Later the glass came into the possession of Elector Frederick the Wise of Wittenberg, who bequeathed it to Martin Luther.

Pershing Greets Petain in U. S.; Ready for Fete

French Marshal Talks to American People.

Yorktown, Va., Oct. 15.—(AP)—The sunlit portals that guard historic Virginia's gateway to the Atlantic capes Henry and Charles saw another gallant Frenchman enter American waters today, this time Henri Petain, marshal of France, who came to help America celebrate with pomp and pageantry the 150th anniversary of the battle of Yorktown.

The hero of Verdun landed at Old Point Comfort from the cruiser Duquesne. He was greeted on behalf of the government by Gen. John J. Pershing.

From another French warship, the cruiser Suffren, came ashore another group of distinguished foreign guests, descendants of Washington's comrades in the Yorktown siege. Other invited guests from foreign lands came by train, and they, too, counted among them such names as De Chambrun, De Broglie, De Rochambeau, and Von Steuben.

The four day celebration will start officially tomorrow. It will continue through Monday. On that day President Hoover will deliver the sesquicentennial address on behalf of the nation and witness the scene portraying the surrender of Lord Cornwallis.

Gen. Pershing, in greeting Marshal Petain, said:

"On behalf of the President of the United States and on my own behalf, it is my great pleasure to welcome you this day to American soil."

Marshal Petain smiled and replied in French:

"Landing on American soil, it is indeed for me a great pleasure to be welcomed in the name of the American government by you, dear general. In turn I convey to the American government and to the American people the salute of France."

It was Marshal Petain who sympathized with the A. E. F. commander on his unrelenting stand for a separate American army. Gen. Pershing has never forgotten that.

Then, too, Pershing and Petain are the only survivors of the highest allied military command on the western front. Haig, French, Foch, and Joffre—all have passed on.

With Gen. Pershing at the dock to welcome the French delegation were Gov. Pollard of Virginia, Senator Swanson of this state, chairman of the United States Yorktown Sesquicentennial commission, and others.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, widow of the world war President, was among hundreds who looked down on the scene from a balcony at the Chamberlin hotel.

Emil Cooper Arrives for Third Civic Opera Season

Emil Cooper, who used to conduct the Imperial Moscow opera and the Moscow Symphony orchestra as well in the late years of the czarist régime, arrived yesterday to begin his third season with the Chicago Civic opera. During the past months he has conducted operas in Germany, Poland, Rumania, Spain, and France, but of Russia he had little to say except that he broke with that country with the soviet régime and is now a French citizen. Cooper will conduct here "Carmen," "Boris Godounoff," "Herodiade," and "Samson and Delilah."

FRANKLIN C. WATKINS WINS TWO PRIZES AT CARNEGIE ART SHOW

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 15.—(AP)—Franklin C. Watkins, a young Philadelphia artist, born in New York, who was not among the artists invited to the exhibition, but came in through the American jury of admission, today was announced as the winner of the first Carnegie prize of $1,500 and also the Lehman prize of $2,000 for the best purchasable painting at the thirtieth Carnegie Institute international exhibition of painting. His creation is entitled "Suicide in Costume."

It was the first time since 1923 that an American artist had won first place.

Mario Sironi, Milan, Italy, won the second prize of $1,000 for his painting, "Fishermen."

The third prize, $500, went to Raoul Dufy, a French modernist, for his painting, "The Avenue of the Bois de Boulogne."

Judson Smith of Woodstock, N. Y., won first honorable mention and a prize of $300 for "A Deserted Mill."

Yasuo Kunivoshi of New York also was awarded an honorable mention for his "Still Life."

The Allegheny County Garden club prize of $300, offered for the best painting of a garden of flowers, was given to Andrew Dasburg of Santa Fe, N. M., for his painting, "Bouquet."

Stock Opens Season with His Orchestra

Program Given with the Usual Skill.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Another era of good feeling, otherwise another season of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, got under way at Orchestra hall last night.

FREDERICK STOCK.
[Carson Pirie Underwood.]

This is no time to estimate the balancing power of music, when applied to stock market quotations. It is decidedly the time to welcome a new season by the great orchestra that operates under Mr. Stock's baton. Last night was one of the events to be remembered under any circumstances, any kind of prosperity, or the lack thereof. The orchestra was back on the stage.

Though rehearsals began no longer ago than last Monday, it was just about midseason form for the orchestra. As for Mr. Stock, he would seem to grow younger each year, to take a more enthusiastic view of his music and display a more vigorous command and power in its projection.

One needed to look no further than the symphony. Somewhere in one of that joyous set of books called "Boners" there is a statement that Beethoven composed three symphonies, the third, the fifth, and the ninth. This one happened to be the seventh, but unless the hearer had had the chance to watch Mr. Stock through several seasons, the conclusion would be reached that Beethoven had composed only one, and this was the one.

To be sure, Mr. Stock is likely to give that impression no matter which of the set he happens to be directing, which is why it is well to observe him over a period of years before announcing a conclusion about him. The fact is that he plays Beethoven, as he did the seventh symphony last night, in the mood of an artistic adventure, something where great deeds, stimulating and pleasant, are to be waged. It is one of the things that keep his Beethoven so entirely vital from season to season. Incidentally, it is something of a key to the man himself.

The program paid its respects to two periods of music, the early nineteenth century and the early twentieth. It began with the overture to "Rienzi," not the first composition but the first success of that amazing person, Richard Wagner. It then passed to the symphony, one of the greatly dramatic incidents in the musical life of Wagner. An intermission followed, with time to get set for a new attitude toward music.

This was represented by Debussy's "La Mer" and then the last number, the orchestral suite from Stravinsky's ballet, "The Fire Bird." Here there was color, fancifulness, emotion that refused to stay cooped up in any formalities of construction. Again Mr. Stock assumed the right and proper mood. By some curious craft of his own, his "Fire Bird" performance began to bring back the scene of some years ago when the curtain went up on the stage of the old Auditorium to disclose that breathtaking picture of the Diaghileff company as it presented "The Fire Bird" for the first time in this city.

This was something like magic. What I am trying to convey is that this was a great concert, and that once again there is good cause to think of the Chicago Symphony orchestra and Mr. Stock's domination over it as one of the Chicago glories. It is true that for the first time since Theodore Thomas founded the organization forty years ago the music that used to be played on Saturday nights is now being played on Thursday nights. But there is nothing sacrosanct about a custom and nothing fatal about breaking a habit. The change did not affect Mr. Stock and his men in the least. In fact, they seemed all the better for it.

Southern Methodists Claim 400,000 in Decade

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 15.—(AP)—Bishop J. M. Moore, secretary of the college of bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, told the college at its semi-annual meeting here today that Methodism throughout the world gained 400,000 members during the last decade. Other bishops present included James Cannon Jr. of Washington, D. C., and A. Frank Smith of St. Louis.

MME. CURIE EXPLAINS NEW GAMMA RAYS TO WORLD SCIENTISTS

ROME Oct. 15.—(AP)—Mme. Marie Curie, co-discoverer of radium, stood up like a school teacher before some of the world's greatest physicists here today and explained further disclosures on the origin of the cosmic rays.

Mme. Curie and Prof. W. Bothe, German physicist, explained that an artificial ray called the gamma ray could be developed out of an atom. Speaking rapidly in French, she sketched algebraic formulae for her experiments in development of the artificial ray. She and Dr. Bothe said they had accomplished it by shooting an alpha ray at an atom. At the point of the alpha ray's impact with the atom a gamma ray of great penetrating power shot out.

Premier Mussolini will receive the scientists tomorrow.

The Marriage Racket

By VINA DELMAR

SYNOPSIS.

Tom Corbin and Don Philippe de Rodriquez, hoofers, with their pianist, Tom Libby, arrive in Thrace for a week's vaudeville engagement. A convention is being held in the town and the hotels are overflowing. Philippe grabs the first vacancy. Tom and Irma inquire at the town's leading hostelry, where Tom runs into an old friend, Bill Fitzroy. Tom finds a cot and Bill turns over his room to Irma. Bill invites Irma to a dinner party in the hotel, where she meets Wallace Graham, a widower. Wallace has a young daughter, Mildred, who has grown up under the supervision of her Aunt Tessie. Bill and Wallace shower invitations on the pretty dancer. Wallace asks Irma to be his wife. Bill's propos , to her is of a different nature. Irma quarrels with Philippe and quits the act. She marries Wallace and settles down to a dull existence with him. A baby son advises to compensate her for any flaws in the marriage system. The baby becomes the center of her universe. Wallace's lifelong ambition is a European voyage. A paid-up endowment policy makes the trip possible. Irma reluctantly agrees to leave the baby. She is dreadfully upset by a letter received in Paris from Aunt Tessie. Wallace tries unsuccessfully to change their return passage to an earlier date. While dining with the Derricks, whom they'd met on the boat, the Wallaces meet Russell Byrnes, a wealthy bachelor. He has a cabin on a boat sailing in two days which Irma persuades him to sell to Wallace.

INSTALLMENT XXIII.

A EUGENIC SELECTION.

It was raining when they arrived in Thrace. Irma was wet to the skin, sniffling miserably with a newly acquired cold and feeling dirty and tired beside. She had a feeling in the pit of her stomach that was not unlike stage fright. A horrible, hot sensation, part anxiety, part excitement, but mostly fear. She wished that those first few seconds at home were over. She would ask at once for the baby and a million years would elapse before the answer would come from between Aunt Tessie's dry, disapproving lips. What would the answer be?

There were lights in the living room. Before the taxi had stopped Irma saw Mildred standing in the center of the room turning slowly about while Aunt Tessie deftly placed a pin here and a pin there. They wouldn't be doing that if something was terribly wrong with the baby, common sense told her. But the curious, almost fantastic, streak which had developed within her since the baby's birth cried, "Why not? What's your baby to them?"

While Wallace paid the driver Irma ran up the steps and rang the bell. She was vaguely conscious of Aunt Tessie's exclamations, of Mildred's standing in the dimness.

"Why, we never expected you—I was just saying to Mildred—— Did you have a good time? Is Wallace ill? Didn't you like Europe?" What brought you home? Was it rough on the ocean? Were you seasick?"

"How—how is the baby?" Irma asked.

Wallace entered the foyer then and Aunt Tessie pounced upon him.

"I never expected you," she cried. "I was just saying to Mildred, 'Well, I wonder what your father and Irma are doing this evening?'"

Irma was suddenly, sharply aware of Mildred's arm around her and of a kiss dropped lightly upon her cheek. "The baby's fine," Mildred told her. "Come on up. We'll wake him."

Unaccountably Irma burst into tears as she followed Mildred up the stairs. There was something so damn solid about Mildred. Her character was as strong and determined as her beauty was ethereal and unreal. You got the truth from Mildred. It would have been the same if Irma's world had tumbled in her absence. No sugary evasions with Wallace's daughter. Mildred would have said, "The baby died." But she had said that he was fine.

"The baby's fine," Mildred told her.

Mildred turned on the light. For a few seconds the baby continued to sleep while Irma feasted her hungry eyes upon him. Then he awoke, creasing his little pink face into an expression of disapproval. She had him out of bed then, wrapping his blanket carefully about him, squeezing him gently, turning her face so that the cold germ would not seize him. O, the joy of being home again, of being with the baby, touching him, knowing that he was safe and alive.

"Did you think something was wrong with him?" Mildred asked.

Irma regretted the necessity of having to chide Mildred for her carelessness in the face of the girl's kindness.

"It was the automobile accident that worried me."

Mildred's placid, white brow puckered. "What automobile accident?"

"Why, when the baby was knocked down with the automobile."

"O. O, I see."

"Aunt Tessie wrote about it and I thought it might be more or less serious, you know. I though he should be X-rayed."

Mildred nodded gravely. "You remember, Irma, that you said I mustn't drive the car with the baby in it? Well, Aunt Tessie didn't want to get me in trouble, so she didn't tell you everything. Being an innocent, she didn't know how to get her message over without implicating me. But the baby's all right. You see, I disobeyed you. When I knocked him down I grabbed him and drove him to Trevor street. By bed time I knew there wasn't a bit of him hurt. You see," Mildred ran a slim, capable hand over the snowy whiteness of the baby's bed. "I'm kind of young and scientific myself."

Irma's cheeks burned hotly. It was cruel that Mildred could make her feel such an utter damn fool. It was still possible to thank her and compliment her on her quick thinking as a general might kindly praise one of his lieutenants.

"You did the proper thing, Mildred," Irma said. "You will make a splendid mother yourself, some day."

"Thank you," said Mildred. Irma might have felt that she had carried the matter off with elegant aplomb had she not looked up just then and seen the amusement on Mildred's face.

"You will," she repeated, "you'll make a splendid mother if you overcome your childish inclination to laugh in serious moments."

"Well," said Mildred, "anyhow, I've found the man who's going to be the father."

"You mean you're in love?"

The placid brow puckered again. "That's such a sickening word, Irma."

"Sickening at seventeen?"

"Well, I suppose it could sound enchanting at seventy if one's brain had never matured."

"My God," Irma said, "I knew we never should have gone away."

She bundled the baby beneath the covers, gave him one last contented pat and turned out the light. "Come on," she whispered. "We'll go in your room and you can give me some dry clothes and tell me all about it."

Downstairs Aunt Tessie was banging inefficiently about in the kitchen. Irma hoped she was preparing coffee and sandwiches. Thrace gossip would keep Wallace and his aunt busy for a bit. It occurred to Irma that only the most casual of greetings had passed between Mildred and Wallace. No wonder he could not understand her feeling for her baby.

Mildred reached into the closet and brought out a bathrobe, a night gown and some juliettes. "Make yourself at home," she said.

"So you're in love," Irma prompted, "or rather you've chosen a man to be the father of your children."

Mildred laughed. "Well, we're in love because that's the name people use, but Scott says that love is only a label that unimaginative people attach to a bundle of emotions because they're too lazy to name each emotion separately. We name them."

"Well, it's a pleasant pastime if you don't take offense," Irma said. "How old is this Scott person?"

"Twenty-six."

"Wow. This is serious."

"He's Jane Malcolm's second cousin."

"Aha. Money."

"No, not a cent."

"I suppose he's handsome?"

"Well, he has a fine physique, good skin, good teeth, and he's got brains."

Irma sat down suddenly and looked at Mildred searchingly. "Mildred, when I was seventeen and got a crush on a person I used to rave to my girl friends about his wavy hair and his cute dancing or his soulful eyes, and from all I can read and understand about seventeen year old girls that's normal. There's something weird about your cold cataloguing the gentleman's physique, teeth, skin and brains. I really believe you've picked a father for your children."

"I told you that I did."

"He's not the right man, kid. When the right man comes along you'll be so crazy about him you won't notice that he's got rickets, dandruff and halitosis. You've been reading pamphlets on eugenics, that's your trouble."

To Irma's surprise, Mildred flushed deeply. "You see," she explained, "I'm perfect weight and height and measurements. We had physical and mental exams up at the school. My teeth, eyesight and everything is perfect. I'm little above average mentally. Otherwise I'm a perfect specimen."

"Good God, are you a species of moth or something, Mildred?"

"No, I'm a potential progenitor of more importance than a moth," she explained gravely. "Dr. Filmore—it's a woman doctor—said I must choose a fine man and that I would have wonderful children."

"But she didn't mean when you were seventeen, Mildred."

"Perhaps not. But I met Scott that very week, and he's the man. He's simply a walking ad for good health and proper living. Jane says there's never been any illness in his family——"

"How do you feel when he kisses you?" Irma interrupted. "Or is kissing too unsanitary?"

Women Storm Junior League Clothing Sale

A flivver squad, three mounted policemen, and a dozen patrolmen tried in vain yesterday to maintain order at the annual Junior league fall sale of second hand clothing yesterday at 313 North Michigan avenue.

At 6 o'clock, two hours before the sale opened, the entrance was jammed with waiting customers, and by 9 o'clock only the march of policemen up and down the sidewalk prevented the swarm of militant bargain hunters from crashing through the plate glass windows.

The sale was all over by noon, and the bedraggled Junior leaguers staggered home to bed, without even waiting to add up the total profits, which were estimated to be more than $1,000.

These sales, which the Junior league conducts semi-annually with overwhelming success, offer discarded clothing of society women and debutantes at prices a little higher than the proverbial song. Yesterday hundreds of sports, afternoon and evening dresses, some of which were originally priced at $150 and up, were purchased for from $8 to $12 apiece. Hats, some with French labels, went for 50 cents and $1, and shoes were sold for as little as 25 cents.

The morning's casualties included crushed hats, a couple of purses lost in the crowds, a dress torn beyond repair when two women fought to claim it, and several bruised policemen, and general exhaustion on the part of the Junior league members.

Barbara and Dorothy Senn were chairmen of the sale, and assisting them as salesladies, cash girls, or wrappers, were Jane Martin, Winifred Wheeler, Dorothy Ranney, Jeanne and Katherine Street, Mrs. Edward Hagey, Leila Withers, Barbara Poole, Glorie Griffiths, Mrs. James R. Addington, Mrs. Charles H. Fargo, Jane Lucey, Janet Kirk, Virginia Wheeler, Betty Offield, and Jean Stevens.

Allow Your Children Appetite Variations You Enjoy Yourself

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

A woman I know says that if left to provide her own meals she would live on grapefruit and bread and butter—so indifferent if she to food.

A man I know says that he never goes to the table with any feeling of hunger. He is, however, very particular as to the quality of his food. And once at the table, he enjoys his food, eats little, and is healthy. He has been that way all his life.

Another man I know has a keen appetite, looks forward to his meals, and says that if he had been born in the day when people dined on pheasants, boar's head, suckling pigs, huge joints of beef or mutton, great flagons of wine, with only slight adulteration in the form of bread and fruits, that he's sure he would have had a grand time—and, incidentally, a grand case of gout.

These are extreme. Many variations lie in between. Adults differ greatly about food.

Now, if we will admit that children do, too, we'll get off to a good start. Some children always will be small eaters, some always will be big eaters. There are physical idiosyncracies that account for this—individualities that even doctors haven't fathomed and can't adjust.

These are continuous things. Then there are the occasional variations that children's eating is subject to, just as ours is. After too many meals of spinach or a batch of it that is bitter or acrid, a child may "go off" spinach. He may get tired of some other vegetable. Or he may have an off day, when he hasn't been outdoors enough or doesn't feel well, and he is only tempted by the things he likes best. Forcing under these conditions is unwise.

We have to allow for an individual difference in actual capacity for food, some individual food likes and dislikes, and some exceptions which are allowable. We have to be human, as I like to call it, in the matter of managing children's meals.

Boys, Here's a Tip: Forget About Charms of Last Night's Girl

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Boys, take a tip from teacher and DON'T entertain tonight's girl with last night's girl's charms! It's a line of conversation that blonds least prefer, likewise brunettes and red heads! Talk tonight's girl or no girl theme at all. That's my tip to you. And here's what some of the suffering girls think about it, with Rita as spokeswoman:

"I wonder if that young man troubled because he is no social lion has the habit in vogue at present among young, well educated supposedly cultured men? It is that of raving about the girl on the previous date.

"I'll pick one as a sample. This boy is from an excellent family, has had much travel experience, and is quite sophisticated in other things. Before the evening is half over, he begins on the date he had the evening before, talking at great length about the inestimable charms of the girl he was out with. Maybe the talk is to make us jealous, but it is a pretty conceited gesture, to say the least.

"I'm not just an isolated case of this kind of treatment. The majority of my friends hear the same thing, and like it no better than I do. Can't you, Miss Blake, make some comment on it? Tell the boys that a little of such medicine goes a long way."

Medicine is what the girls call it, just in case you overlooked that point, boys!

Consider how you'd feel should the girl choose as her entertainment theme the superior blessings, pictorial and otherwise, of her last evening's date. Wouldn't you get all hot and wilted around the collar edge? You'd just know that girl was too dumb for any future dating since she couldn't see what a swell boy you were.

The same reasoning goes for the other sex, too. Any boy who can't see that the girl he is out with tonight has her points which she doesn't mind having enlarged upon isn't up on his conversation, that's all.

PATTERNS BY CLOTILDE

[Registered U. S. Patent Office.]

WOMAN'S OR MISS' DRESS.

Many of the new dresses show an entirely new sleeve cut. And today's pattern expresses a charming example. The skirt has diagonal lines, cleverly used, which are both decorative and slimming. The fullness is concentrated at the center front through a circular godet. Marocain crêpe, flat silk crêpe, and sheer tweedlike woolens are suitable for this model.

The pattern, 3202, comes in sizes 16 and 18 years, and 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3¾ yards of 39 inch material.

FARM and GARDEN BY PAUL POTTER

NEW DANDELION TREATMENT.

Perfection of a new method for the extermination of dandelions in lawns has been announced at Iowa State college. There an inexpensive device has been constructed. Any tinner can make this apparatus from plans offered to the public on application to the botany department of the college at Ames, Ia.

In other devices, it is claimed, there was difficulty in applying chemicals to the dandelion plant without damaging plants or grass adjacent to the pest. The new hand operated machine is said to avoid this difficulty and makes a bid to eliminate some of the "back breaking" toil previously associated with successful dandelion digging.

A tin tube about two and one-half feet long and three inches in diameter has a handle at one end to operate a plunger, and a valve at the other end. When the valve is placed against a weed such as a dandelion, according to Dr. I. E. Melhus of the college botany and plant pathology department, the chemical solution is ejected on the plant to be destroyed without affecting other plants.

Two readily mixed solutions have been recommended after development in the department. One is "CK 10-90," which is composed of 10 parts of creosote and 90 kerosene, with a little road oil added to aid mixture of the main components.

Dandelions may be treated at any time of the year, says Dr. Melhus. After treatment he recommends stimulation of the lawn with powdered ammonium sulphate, two to three pounds to the square rod, filling up bare spots with consequent growth and thus crowding out other weeds. The fertilizer is best applied with sufficient moisture either through watering or before a rain, in order to avoid burning of foliage.

Junior Friends of Art.

The Junior Friends of Art are to hold their opening meeting of the season next Tuesday afternoon at the Drake hotel.

Urges Visits of Boys to Girls' Reform Schools

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 15.—(AP)—Mrs. J. L. Averitt, superintendent of the state industrial school for girls at Alexandria, La., told the 28th national conference of juvenile agencies that her experience indicated girls in state institutions are more amenable to corrective measures if their boy friends are allowed to visit them.

Tuberculin Tests for Children Are Urged Before Nurses

More widespread application of the tuberculin test to discover incipient tuberculosis, particularly in children, was advocated yesterday by Dr. J. A. Myers, director of the Lyman Hayes School for Tubercular Children, Minneapolis. He addressed the Illinois State Nurses' association, whose four day convention in the Palmer house will close late today.

No longer are calcified areas, or healed spots where tuberculosis is shown to have been present, considered an immunity to the disease, Dr. Myers pointed out. Every child who is exposed to tuberculosis is a potential case, he said.

Janet M. Geister, director at the headquarters of the American Nurses' association, New York, the largest organization of professional women in the country, embracing 107,000 members, spoke in the afternoon on the question of the oversupply of graduate nurses.

"Hospitals used to be used as places to die in. Now they are places to insure that a patient may keep on living," said Miss Geister. "They are now used for diagnostic purposes. The result is that fewer people in the homes need nurses, and bedside nursing in the homes is on the decline.

How to keep children free of DANDRUFF

Youngsters usually get loose dandruff at school; promiscuous use of combs, towels, etc., brings it on. At the first sign of it, go after it with Listerine, the safe antiseptic.

To combat loose dandruff you simply douse it on full strength and massage the scalp vigorously. Keep the treatment up systematically. Unless the case is a very serious one, requiring the attention of a physician, you will note improvement within ten days.

If infection is present on the surface of the skin, Listerine attacks it. A powerful germicide, it kills bacteria in 15 seconds, the fastest killing time accurately recorded by science.

Listerine helps to dissolve oily crusts and quickly removes them, as well as horny scales. And Listerine quickly relieves that burning, itching sensation. It soothes inflamed or irritated areas of the scalp.

If scalp is excessively dry, a little olive oil may be used in connection with the Listerine shampoo, or independent of it. The oil aids in dissolving crusts and scales and keeps hair from drying out.

Bright Sayings of the Children

I was buying some articles near the boys, and my little son asked for a new green truck which he greatly admired. I answered him, "Danny, I'm sure Santa Claus will bring you one for Christmas."

"But, mother, you remember, Santa was an old man last Christmas. He may be dead now." D. F. V.

OLD CHESTNUTS STILL FAVORITES IN MODERN AGE

Popcorn and Apples Are Abundant This Year.

BY EVERETT SWINGLE.

The chestnut is still in demand in Chicago, contrary to the belief the roasting of chestnuts belonged to a former generation, and is too tame for the modern age. Of course, chestnuts are rather inconsequential on the Chicago market compared to the volume of staple foods, but many store windows display them as time for Halloween rolls around again.

Many of the best producing trees of the state have been permitted to die, but the Illinois chestnut, because of its size, is still a favorite over the smaller imported Italian varieties. The home grown nuts are being retailed at 50 to 60 cents a pound and at 15 cents wholesale, while the imported nuts, soon to arrive, will sell wholesale for 15 to 20 cents a pound.

Apples Are Abundant.

This winter will find families that delight in simple recreations such as the popping of corn, roasting of chestnuts, and eating apples, well satisfied with what the market will offer. There is a bumper crop of apples and a plentiful supply of popcorn at low prices.

Last year the apple crop was considered heavy, with 347,226,000 barrels, but crop estimates for this year are for 378,751,000 barrels.

Home grown produce in general is still plentiful because there have been no frosts. According to W. H. Hall, market statistician on the fruits and vegetables, as soon as frost hits Illinois, Wisconsin, and Michigan fields, supplies of many commodities will be shortened and prices will rise.

This applies particularly to grapes, cooking apples, eggplant, beans, tomatoes, cauliflower, radishes, melons, and pears. Such fresh vegetables as carrots, beets, parsnips, cabbage, and onions can be stored on farms for several weeks.

Tomatoes Are Cheap.

Tomatoes continue to be cheap. Peddlers, equipped with wagons, are selling them at the doorstep for as little as 60 cents a bushel. Celery is selling wholesale for about three cents a bunch.

Citrus fruits this winter should be about as low in price as they have ever been, according to reports of the amounts likely to be shipped out of Florida, Texas, and California.

Texas is prepared to ship a larger crop of grapefruit than usual and Chicago probably will see as much Texas as Florida grapefruit this coming winter, market forecasters say. The two states will furnish about 3,500 carlots for Chicago.

Oranges, too, are expected to flow out of California and Florida in truckloads. Prices on citrus fruits in the fall of 1930 and the winter of 1931 were said to be as low as possible on the basis of harvesting, handling and freight costs, and this same condition is expected to prevail for the next few months.

Prices on potatoes are still lower than last year's. Some of the ordinary run are being sold out in the country for as low as 65 cents a hundred pounds. Wholesale quotations in Chicago for some of the best Wisconsin potatoes this week ranged from 75 cents to 90 cents per hundred, with Idaho russets quoted at $1.35 to $1.55.

JUNE BERRY MAY BECOME A NEW MARKET CROP

June berries, now a crop produced wild in many sections of Minnesota, may soon add another fruit crop for city dwellers, if plans of the Minnesota college of agriculture fruit breeders materialize. The fruit is similar to the blueberry, but matures earlier.

Seed samples from hundreds of patches of the plants were collected this year and plantings will be started to determine what the cultivated plant may be expected to produce.

One advantage over the blueberry is expected to lie in the fact that the latter is productive only on acid soils and low growing bushes, while the June berry bush attains greated size and is less particular as to soil.

CHESTNUT TIME ARRIVES

Visions of cozy evenings spent before a fireplace roasting and eating chestnuts intrigue the fancy of Miss Bertha Farrar as she shops for some of the Illinois product at a wholesale house in South Water market. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Martha's Magic 'Cawn Pon" Ever Feast in Old Kentucky

BY WILLIAM IRVIN.

"Mah honey chile's a wearyin'
"Mah honey chile is sad—
"But I'se a-fixin' cawn pon'
"T' mak' mah honey glad . . ."

Martha's rich contralto floated out the cabin door, framed by honeysuckle, and diffused itself in cadences of soothing undertone that filled the crisp brilliance of the spring morning with warmth and color. It was wafted through an open window and into the drowsy subconsciousness of the little girl whose sleep had been filled with visions of an endless succession of curious little imps bearing immense trays of corn pone—deliciously browned pone that only Martha could make. The imps had not stopped to offer her any, but had kept passing on and on in a tantalizing parade that made the little girl twist and squirm in her desire to run after them and snatch only a wee bit.

To Make "Mah Honey Glad."

The last imp was passing as Martha's soothing cadences penetrated to her subconsciousness and resolved themselves into the familiar words of Martha's quaint ditty:

"But I'se a-fixin' cawn pon'
"T' mak' mah honey glad . . ."

White feet sped over the rough ground to Martha's cabin, and the little girl burst through the cabin door followed by a taffy-colored braid that stood almost at right angles in her swift flight. With a squeal of delight she buried her head in the folds of Martha's ample dress.

"O, Martha, corn pone today?"

"Cawn pon' for mah honey, cawn pon', cawn pon'," Martha intoned, her gleaming hands moving from task to task in symmetry of motion that fascinated the little girl.

Her Magic Never Explained.

Martha's cawn pon' days were an event for the whole Kentucky countryside, for Martha's corn pone was calculated to arouse an insatiable craving for more pone than Martha was ever able to supply. No one, apparently, ever fathomed wherein lay the magic of Martha's corn pone. Perhaps there was none, except that it was because Martha herself made it, huge, amiable Martha in bandanna and checkered apron filling the cabin with the warmth of her rich melody. Or, perhaps, it was because Martha molded her pone into a variety of sizes and shapes and baked it in a skillet with coals of fire.

But having seen Martha only through the eyes of little Granny Watwood, whose girlhood in the days immediately preceding the civil war and before Martha was formally emancipated, were a delightful succession of corn pone feasts, I imagine that Martha and her corn pone went together—if you get what I mean.

SPICES BRING KING'S LUXURY TO EVERY HOME

"A little spice goes a long way in the average kitchen, but men in the past have traveled far longer distances for small quantities of these valuable palate pleasers," says W. R. M. Wharton, chief of the federal food and drug administration's eastern district. "The quest for spices has set armies marching, set the hammers ringing in a thousand shipyards, and raised the black flag to the tip of the tall mast of innumerable pirate vessels."

Spices no longer reach our shores in plodding four-masters; they come in huge freighters and ships of the line. But they still come—from the four corners of the tropical world—and the luxury of kings has become a commonplace in the most humble home.

Imports Total Millions.

The extent of spice imports to the United States is suggested in Mr. Wharton's latest report of spice shipments and detentions at eastern district ports of entry. His report covers the year which ended May 31, 1931, and shows that of more than 31,000,000 pounds of spices examined in that year by federal officials of the eastern district only about one and one-half million pounds were detained because they failed to meet the standards of quality and purity set under the federal food and drugs act.

Since the bulk of America's spice supply enters the United States through ports of the eastern seaboard, the fact that but 3.9 per cent of all lots offered for entry at these ports was detained by government food officials indicates the high quality of spices reaching our shores, says Mr. Wharton.

Meet Pure Food Regulations.

Spices are required to be essentially free from foreign material, and if federal inspectors find any appreciable amount of dirt, sand, stems, moisture, or evidence of worminess or moldiness in stocks offered for entry they detain them. Sometimes it is possible to remove this extraneous material and bring the spices up to the standards set under the law. In this case they are reconditioned and then allowed to enter the channels of commerce in the United States.

The pure food law requires that all imported foods and drugs—and all foods and drugs shipped in interstate commerce in this country—be pure, wholesome, and honestly and truthfully labeled. Of 1,959 shipments of spices docked at eastern seaboard ports in the year ended May 31 sixty-seven were detained.

Black pepper led all spices in bulk of imports during the year, followed in order by mustard seed, caraway seed, cassia and cinnamon, ginger, and nutmegs.

117 HATCHERIES PRODUCE TROUT FOR FRYING PAN

Delicacy Now Available to Nonanglers.

BY ANGELA PETESCH.

All of us do not find it possible to follow the great sport of trout fishing. That does not mean, however, that we are not able to enjoy the delicacy, no matter how remote we are from the trout streams. Fishermen, no doubt, follow the stream primarily for the sport of catching the gamey fish. But when these same fishermen are tied down to their desks and offices and haven't the opportunity of spending a few hours angling, I am sure they still enjoy eating trout, even if those trout have been raised in a hatchery.

I am told that the commercially raised fish are every bit as good as those caught with a fly. Still, there is a certain sentiment lacking.

Rainbows Rank First.

There are a number of these trout hatcheries all over the United States that supply our markets with fine fish. Rainbow trout rank first. They grow to a greater size than brook trout and are hardier.

This relatively new industry has grown tremendously during recent years, until now there are 117 hatcheries in the United States, not counting those owned or controlled by the national government or the states. It is, in fact, grown to a $12,000,000 industry.

The primary requisite for the establishment of a hatchery is a good supply of pure, cold water, such as is found in the mountain streams. The most important states from the standpoint of production are Colorado, South Dakota, New York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, and Wisconsin. Of these states Colorado has the largest production.

When the stream and the site have been selected, a second channel is made parallel to and connecting with the main stream so that the fresh cold water will flow through continually. This second channel is enclosed at both ends in order to hold the fish back and is also partitioned off to separate the fish of different ages and stages of development.

Hatched in Tanks.

The eggs are purchased from the government hatcheries at the rate of approximately $30 a thousand. These eggs are then hatched under the proper conditions and temperatures in tanks that are enclosed. Two months after hatching the fish are put out in the open but are kept in a separate enclosure as a protection against the larger fish. Fish weighing a half pound are the preferred size for the market. The time required to raise fish to this marketable size is 18 months or 2 years. The larger hatcheries accommodate about 1,500,000 fish and two or three tons of fish mature to marketable size every week.

Feeding time for the fish is usually late in the afternoon—around four o'clock. Beef trimmings shipped from the slaughter houses are sometimes used as a food and those hatcheries located in the west use wild horse meat. The fish also are fed barley and cornmeal. It is during the feeding process that the fish that are being shipped to market are caught. They are caught in a net, killed immediately and packed preparatory to shipping.

Government Buys Live Fish.

The United States government, which is the largest customer of the fish hatcheries, buys great numbers of live trout for the purpose of restocking the streams. These fish are not fed for four days prior to shipping. A messenger and an attendant must accompany the shipment. The tanks are oxygen equipped.

Trout destined to reach the consumer's market are shipped by express and are, of course, carefully packed in boxes lined with parchment paper and are very often individually wrapped in cellophane or oiled paper to prevent the loss of moisture. They are iced every few hours, and under normal conditions reach the Chicago market 26 hours after shipment from South Dakota and just 12 hours from Wisconsin.

Now the best way to cook this fish to serve to the family for dinner is to fry it in butter or broil it. Have the fish scaled and cleaned first, of course. Then if you want to fry it, dip the cleaned fish in flour and put in a hot frying pan with plenty of melted butter. Fry on both sides until crisp and brown. For broiling, split the trout and lay it flesh side up on the broiling rack. Place under the flame and cook until tender and a delicate brown. Serve with drawn butter and smack your lips.

WISCONSIN DRAWS HEAVILY ON ILLINOIS PEARS FOR CANNING

Wisconsin housewives canned more of the commercial crop of Illinois pears than did Illinois kitchen experts this year, according to figures of car unloadings in Chicago. Out of more than 100 carloads of pears only about 10 were unloaded here, while the remainder were reconsigned into areas where pear trees are scarce. As a result, Chicagoans had "the pick of the crop" as it came into the city by boat, truck and rail.

DON'T WORRY AT TABLE, AND EAT THINGS YOU LIKE

Expert Advises Against Dining by Advice.

Ithaca, N. Y., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Figuring up the day's losses on the stock market while eating is like loading the dice against the eater, in the opinion of Prof. A. L. Winsor of the New York State college of home economics. He has completed a study on the effects of different systems of eating.

Foods, he finds, have little value when taken on prescription or persuasion, as appetite is nature's dietary guide. Pleasant and congenial meals are not only necessary but only possible when care and problems have been left outside the dining room along with coats and hats and other encumbrances.

There is a common belief that appetite and hunger are the same thing, yet the two are different, explains Dr. Winsor. Scientists have definitely localized hunger as a function of the stomach, and find that the contraction of an empty or nearly empty stomach is the source of hunger pains. As the stomach is filled and the walls expand, hunger disappears.

Appetite Born of Memory.

Appetite has been found to emanate from the mouth and throat area and is influenced by previous tastes or odors of food. Pavlov, the Russian physiologist, defines appetite as the flowing of digestive juices aroused by the memory of food. The familiar watering of the mouth at the sight of what is considered appetizing food also characterizes appetite, he says.

In laboratory studies at Cornell for the last three years a small silver suction disc has been placed over the mouth of one of the important salivary ducts to measure the saliva flow in the mouth of the person studied. The apparatus does not interfere enough to disturb the person studied while he is eating, sleeping, or studying.

In one experiment the flow of saliva is measured while the subject is sitting quietly at a table. The flow is .17 cubic centimeter in five minutes. A piece of candy is placed in front of the person and in the next five minutes he secretes .98 cubic centimeter of saliva. Apparently he likes candy, Prof. Winsor observes.

Bad Effect of Worry.

Next the experimenter busies himself with an apparatus for giving an electric shock and fastens the electrodes on the subject's arm. The shock is not administered but the anxiety about the shock stopped the flow of saliva during this period.

Most persons lose appetite when they are worried or anxious. An excited speaker turns repeatedly for water to wet his dry throat. In war, first aid ministrers observed that a conscious wounded man was always thirsty. Fear had inhibited the flow of secretions which ordinarily kept his mouth and throat moist.

This is true, says Prof. Winsor, of the child who is being scolded at the table, the father who is worrying about his business, or the mother worrying about her child. Even a mild emotional disturbance causes a person to lose appetite.

What Smoking Does.

Preliminary experiments indicate that smoking a cigaret or pipe for the first time is definitely followed by inhibition of the salivary secretions. However, when a habitual smoker is tested, an increased flow of saliva usually follows smoking. This may explain why a smoke tastes good to a smoker after a meal. Ordinarily, according to Prof. Winsor, there is usually little secretion after a meal, and the smoke which stimulates the secretion causes the smoker to enjoy the pleasure which comes from appetite.

Exact effects of other substances have not been determined but preliminary experiments indicate that a cup of coffee is followed by increased secretions for about a half hour. Some emotions may inhibit appentite, but others may have the opposite effect.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

Save leftover egg yolks by covering them with cold water and keeping them in the refrigerator, or by dropping the yolks into boiling water and cooking them until hard. If cooked when the yolk is cold it may be pressed through a sieve and used to garnish creamed dishes or salads.

POMELO EASILY CANNED, AND IS WORTH CANNING

New Grapefruit Crop in Market Now.

Did you have your pomelo this morning? Chances are about one in ten that you did, for that is the estimated proportion of mornings in which the average Chicagoan eats "grapefruit," the real name of which is pomelo.

That doesn't mean that the so-called grapefruit is a gay deceiver, says Louise L'Engle of the Iowa State college foods and nutrition department. She would rather class the pomelo as "a most excellent citrus fruit which gained its widely used nickname from the fact that the fruit hangs in clusters on the trees, not unlike grapes on a vine."

Canning a Simple Process.

One of Miss L'Engle's suggestions to the housewife interested in grapefruit has to do with the ease with which it can be canned for times of shortage. The first of the 1931 crop is coming to market now, which means that housewives can continue to can grapefruit or delay such conserving until late in spring.

A thorough washing of the fruit is the first step. Then it is peeled and sectioned to remove the seeds and bitter membranes which enclose each segment. Whole segments are then packed in cans and the proper amount of sugar is added.

Sweeten with Sirup.

Sirup containing about 35 to 40 per cent sugar usually is used. The ripeness of fruit and the quality desired affects this. High temperature in processing affects the quality and flavor.

For the best product, the Iowa college kitchen experiments indicate a temperature not to exceed 185 degrees is most satisfactory during the exhausting and processing periods.

CLEAN UP IN OCTOBER.

October offers a last chance for cleaning chimneys and furnace, and marking, cleaning, and storing screens and awnings, before the days of frost arrive.

THIS IS GOOD YEAR FOR FAMOUS GRAPE JUICE TONIC CURE

"Europe's famed 'grape cure' should be within reach of all this year, for Illinois has a large crop of fine quality grapes much of which might well be made into unfermented grape juice for home use," says A. S. Colby, chief of small fruit culture at the college of agriculture, University of Illinois.

"Grape juice is an excellent and delicious beverage, containing at it does grape sugar, mineral salts, neutralizing acids and fruit proteins—a healthful, appetizing and easily digested food. It is widely known as a tonic beverage, and in Europe patients take what is called the 'grape cure.'"

Meat Council Says Pork, Veal, Smoked Cuts Cheap

In its regular weekly report, issued for the guidance of consumers, the committee on marketing information of the Meat Council of Chicago states:

"Pork represents an unusually economical meat buy for the Chicago housewife over the coming week-end. Shoulder roasts of veal and smoked meats also represent good bargains in retail meat stores."

for CLOROX

BLEACHES

REMOVES STAINS

DESTROYS ODORS

and KILLS GERMS

A NEW conception of cleanliness! One that only Clorox—bleach, stain-remover, deodorant and disinfectant all in one—can give.

In laundering, for instance: White cottons and linens—especially personal garments and baby things—need not be boiled when Clorox is used, yet they will come out of the wash snowy-white, stain-free and disinfected. (Stubborn stains—ink, fruit, medicine, beverage, even scorched spots and mildew—respond easily to a slightly stronger Clorox solution.)

Then general cleaning: Painted woodwork, drainboards, kitchen and pantry shelves, refrigerators, drainpipes and garbage cans are quickly and easily cleansed, deodorized and disinfected when Clorox is used.

And bathroom cleaning: Clorox makes tubs and basins clean and shining, linoleum and tile spotless, toilet bowls stainless and odorless—and all of them disinfected.

Use Clorox and you will appreciate what this new conception of household cleanliness means in your home. "It's the and that makes the difference"—the priceless double-action of Clorox which both cleanses and disinfects. Try Clorox once. You will soon use it in laundry, kitchen and bathroom.

BY MARY MEADE.

There is no meal that should be planned more carefully than a child's school lunch. It has to supply one-third of his food needs for the day. The sandwich, pickle, potato chip and cake that once accompanied young hopeful to the school doorstep has now given way to a scientifically balanced, appetizing and nourishing luncheon. Some youngsters attend schools which provide inexpensive lunches, and the dietary properties of these children's lunches are insured. Many schools, however, lack eating facilities, while reduced family budgets may, in a number of cases, make it necessary this year to return to the old fashioned lunch box.

What They Should Eat.

To be interesting and appetizing in appearance meals should include foods varying in shape, color, flavor, and texture. Every day's lunch should include, too, material for energy [fat, sugar, and starch], growth and repair [protein and minerals], protection [vitamins] and bulk.

Fruit in some form is necessary in every school child's menu. If possible put in a thermos bottle filled with milk, a milk vegetable soup, or a hot milk drink such as cocoa, and the various flavors of malted milks. The lunch may also contain a sweet, such as dried fruits, a piece of cake, or homemade cookies. A small fruit salad packed in a jelly glass is popular with children and may prove a welcome surprise in the lunch box. Sandwiches, which are the foundation of such a lunch, should have substantial fillings, such as cheese, eggs, meat and nut butters. Both brown and white breads may be used, and tend to provide variety. The types of sandwiches suggested are particularly important if milk does not accompany the lunch. Take care to have them tasteful and attractively wrapped so that they have a maximum appearance appeal.

Canned foods may simplify the preparation of these lunches for some mothers, and quite frequently they reduce the cost. Seasonable meals are always more economical. If budget and market permit incorporate fresh vegetables in the many kinds of vegetable soups.

Refrigerator leftovers may be thriftily revamped for the school lunch. We just referred to fresh vegetables. The few carrots remaining from last night's dinner will form an excellent starting point for such a soup, though the same may be true of whatever vegetable you have on hand. Either mash them through a colander or chop them fine, and put them with hot milk—one part carrots to two parts of milk. Add a bit of butter, and a pinch of salt. Stir the ingredients together while they heat in a double boiler, and then pour quickly into a warmed thermos.

Here Are Some Suggestions.

When a number of different vegetables are used, they may be boiled for a few minutes in water to cover and then rubbed through a strainer or purée sieve. One of the small cans of puréed vegetables, such as are sold for babies, may also be used for the vegetable and act as a basis for the soup.

The monotony of preparing school lunches, either the lunch box or the luncheon served at home, can be greatly relieved by the use of definitely planned menus. The menus below are intended as a guide to planning school lunches as a part of the every day diet.

DON'T STARCH LINEN BEFORE PACKING.

Cotton and linen dresses should be washed but not starched or ironed befre packing for the winter. Silk should be rolled rather than folded.

FEWER CHICKENS FOUND ON FARMS THAN LAST YEAR

A reduction in the number of chickens on farms, due chiefly to last year's drought and subsequent low prices for chickens and eggs, is reported by the bureau of agricultural economics, U. S. department of agriculture.

The bureau estimates that on Jan. 1, 1931, there were 459,402,000 chickens on farms, compared with 470,463,000 on Jan. 1, 1930, and that there has been a reduction of about 10 per cent in the number of chickens raised this year, compared with last. Hens and pullets of laying age in farm flocks on Sept. 1, 1931, showed a decrease of 3.4 per cent from Sept. 1, 1930.

The chicken industry reached its peak of expansion on Jan. 1, 1930, according to bureau estimates, the number of chickens on farms having increased from 418,000,000 on Jan. 1, 1925, to more than 470,000,000 on Jan. 1, 1930. Last summer's drought, which resulted in the smallest corn crop in thirty years, prevented further expansion, and the lowest chicken prices in twelve years during the last half of 1930 was another discouraging influence. This was followed in the winter of 1930-'31 and early summer of 1931 by prices of eggs below pre-war levels. However, prices received for both chickens and eggs later this season have been relatively better than for most other farm products.

HERE'S A RECIPE FOR CHEESE CAKE; IT'S DELICIOUS

Also Other Offerings from Tribune Cook Book.

"While in the south last winter I enjoyed a delicious cheese cake, but I can find no recipe for it that I like as well as the original. Have you one which you can send me? I think your readers might enjoy it in the daily column," writes Mrs. L. E. N.

So here is the cheese cake. It is not a southern cake that I know of, but it is delicious.

LEMON CHEESE CAKE.

½ cup of butter
¾ cup of sugar
yolks of four eggs
1 tsp. of lemon juice
1 tsp. of grated lemon rind
¾ cup of pastry flour
½ cup of cream
whites of 4 eggs bread crumbs
1 pound of cottage cheese

Cream the butter. Add the sugar and cream together. Add the unbeaten egg yolks, one at a time. Beat each into the mixture well before adding the next one. Add the juice and rind of the lemon. Mash the cheese through a strainer before mixing it with the flour and cream. Add the cheese mixture to the butter mixture. Combine the two thoroughly. Beat the egg whites until stiff and carefully fold into the cake. Pour into a deep greased baking pan which has been dusted with fine bread crumbs. Bake in a very moderate oven [325 degrees Fahrenheit] until the cake is set, or until it is firm when touched with a finger.

Cheese cake—or no cheese cake—Saturday's recipes claim their share of attention, too.

CHOW MEIN.

2 tsps. of Chinese sauce
1 box of noodles
lard
1½ tsps. of salt
1 cup of meat cut in strips [pork or chicken preferred]
1 large onion, chopped fine
1 stalk of celery, chopped fine
½ cup of canned mushrooms
1½ tsps. of cornstarch
4 tsps. of soy bean sauce
1 tsp. of sugar
½ cup of water

Boil the noodles ten minutes in salted water. Drain and allow cold water to run over them. Fry them in hot lard with one teaspoon of salt until a golden brown. Drain and place on a hot platter.

Mix the meat with one-half teaspoon of cornstarch, one-half teaspoon of salt, and three teaspoons of the Chinese sauce and fry gently until brown. Then add the onion, celery, and sliced mushrooms. Cover and let steam about fifteen minutes, stirring occasionally. Make a sauce of one teaspoon of cornstarch, four teaspoons of soy bean sauce, one teaspoon of sugar, and one-half cup of water. Bring this mixture to a boil. Pour over the vegetables. Mix thoroughly and spread over the hot noodles on the platter. Decorate the top with egg threads.

APRICOT DAINTY.

½ pound of dried apricots
sugar to taste
1 cup of marshmallows
cocoanut or chopped nuts

Soak the apricots over night in cold water. In the morning drain and cook in boiling water until tender. Mash and add sugar to taste. Cool slightly, add the marshmallows, and stir them in as they melt. Put the mixture in sherbet glasses and sprinkle with cocoanut or chopped nuts.

Yield: Four servings.

SLEEPY COOKIES.

1 cup of molasses
1 cup of sour cream
½ cup of sugar
1 cup of shortening
2 eggs
1 tsp. of ginger
2 tsps. of soda
4 cups of flour

Mix all the ingredients together and let stand in a cold place over night. In the morning roll—not too thin—and bake in a hot oven [425 degrees Fahrenheit].

Cranberry jelly sliced and cut into odd shapes with a cookie cutter or a knife makes an attractive and unusual garnish for salads and desserts.

If food looks tempting and delicious when it comes to the table it is seldom necessary to nag or beg children to eat it.

Even the best made pie may become indigestible when eaten at the end of a hearty meal.

It takes food to make flesh so an increased appetite is the first essential in bringing underweight to normal.

To remove insects from cauliflower, stand it head down for a few minutes in a salt or vinegar solution.

If doughnuts crack in frying try less baking powder in the recipe.

BIG BROOM CROP GIVES ILLINOIS A CLEAN SWEEP

State Is Center of Great Household Industry.

BY PAUL POTTER.

The old lady of nursery jingle fame who swept the cobwebs from the sky and the witches who sally forth at Hallowe'en on their broomhandles toward the moon would be surprised if they could see the neat modern broom.

Brooms made of even and tightly bound resilient straws at the end of the saw or other light wooden handles are not fully appreciated by many Chicagoland housewives, even though they cannot do without them. They do not realize that these everyday brooms come from the cornfields of Illinois or Oklahoma, just as their husbands seldom realize that there is good chance of their cigar tobacco coming from Wisconsin farms within a few hours' drive of the city.

Broom straws come from a corn plant that is a near relative of ordinary maize. Until recently a few counties in central Illinois have supplied the bulk of the nation's broom corn straws.

Credited to Franklin.

Benjamin Franklin, when he wasn't editing Poor Richard's Almanac or kiting the skies for electricity, was looking for novel garden seed. A friend sent him a whisk broom from the old country and the Yankee sage, in his ingenuity if not frugality, plucked some seed from it. That was the nation's first little crop of broom corn.

A few years later a bachelor named Dickenson, living near North Hadley, Mass., got some of this seed and was the first American to use the straws in a broom. He said he had become tired of shaving down a hickory stick to sweep with, as was the custom of Pilgrim housewives.

From Massachusetts the plant was taken to the Mohawk valley in New York, and later into Ohio and Tennessee. In the late '60's Col. Cofer of Arcola, Ill., visiting his son, who was a broom maker at Nashville, brought some seed back for his garden. The next spring J. K. Breeden and his brother planted a field of it, and soon the neighbors had joined in what still constitutes a two million dollar industry in Coles, Moultrie, and Douglas counties of this state.

Crop Known as "Brush."

Until you have seen the waving fields of broom corn in early August, just before these Illinois farmers harvest the crop of "brush," you can not fully appreciate the romantic story of your humble broom.

Fields of jungled stalks wave in the breeze, each stalk topped with a plume rivaling the major domo's hat in a fife and drum corps. Cut from the stalk while still a pale green color, this brush is cleaned of seed and cured, and wired to a handle in factories in Chicago and downstate communities.

Farmers' wives in days gone by had to feed and house the rugged crews of "broom corn johnnies," just as grain farmers' wives fed threshing crews, at harvest time. Now the men travel in cars, and harvest as they go, relieving much of this bygone home drudgery.

The johnnies came into a field at dawn, as soon as the dew was off in the morning sun. With large knives whipped to razor edge keenness, they grasp the broken down stalks and deftly part the brush from its parent stalk. The brush dries in the sun and at dusk is carted to the barns for threshing out the useless seeds, and stacked under shelter for curing.

About three weeks afterward the brush is baled and is ready for buyers from near and far who bargain with the owners for their season's needs. It takes two to four acres of land to yield a ton of broom straws.

The broom makers and corn growers report that modern housewives find more use than ever for the dependable brooms. Sweepers and vacuum cleaners have risen in popularity, but the broom still holds its ground.

PROMPT ACTION IS REQUIRED FOR TEA AND COFFEE STAINS

Stains from spilled coffee or tea are difficult to remove if they have been neglected, but it's quite easy if given attention while still moist. Often soap and warm water will wash out coffee from clothing, or boiling water may be poured over the stain from a teakettle.

If the coffee stain persists after simple means are tried, then the use of a bleaching material is suggested. Sponging with lukewarm water is often effective on silk or wool stained with coffee.

For stains from tea which have been allowed to dry, soak in a borax solution, one-half teaspoon in a cup of water, and then rinse in boiling water. If the stain persists, moisten with lemon juice and place in the sun for a day or so.

MUSHROOM ONCE ASSOCIATED WITH REALM OF MAGIC

Difficult to Distinguish Good from Poisonous.

BY BETTY BROWNING.

Once upon a time mushrooms were held to be magical. How else in the prescientific era could be explained the fact that they appear overnight where none grew the day before? And that some delight the palate where others deal mysterious death to those who taste them?

Perhaps on a walk through woods and meadows this fall you have happened on a glade or sheltered hollow where mushrooms grew in a ring. Tracing the circle among the grasses and fallen leaves you too may have wondered how they came to grow that way.

A fairy ring, you might have thought a few generations ago. Then it was believed that fairies had a weakness for dancing in the moonlight, particularly under the round autumnal moon that shines at the height of the mushroom season. Wherever the fairies' feet fell, as they whirled in their dancing, it was said that a mushroom sprang up.

Rescued By Science.

But this is a food story, not a fairy story. Anyway, science frowns on such tales. It seems the fairy ring mushrooms, as they still are called, grow that way simply because they exhaust the food stores near at hand and expand in all directions to find more.

Science, however, substitutes its own marvels for those of legend. Squirrels and rabbits, it is a fact, collect and dry mushrooms for their winter food reserves. More wonderful still, Prof. W. B. McDougall of the University of Illinois in his book on fungi relates how tropical ants transport the mycellum of mushrooms to specially prepared beds and cultivate them for food, weeding out foreign growths.

Still to be told is the chief marvel of mushrooms. What flavor they add to a dish of meat, of game, or spaghetti, what gaps they fill in swelling the proportions of a dinner for unexpected guests, what zest for eating they inspire, served in solitary state, is a fit subject for poet, chef, and epicure combined.

Their Harvest Season.

No wonder mere men emulate the beasts and go mushroom hunting come October. Perhaps even as you stood just outside your enchanted ring of mushrooms, admiring the goldenrod, the asters, and bronzing foliage of the glade, a troop of children with a man at their head burst upon the scene, armed with sacks, and demolished the circle before your eyes.

An inspiring example, but one which the novice had better not emulate. The delicate coral fungi, the oyster mushrooms, clustered like shells, the puffballs are not difficult to recognize, but others are difficult to distinguish from poisonous varieties. Unfortunately human beings have not the instinctive ability of wild animals to distinguish the edible from the dangerous species, so that cultivated varieties must be depended upon for the cooking of all but a learned few.

Ways of Serving.

Mushrooms served by themselves are delicious grilled in butter or stewed in two ounces of butter with a dash of lemon juice and a mixture of blended flour and butter. As a garnish for steak peel them and sauté them in fresh butter until brown, stirring frequently to prevent burning.

FRENCH FRIED MUSHROOMS.

Use large mushrooms. Peel the caps and leave about ½ inch stem on each one. Make a batter of ¾ cup flour, pinch salt, ½ tsp. baking powder, 2 tbsp. milk and 1 egg. Sift the dry ingredients together and add the milk slowly. Beat the egg well and add to the batter. Dip each mushroom in the batter and fry in deep fat until a golden brown. Drain on unglazed paper.

MUSHROOM OMELET.

Make a 5 egg omelet. Peel ¼ lb. mushrooms and cut into thin slices. Sauté them in butter until they are thoroughly cooked. When the omelet is about ready to be served lay the mushrooms inside and fold the omelet over them. Serve immediately.

CREAMED MUSHROOMS ON TOAST.

Use 1 lb. fresh mushrooms. Peel the caps and leave ½ inch stem. Sauté in fresh butter, season with salt and pepper, and add 1½ tbsp. flour to thicken. Pour over them 1½ cups coffee cream. Cook slowly, stirring constantly for about 5 minutes. Serve on toast triangles.

ONION CROP OF 1931 IS 8,000,000 BUSHELS LESS THAN IN 1930

Onion production in the United States this year was about 40 per cent or 8,000,000 bushels less than in 1930. The chief decrease was in the states of New York, Ohio, Michigan, and Indiana, where fields produced about 5,000,000 bushels less this year. Reports from western states indicate that the decrease will be about another 2,000,000 bushels. Prices later this season are expected to reflect this as compared with low prices at present.

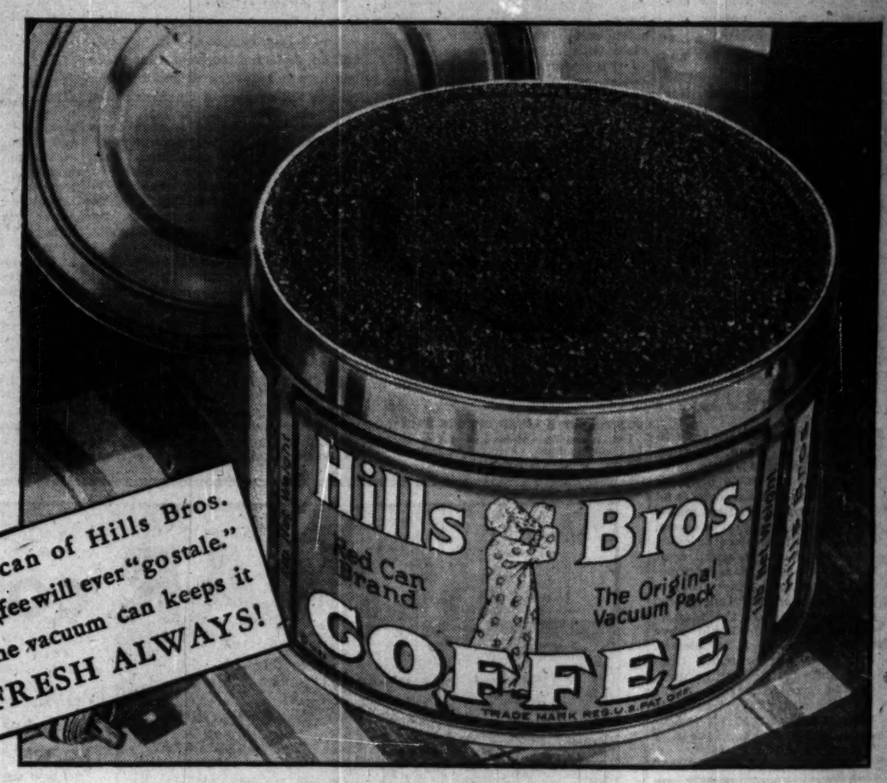
"A little at a time" —instead of in bulk— is the secret

As the accuracy of the hour-glass depends upon an even, continuous flow : : : a little at a time : : : so the uniform flavor of Hills Bros. Coffee is produced by Controlled Roasting —the patented process that roasts evenly, continuously : : : a little at a time.



No can of Hills Bros. Coffee will ever "go stale." The vacuum can keeps it FRESH ALWAYS!

The Original Vacuum Pack
COFFEE

Instead of roasting in bulk, which requires guesswork, Hills Bros. roast a little at a time. The rare blend of Hills Bros. Coffee passes through the roasters evenly, continuously. This automatic, patented process—Controlled Roasting—does away with guesswork, and insures exactness. It develops every berry to the fullest—a rich, refreshing flavor!

Every can of Hills Bros. Coffee has the same flavor, and every can is fresh! Air, which destroys the flavor of coffee, is removed and kept out of Hills Bros.' vacuum cans. Ordinary, "air-tight" cans won't keep coffee fresh. But Hills Bros. Coffee can't go stale—can't lose its aroma and flavor!

Pour a cup of Hills Bros. Coffee. One breath of its tempting aroma, and you drain the cup and pour another. After that—perhaps another. This is coffee! Ask for it by name, and look for the Arab trade-mark on the can.

YEP, IT'S 'PUNKIN' TIME! SEE THAT JACK O' LANTERN?

Big Orange Globes Yearn to Be Made Into Pies!

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

"In fruit beloved of boyhood! the old days recalling—
When wood grapes were purpling and brown nuts were falling,
When we laughed 'round the corn heap with hearts all in time
To hail a broad pumpkin, our lantern the moon,
Telling tales of the fairy who traveled like steam
In a pumpkin shell coach, with two rats for her team."

Yes, punkin' time is here, the same old punkin' time that John Greenleaf Whittier wrote about in this poem you recited in the days of readin', writin', and 'rithmetic. The October harvest moon is a little bit rounder and its chill gleam a little bit brighter. Mother is baking that first punkin' pie, father is storing away some of the big orange globes, and the youngsters—well, they already have their mind's eye for three or four jack o' lanterns, for Halloween's only a fortnight away.

Plentiful This Year.

Is there ever a time of the year like it? If you are lucky enough to have a crop of your own to harvest, you can pass the markets by with a regular glance. But for all of our readers without a garden patch, there's an abundant supply of fine pumpkins this year and they are cheap just like the tomatoes, and melons, and grapes that have gone before.

Everybody knows a pumpkin, according to common belief but it is surprising how frequently the fruit is mistaken for some varieties of squash. The old rule that pumpkins can be told by their slender, ribbed stems does not always hold good for these vines are found on the summer squash. A common field pumpkin cannot be mistaken for a squash but those of the sweet and pie pumpkins might fall in either class.

Grouped in Two Classes.

Though there are ever so many varieties of pumpkins, they may all be grouped in two classes, the ordinary field pumpkins, and the sweet or pie pumpkins that have been bred from common stock. The field pumpkin is believed to have been known to the native Americans and planted among its first corn crops. In fact, history records that the pumpkin has been cultivated in England since 1570.

Its uses are comparatively few since it cannot be eaten raw, but put them even to pumpkin pie and it is worth the work of cultivation. Pie, it is reported on good authority, is the most popular American dessert from coast to coast, and pumpkin pie stands right up at the top of the list. Proof of the popularity of pie was given recently by a well known lecturer and traveler who related that she always asked an audience of women: "What is your husband's favorite dessert?" "If all of these answers could be joined in a chorus," she said, "there'd be one grand and glorious shout for pie."

Can Be Canned, Too.

To this first and primary use for the pumpkin may be added that of food for live stock as well as its all important use for making Halloween jack o' lanterns. The New York state college of home economics at Cornell university says that pumpkins may be saved for meals later in the year by canning, by candying, or by making them into preserves.

"Pumpkins to be used later for pies or to be served as a vegetable should be washed, cut into slices, and steamed until they are tender," says the college bulletin. "Then put the pulp through a colander, stir it until it is smooth, and pack it into jars while it is still hot. Can it under ten pounds of steam pressure for 60 minutes.

How to "Candy" Pumpkins.

"Candied pumpkin, prepared like candied citron," the bulletin continues, "has a rich color and a delicious flavor. Cut a pound of pumpkin in medium thin slices and boil it in clear water until it is tender. Drain it and, using one and one-quarter cups of the water in which it is cooked, make a sirup with one-fourth cup of sugar. Bring the sirup to the boiling point, add the pumpkin, and one lemon sliced thin. Cook until the pumpkin slices are clear, drain them on a plate to save the sirup, and place them on a cloth over a rack in a warm place. Dry the pieces about 24 hours or until they are not sticky. They should be clear and perfectly tender."

Pumpkin Pie.

1 large cup mashed pumpkin.
2 eggs, well beaten.
½ cup sugar.
½ teaspoon salt.
½ teaspoon ginger.
¾ teaspoon cloves.
1 teaspoon cinnamon.
Pinch black pepper.
1 pint hot milk.

Cut raw pumpkin in cubes and steam until tender. Then mash. Combine the one large cup mashed pumpkin with the rest of the ingredients in the order named and put through strainer. Then pour into pie crust. Bake in a moderate oven for 45 minutes.

Pumpkin Pie.

1 cup mashed pumpkin.
½ cup sugar.
2 eggs.
Pinch salt.
½ teaspoon allspice.
½ teaspoon ginger.
1 tablespoon molasses.
1½ cups milk.
½ cup cream.

Steam the pumpkin until tender. Then mash through a colander. Combine with the rest of the ingredients in the order named and put through a strainer. Then pour into pie crust. Bake in a moderate oven for 45 minutes.

Pumpkin with Egg.

Cut the pumpkin in lengthwise pieces and remove the shell. Parboil the pumpkin. Lay the pieces in a colander, sprinkle with salt and allow to drain well. After it is drained, put in casserole with butter and brown in oven. When it is a nice color pour over the pumpkin three well beaten eggs. These should spread over and entirely cover the bottom of the dish. Replace in the oven and when the sauce is set serve immediately.

BOUNTIFUL CROP OF POTATOES TO BRING LOW PRICE

What to expect in the line of plentiful and low price foods in Chicago this winter may be estimated from Oct. 1 crop reports just completed on such commodities as potatoes, sweet potatoes, onions, apples, pears and grapes.

Last year some of the market speculators considered there was a "short" crop of potatoes as compared with normal production and consumption. The commercial crop totalled 343,236,000 bushels. The speculators found prices lower than usual, however, and lost heavily. For that reason this year's crop of 373,751,000 bushels of potatoes is expected to be sold at low retail prices.

There also is a larger crop of sweet potatoes than last year. In the early winter months of 1931, four and five cents a pound was considered sufficient to allow retailers a fair margin of profit. The 1931 crop of 77,157,000 bushels is 14,927,000 more than that of a year ago.

In onions there is only about two-thirds the 1930 crop, which may presage higher prices. At present best onions are being sold wholesale for about two cents a pound. The total crop is 13,416,000 bushels of onions produced on a commercial scale.

Two-thirds as many tons of grapes are in prospect as the total production of vineyards this year. The principal reduction occurred on the vines of California producers where there will be 217,000 tons of table grapes as compared with 388,000 tons in 1930.

Statistics on apples give prospect of plenty for the winter. The total is estimated at 27,822,000 barrels or about 100 million bushels. Many carlotds coming into Chicago at present are already going into storage until such a time as demand catches up with the supplies.

PUT GARDEN TRUCK INTO CELLARS FOR WINTER, IS ADVICE

Storage of a good supply of fall vegetables, such as potatoes, beets, onions, and cabbage, is advised by food specialists at the North Dakota agricultural college. These products can now be bought in quantities at low prices if the garden does not supply them. And in case the garden does afford more than enough for the family's present use, it is more profitable to store them for the winter months than to try to sell the oversupply.

Relatively low temperature, ventilation and freedom from excessive moisture are essentials of good storage for most vegetables. By partitioning off the coolest corner of the basement or cellar, a suitable storage room can be made in almost any house, demanding only a small amount of lumber and a few hours work by a carpenter or any one handy with building tools.

If possible, there should be a north window, which may be hinged at the top and left open during all but the coldest weather. It is well to have this window protected by a screen.

Onions keep best when stored where they have a quantity of air, while potatoes do well in a dark corner where they are cool and fairly moist. Lining the sides of the bins containing carrots, beets and parsnips with heavy waterproof paper and covering the vegetables with clean moist sand will keep them from drying out too rapidly.

Rows of shelves built above the vegetable bins make an ideal storage place for the supplies of fruit canned during the summer.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

To keep the metal tops of salt shakers from corroding, cover the inside with melted paraffin. The holes may be open while the paraffin is cooling and is still plastic.

Fresh Coffee— what is it?

IN COFFEE-GROWING COUNTRIES, stale coffee is unknown. Coffee is bought freshly roasted every two or three days. Or in the green bean, and only enough roasted each day as needed. The full flavor and aroma are absolutely unspoiled . . . Today, a revolutionary new method of bringing coffee to your grocer gives you, too, the joy of really fresh coffee.

Coffee importers have traveled a long way since the first crude attempts at putting up coffee for American women!

First, loose coffee from the bin.
Then . . . coffee in paper packages.
The cardboard followed.
Then the tin of today.
Every one a distinct improvement. But still something lacking . . . No one really knew the whole truth—that, no matter in what kind of container it is packed, coffee actually begins to deteriorate in a comparatively short time after roasting. Today, scientists have brought to light the complete facts:

In every pound of coffee there is approximately a half cup of oil. This delicate oil, when fresh, carries the marvelous aroma and full flavor of really good coffee. Fresh, it is also an actual aid to digestion. Stale, it becomes rancid, toxic—the delicious flavor is affected. Indigestion, headaches, sleeplessness, frequently result.

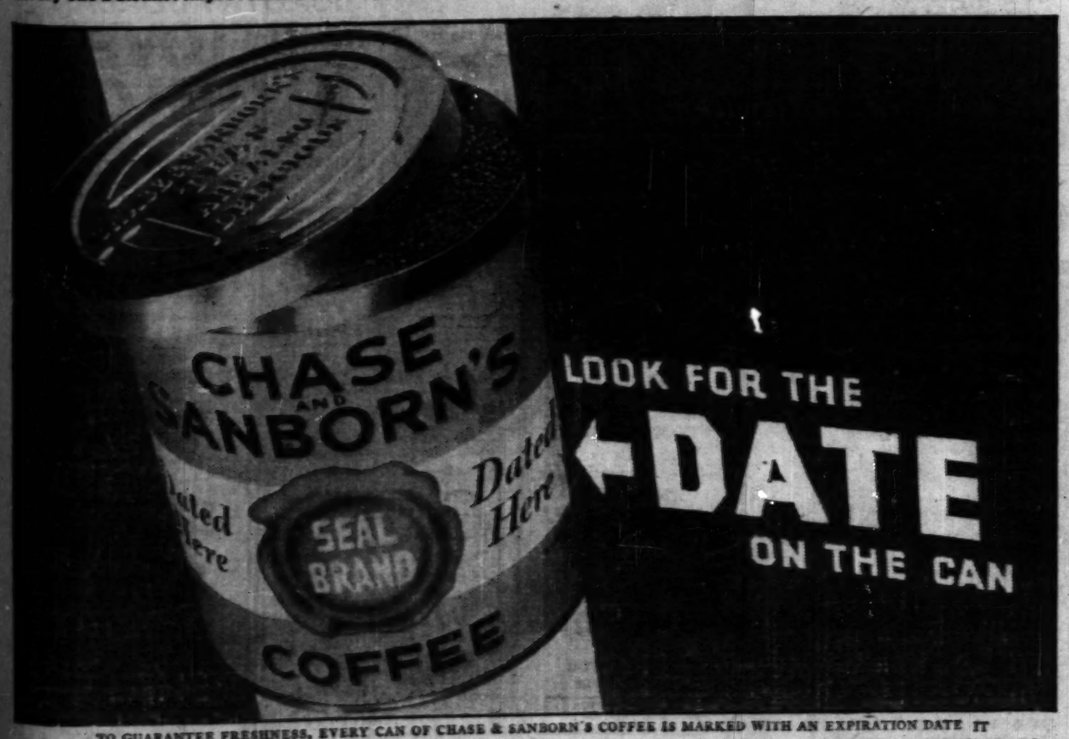
WHAT AN AMAZING STORY! Coffee, actually, a fresh food like milk or butter—perishable!

So now Chase & Sanborn's Coffee is delivered by swift, "fresh food" delivery, every can plainly marked with an expiration date. Any unsold when its date has expired is immediately replaced with fresh. The date is your guarantee of freshness . . . your protection against the dangers of rancid oil in stale coffee.

Buy Chase and Sanborn's today . . . enjoy its matchless flavor, famous for 65 years. See what a difference freshness makes in even the finest coffee.



TO GUARANTEE FRESHNESS, EVERY CAN OF CHASE & SANBORN'S COFFEE IS MARKED WITH AN EXPIRATION DATE IT

For Rugged Health

Eat WHOLE GRAIN foods —avoid devitalized foods!

The magnifying glass tells the story! See how the compact wheat kernel has been "popped" into a plump, crunchy tid-bit with the full food value and the glorious flavor of the whole grain.

ARE you eating foods that satisfy your appetite but starve your body? Be watchful of the foods you eat—especially the breakfast foods. Most breakfast cereals are devitalized—lacking in rich nutriments stored by Mother Nature in the whole kernel.

Science has long known the remarkable food value of WHOLE GRAINS. Food chemists tried for years to "pop" whole grains into light, crispy breakfast foods and failed. Now come Wheat POPS and Rice POPS—the first cereals ever "popped" from WHOLE GRAINS. Here, at last, is the rich flavor—the full food value of WHOLE GRAINS—iron, lime, proteins and carbohydrates plus Nature's laxative—bran—for regular, healthful elimination.

Wheat POPS and Rice POPS are packed with energizing, heat-producing elements—foods that stand by you on chill fall days! They have the glorious sun-ripened flavor of WHOLE GRAINS—so different, so supremely delicious! Serve them to the children—the whole family—all winter long. Ask your grocer by name for Wheat POPS and Rice POPS—for deliciousness, for nourishment, for rugged health!

Homes Taking Second Places as Peril Spots

Slipping in the bathtub, tumbling down the hall stairs, or upsetting a pan of hot syrup over the newly scrubbed kitchen floor may be looked on by the housewife merely as unavoidable things, peculiar to domestic life.

But not to Reuben L. Forney, statistician for the National Safety council. He pointed out yesterday at the annual safety congress at the Stevens hotel that the number of home accident fatalities is second only to motor vehicle fatalities. Motor deaths lead the list of accidental deaths in the United States. The number of persons killed in home accidents during 1930, he said, was estimated at 30,000, only 3,000 below motor fatalities.

"Here is an instance of death by suffocation that sounds incredible," Mr. Forney continued. "It recently was reported to us that a child was playing with the articles on a dressing table. He upset a box of face powder, and in his effort to catch it before it fell, tumbled to the floor. The powder created such dust that the boy was suffocated. There were about 2,700 deaths from suffocation and asphyxiation in homes the last year."

Falls in the home lead the domestic fatalities, Mr. Forney said, while burns, scalds, and explosions come second.

Other causes are asphyxiation and suffocation ranking third, poisons fourth, and cuts and scratches fifth.

"Falls are the predominant type of fatal home accidents among people of all ages constituting 44 per cent of the total," Mr. Forney added. "Three out of four home deaths of persons 65 years old or over are associated with falls. The principal type of home accidental deaths among children under five are burns, scalds, and explosions, and asphyxiation or suffocation. From 5 to 14 years, burns, scalds, and explosions are the chief types of home fatalities."

Miss Frances L. Swain, director of household arts of the Chicago public schools, and president of the American Home Economics association, told of the teaching of home safety through good home management. She said there is a need for research on specific problems to discuss safer procedures, materials, and improvements to reduce hazards in certain types of home equipment.

Movie Gossip from Hollywood

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Warner Baxter's mother went to see "In Old Arizona" twelve times. When her son kidded her about it Mother Baxter said, "I just like to go, sit in the audience, and hear what people say about the picture."

Vicki Baum has left the Paramount writing force. There she was supposed to be preparing a screen vehicle for Chevalier. She has signed with Metro to help handle the screen adaptation of her own novel, "Grand Hotel."

Pola Negri's singing voice, slimness, and the fire she has put into her acting in "The Woman Commands" make it seem, from the "rushes" of her comeback vehicle, that she will be more the Pola of eight years ago than of 1929.

Ralph Ince is recuperating from the wound suffered during a film gun fight on Dolores del Rio's "The Dove" set at R. K. O. studio. Norman Foster fired at him with a blank cartridge, but the wadding hit Ince.

Ken Maynard was cut about the face and suffered other injuries, none of them serious, during a plane landing here. He was at the controls in his own plane, a new $14,000 job. The accident postpones his picture, "Sunset Trail," at Tiffany studio, until his features resume normal and unpatched appearances.

Honor Legion Ribbon Causes Fashion Query

PARIS, Oct. 15.—As more and more women are enrolled in the Legion of Honor—there now are 709 in France alone—a grave problem of chic is presented: "Where, O, where, shall we wear the little red ribbon that does so much to disinguish men from the crowd?"

Once the honor is achieved, that seems to be the major difficulty, and it's a grave one. With men it's simple enough; all they have to do is to stick the little red ribbon in a button hole and let chic take care of itself.

But with a woman! Red's a good enough color, but it clashes. It just won't go with a baby blue, bright yellow, or brilliant green dress; it's lost on red or black, and it's hopeless for evening wear. All women aren't Carmens, so the red ribbon in the hair isn't appropriate, and they haven't any buttonholes—to be seen anyhow.

According to recent figures 709 French women belong, and the number of foreign women similarly honored makes the figure well above 1,000.

The Comtesse de Noailles, a writer, is the only woman commander, and there are proportionately few officers, grand officers and grand croix being reserved so far to men.

Five queens now wear the decoration of grand croix, and ten foreign women are officers, including Lady Bathurst, Helene Vacaresco, Rumanian poet; Edith Wharton, author, and Anne Morgan, philanthropist.

Jacket Is Given Two Sleeves, Dress None

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Things keep happening to sleeves this winter. New styles are made all the time by some new trick that Paris has put up the coat or dress sleeve. Balloons, bells, bands, caps, capelets, and gloves of fur are some of the more significant forms of dolling up coat sleeves. Dress sleeves are puffed, leg o' mutton, bishop, angel, and they are also omitted altogether as from summer frocks.

Maggy Rouff's new way of giving the wrap two sleeves and the dress none is exciting a lot of interest in Paris. Madame Maggy learned about our steam heated houses when she was in America; and she had a bout or two with our frost-bitten avenues, too. Her method with sleeves results from this knowledge. The dress, which does a solo in the house needs little in the way of sleeves, but the coat which stands guardian to a shivering body out of doors in winter can stand something extra in the way of warmth.

The ensemble, sketched today, shows the sleeve distribution that Maggy Rouff gives to the ensemble. The janket, made of heavy beige woolen, has long woolen sleeves and over these are slipped brown astrakhan fur sleeves that reach up to the armpits, and that are removable. The brown astrakhan collar of this jacket does not meet in front, and the jacket is buttoned down the left side to the belt, which is cloth and buttons at the left side. The body of the jacket is tucked vertically to the waistline, and a band of astrakhan edges the peplum and mounts to meet the buttoned closing.

The dress, shown in the small sketch, is made of lightweight beige woolen, and has no sleeves. It is horizontally tucked to the hipline and is encrusted with a zig-zag band of the goods. The skirt is slightly flared.

'Theodore Roosevelt Day' to Be Held in N. Y. Oct. 27

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 15.—(AP)—The birthday of Theodore Roosevelt, Oct. 27, was set apart as "Theodore Roosevelt day" by Acting Governor Herbert H. Lehman in a proclamation issued today. Col. Lehman requested that the national flag be flown from all homes, places of business and public buildings throughout the state.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

Clever Devices Aid in Application and Removal of Creams

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

We do use up a terrific amount of cleansing cream in the course of a year. Each one of us contributes a heavy consignment of empty jars to the sum total. And we read about creams, we hear about creams every time we turn a newspaper or magazine page. We do not have to be urged to use a cream. BUT—

There's something about creams with which we are not so conversant as we might be. How to use them and how to remove them so that we get the best hygienic value, to say nothing of the best beauty value out of them. For instance, right now, with that jar on your dressing table. Is its top layer as clean and appetizing looking as it was when you first opened the jar? Or, is it rimmed, specked or smudged as though dirty fingers had been at it?

No cleansing cream ever should be applied without first a hand washing performance. That's most important. And yet there are many otherwise nice women who dig into the cream without ever paying heed to the hand washing caution.

Hands, as you know, are carriers of dirt and germs. If the face has any slight abrasion, you know what will happen with the dirt mixed cream. You rub the cleansing cream into your face. You don't want to rub dirt into the pores. That's the way blackheads start.

Our best hygienists are advising us now to apply creams with sterilized absorbent cotton or very fine linen, also sterilized. The cream should be spread lightly and manipulated so that you get a massage benefit as you work. From the middle of the face toward the edge; from the middle of the forehead toward the hair line and from the nose out and up over cheeks; from the base of the throat up and over the chin. And don't forget that the neck comes in to the proper cleaning rite.

For removing creams we have the clever tissues which are thrown away, never to be used again. Thank goodness, the day of that repeatedly used and disgracefully soiled cold cream rag is over. It got a nasty reputation as a facial blemish carrier.

Swiftest, Easiest Way to End Bilious Spell

When you neglect those first symptoms of constipation—bad breath, coated tongue, listlessness, the whole system soon suffers. Appetite lags. Digestion slows up. You become headachy, dizzy, bilious.

It's easy to correct sluggish bowel action! Take a candy Cascaret tonight. See how quickly—and pleasantly—the bowels are activated. All the souring waste is gently propelled from the system. Regular and complete bowel action is restored.

Cascarets are made from pure cascara, a substance which doctors agree actually strengthens bowel muscles. All drug stores have Cascarets. 10c.

"Pardon Us"

The screaming adventures of two happy Goofs who budded into beer barons!

Always on top of his job How does he do it?

THIS man's commission check is always bigger than any other salesman's on the staff. He's a wonder! When he breezes into town after a grueling business trip—with a bunch of orders in his pocket for the boss—he's always as fit as a fiddle. And just rarin' to go off again.

How does he do it—living on trains—snatching hasty meals at railway station counters and small town restaurants? Forever on the jump.

If you could see him pack his bag for a trip, you'd know. A bottle of Nujol always goes in. Nujol keeps body functions normal, even under abnormal regime. Keeps hasty meals and indifferent food from upsetting you. Wards off the bad effects of change of water and climate. For Nujol not only prevents any excess of the body poisons (we all have them) from forming, but also aids in their removal.

Whatever your job is—you need health and energy to ride it. Take a tip from this star salesman and take Nujol regularly. You'll be amazed to find how much more clear-headed and all-round efficient you feel. Keep up this treatment faithfully for 3 months and you'll feel like a million dollars. And you will have taken the first step toward getting it.

Star Salesman

Isn't Nujol worth trying? It was perfected by the famous Nujol Laboratories, 2 Park Avenue, New York City. It couldn't possibly hurt you, anyway. (Nujol contains no drugs or medicine.) And if you're like other people it will do you a world of good.

Be sure you get the genuine.

Yale-Chicago Game to Draw Society Crowd

BY THALIA——

SOCIETY is evidently going collegiate over the week-end, letting everything else slide to attend the Chicago-Yale football game at Stagg field tomorrow afternoon and all the social affairs being given in connection with it.

The Yale team, of course, isn't available for any sociabilities, but there's a tremendous dinner the Yale club is having at the Stevens hotel tonight (about 1,500 are expected to attend), and tomorrow night the club has taken over the Garrick theater for "Girl Crazy." At the U. of C., the Quadrangle club is giving a dinner dance this evening, and a tea after the game.

President and Mrs. Robert M. Hutchins are to give a large luncheon tomorrow at the president's house, the guests including the Charles H. Swifts, the Charles S. Garlands, the Philip and Russell Kelleys, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Insull, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Crosby, Walter G. Preston Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Y. Hord, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Bradley, Mr. and Mrs. Otis Hubbard, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Millard, Edwin W. Winter III., Mr. and Mrs. William B. Hale, Mr. and Mrs. Kent Clow, Thornton Wilder, Mr. and Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, Mr. and Mrs. John P. Kellogg, George Vincent, William Lyon Phelps [who is giving the first of the Town hall series of programs tomorrow morning], Mr. and Mrs. Howard V. O'Brien, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Ryerson Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. William McCormick Blair.

Today, there is the I. Newton Perry luncheon at the Casino tomorrow, and scores of smaller luncheons before the game and teas afterward.

And here's the very important list of matrons and maids who are to model in the St. Luke's fashion show next Tuesday afternoon and evening at the Stevens hotel, a list that is tacitly conceded to be composed of the best looking and most fashionable women in town:

MESDAMES.

Lawrence Williams	Willard Boyden
Ernest Byfield	John E. Dern
Walter Paepcke	Charles W. Isaacs
J. Beach Clow	Robert McCormick Adams
John Winterbotham Jr.	Howard Linn

MARRIED

MRS. JAMES H. FOLSOM.

Mr. and Mrs. Dick F. Walker of 1350 Estes avenue announce the marriage of their daughter, Isabelle, to James Howard Folsom, son of Mrs. Irene Folsom of 4456 Minerva street. Mr. Folsom and his bride are residing at 910 Lawrence avenue.

Club Women Hear Talk on Influence of Music.

All of the gold chairs set out in the Woman's Athletic club ballroom yesterday morning for the first Thursday morning program of the season, Herbert Witherspoon's talk on "Music as an Influence in Modern Conditions," were occupied shortly after Mr. Witherspoon began to speak, and late comers had to sit out in the hall, craning their necks in order to hear. The audience was exhorted to think up ways and means for getting more people interested in appreciating music, and after the talk proper there was an animated session of questions and answers, parried tactfully by the speaker.

Most of the women at the lecture remained afterwards to luncheon, and so the dining room also was crowded and festive. Mrs. Raymond Dudley, the president, looking very smart in a fuchsia crêpe frock and black hat, had as guests at her table Mr. and Mrs. Witherspoon and Mrs. William Nelson Pelouze, Mrs. William C. Pullman, Mrs. H. Newton Hudson, and Mrs. Joseph O. Watkins, members of the board of directors.

The Arts club tea this afternoon to open the annual exhibition of the Foundation for Architecture was announced as a "4 to 6 o'clock" affair, but it probably won't get under way until after 5, when the symphony goers arrive from the first afternoon concert at Orchestra hall. Mrs. Walter S. Brewster, Mrs. John W. Gary, Mrs. Augustus A. Carpenter, Mrs. Alfred E. Hamill, Mrs. John A. Holabird, Mrs. Clyde M. Carr, Mrs. Ralph H. Poole, Mrs. James M. Hopkins, Mrs. Charles H. Schweppe, Mrs. Tiffany Blake, Mrs. F. P. Hixon, and Mrs. Edwin H. Clarke, most of whom are members or sponsors of the foundation, will dispense tea and coffee.

After Miss Caroline McNair's debut tea, to be given by her father, Frank McNair, at his apartment at 1430 Lake Shore drive, she and her assistants are to be entertained at dinner and the theater. The assistants include Adelaide Atkin, Grace Fitzmorris, Gwendolyn Juergens, Myra Little, Peggy Glidden, Isabel Gordon, Welthyan Harmon and two girls from the east, classmates of Miss McNair at Pine Manor. Miss McNair's sister and brother-in-law, the Frank Simses, are planning a large party to take place several weeks hence, a western party that they are to give in one of the vacant apartments of the 1430 Lake Shore drive building.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Mrs. Hoover left Buffalo tonight and will arrive at the White House tomorrow morning after spending the week at the Girl Scouts' convention. Mrs. Hoover will leave next day with the President for Yorktown to take part in the ceremonies of the Yorktown celebration. Mrs. Hoover's secretary, Miss Mildred Hill, was with her on her Buffalo trip.

The secretary of the navy will fly to Yorktown tomorrow for the celebration and Mrs. Adams will go down by motor and join the secretary on Sunday.

Mrs. E. E. Gann, sister of Vice President Curtis, left tonight for New York to meet Mr. Gann on his return from a short absence in Germany. They will spend the week-end in New York.

The French ambassador and Mme. Claudel have gone to Old Point Comfort and will remain there at the Chamberlin during the Yorktown festivities.

Charity Ball Discussed for Fund for Jobless.

It's all a little confusing at this point. There is so much talk about what is and what is not going to be done this winter that nobody seems to know what's what. Tentative and as yet rather nebulous plans are being discussed for one huge charity ball, to be organized and run by the people on Gov. Emmerson's relief commission, and for which Howard F. Gillette is to be chairman. Another idea that seems to be fairly prevalent is that there will be numerous benefits to take the place of the regular winter affairs, the Bachelor and Benedict supper dance on Thanksgiving eve, the Assemblies in December and January, and the Twelfth Night ball in January, and also all of the large holiday debut balls.

The tea which was to have been held today at the Cordon club for Mrs. George Woodruff, whose sculpture is on exhibition in the club galleries, has been canceled because of the death of the president, Mrs. Florence Magnus. The clubrooms will be closed today and the tea probably will be held next Friday.

The Junior league, at least, will get a good idea of what is expected of it by the relief commission workers, because Mrs. Jacob Baur is to tell it just what the commission is doing at the fall meeting to be held next Monday morning at the Petit Gourmet in the Italian court. There will be a luncheon after the meeting.

Yesterday's mail contained Mrs. Jacob Baur's invitations for the wedding of her daughter, Miss Rosemary Baur, to Bartle Bull, to take place on Saturday afternoon, Nov. 7, at St. Chrysostom's church, and for the wedding reception following the ceremony at Mrs. Baur's residence at 1511 Astor street. I hear that Mr. Bull and his bride are going around the world on their wedding trip.

The Chicago board of Northwestern university settlement, working harder this year than ever like every other charitable organization, decided at a meeting at Mrs. James Offield's the other day to have a rummage sale on Thursday, Nov. 29.

De Paul Music Students Offer to Play for Clubs

"Music is a panacea for all ills, including depression," declared Arthur C. Becker, dean of the De Paul university school of music, as he announced his plan of providing a free music service bureau to be conducted by the students of the De Paul university music department.

This musical service will provide talent free of charge for women's clubs, business men's associations or any other reputable organizations that desire to vary their programs. Pianists, violinists, and singers are available.

Heads Single Taxers.

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 15.—George E. Evans, Pittsburgh, was reelected president of the Henry George Foundation of America, an organization favoring the single tax system, at its closing convention session yesterday.

To Talk Electricity.

John H. Trumbull, former governor of Connecticut, will be the guest of honor and principal speaker at the sixth annual banquet of the Electric association of Chicago Nov. 5 at the Palmer house.

RADIO REPORTS LOWER WEATHER RISKS IN FLYING

Safety Congress Hears 4 Talks on Aviation.

BY HUGH SEXTON.

Safety in the aviation industry was brought yesterday before the National Safety congress, meeting in the Hotel Stevens, in four papers, one of which was prepared by an assistant secretary of the department of commerce, another by a passenger transport line official, and two by representatives of an airport and an aircraft factory.

CLARENCE YOUNG. (U. S. Photo.)

Clarence M. Young, assistant secretary of commerce for aeronautics, described the manifold activities of his branch in promoting safety in aviation, through regulation of virtually every form of flying and rigid inspection of aircraft, and examination of pilots and mechanics.

Conquer Weather Hazards.

Lester D. Seymour, vice president of United Air Lines, said mail and passenger planes are flying meteorological laboratories, from which the pilots transmit weather reports to the ground and to other planes in flight every few minutes.

"Through his constant radio communication with the ground and with other pilots there is never a minute in his flight when the pilot today is not fully informed concerning the conditions he will encounter. The weather hazards of flying are gradually being eliminated."

Making Airports Safe.

R. B. Barnitz, director of the Los Angeles airport, urged that airports be of sufficient size to reduce the chance of injury to residents in the neighborhoods as the result of accidents. Rigid regulations are making airports safer than the ordinary city street, he declared.

Ralph S. Damon, general manager of the Curtiss Airplane company's factory at St. Louis, declared there is no unsurmountable obstacle preventing safety in aircraft factories; that all factory operations, whether on the ground or in the air, are subject to the same common sense rules of good housekeeping and discipline necessary for the satisfactory accomplishment of safety in any industrial organization.

CHICAGO WOMAN WEDDED IN PARIS TO DUKE'S COUSIN

Dr. and Mrs. Otho Fisher Ball of 1225 Astor street yesterday announced the marriage in Paris of their daughter, Elisabeth, to Gerald Valerian Wellesley of London. The marriage was performed at the British consulate in Paris.

Mrs. Wellesley is the former Betty Ball of Chicago, who was married to Quintin Gilbey of London several years ago and from whom she obtained a divorce recently. With her son, Robin, she spent last winter with her parents in Chicago and returned to Europe with her mother last March.

The bridegroom is a great-nephew of Arthur, first duke of Wellington, and a cousin of the present duke and a cousin of the Hon. Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England. Mr. and Mrs. Wellesley will spend the early winter months in Capri and Sicily.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Talking Turkey

HALTS BURIALS OF 4 FOR JURORS TO VIEW BODIES

Dr. Maurice Penney, acting coroner of Lake county, yesterday interrupted the burials of four Waukegan youths killed Sunday when their automobile was demolished by a North Shore electric train, and hastily swore in a new jury to determine responsibility for the accident. The reason for the new jury was the fact that the first had been unable to reach a verdict after deliberating since Monday. The reason for the speed was the fact that a coroner's jurors must view the bodies of the dead before they are sworn.

The new jury was sworn in Ascension cemetery near Libertyville while 2,500 mourners watched curiously as embalmers opened the coffins before they were lowered into the fresh graves. The jurymen then went to their homes for the rehearing of evidence will begin today.

The victims, responsibility for whose deaths could not be determined by the first jury, were: Jerome Maculiis, 21 years old, 825 Lincoln street; John Pazereskis, 28 years old, 736 Lincoln street; Anthony Mikals, 22 years old, 829 Lincoln street, and Bruno Wysocki, 21 years old, 808 8th street, the driver. The four were returning to their homes from a prairie football game when the crash occurred at the 8th street crossing of the tracks in Waukegan.

HELD FOR TRIPLE SLAYER AND RAPE OF THREE GIRLS

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Two thumb prints which aroused an amateur detective's curiosity on a glossy postcard tonight jailed Everett Frank Lindsay, sought for months in Seattle, Oregon and California cities on charges of three murders, rapes upon three young girls, bigamy and desertion from British and American armies.

Lindsay, a man of eight aliases whose real name is said to be Charles E. Murphy, finger printed himself through his desire to scrutinize a risque photograph. William Sanborn, a café hand, is the amateur detective who proved his undoing.

The prisoner denied all the charges.

Edward Schweitzer Rites Will Be Held Tomorrow

Funeral services for Edward C. Schweitzer, 61 years old, auditor and a director of Sprague, Warner & Co., will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock from the chapel at 118 Greenleaf avenue, Wilmette. Burial will be at Memorial Park. Mr. Schweitzer resided at 619 Greenleaf avenue, Wilmette. He died on Wednesday in St. Francis hospital in Evanston. He is survived by the widow and one son, Edward C. Schweitzer Jr.

2 SEIZED HERE FOR ROBBERY OF ST. LOUIS BANK

Fifteen policemen surrounded the house at 827 North Mozart street late last night and arrested three men, two of them wanted by St. Louis authorities for two bank and one jewelry store robberies committed there Tuesday. They seized $25,000 in jewelry, $2,400 in cash, three pistols, and one sawed off shotgun.

The prisoners were Jack Gordon and Jesse Sellers, each 23 years old, and both from St. Louis, and Patrick Dwyer, 43 years old, householder at the Mozart street address, a former deputy bailiff. Gordon and Sellers are the alleged bandits. Each carried half the currency in his pockets. The raid was made on information given by Lieut. Thomas A. Wren of St. Louis, who participated in the arrests.

M. J. KEARINS FUNERAL RITES TO BE TOMORROW

Funeral services for Michael J. Kearins, 77 years old, former secretary of the Conrad Seipp Brewing company, will be held at 10 o'clock tomorrow in St. Edmund's Roman Catholic church, in Oak Park, followed by burial in Calvary cemetery. Mr. Kearins died on Wednesday in his home, 317 South Elmwood avenue, Oak Park. He came to Chicago in 1874, and for twenty-five years was a postoffice employé, rising to the rank of assistant superintendent of mails. He joined the brewing company in 1899 and remained with it until he retired on the advent of prohibition. He is survived by eleven children, thirty-eight grandchildren, and eight great-grandchildren.

Negro Holdup Pair Nabbed Five Minutes After Crime

Five minutes after two Negroes held up Alex Laing, 2200 Washington boulevard, at Oakley and Washington boulevards early this morning and robbed him of a $125 watch and $10 in cash the pair were in custody. Laing hurried to the Warren avenue station and notified Sergt. William Grady, then accompanied a squad on a search for the robbers. They were found at Lake and Lincoln streets, and arrested. They gave the names of Vernuce Cowell, 17 years old, 1940 Maypole avenue, and Elmer De Bois, 24 years old, 2010 Maypole avenue. Cowell carried a razor with which he had intimidated Laing. On De Bois was found the watch.

Why Fat Folks Stay Fat

"The trouble with me, and I guess this applies to 99% of the men and women who are putting on weight, I didn't have the energy or 'pep' to keep it off. Lost all interest in any healthy activity and just lazed around accumulating the old pounds."

Start taking Kruschen Salts—that's the common-sense way to reduce. This is what they do—they clean out the impurities in your blood by keeping the bowels, kidneys and liver in splendid working order—a vigor and tireless energy you'd most forgotten had existed returns.

As a result instead of planting yourself in an easy chair every free moment and letting flabby fat accumulate you feel an urge for activity that keeps you moving around doing the things you've always wanted to do and needed to do to keep you in good condition—you've got that 'Kruschen feeling.'

Be careful of the foods you eat—then watch the pounds slide off! Take one-half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot or cold water tomorrow morning and every morning—and if they don't change your whole idea about reducing, go back and get the small price you paid for them. Get an 85 cent bottle of Kruschen Salts—lasts 4 weeks—at any progressive druggist anywhere in the world.

WOMAN, AGED 84, STRUCK BY BUS; DIES IN HOSPITAL

Mrs. Mathilda Burg, 84 years old, 9954 Avenue M, was fatally injured yesterday when she was run down by an interstate transportation bus while crossing 96th street at Avenue M. She died an hour later at the South Chicago hospital. The driver, Charles W. Roth, 232 West Madison street, was not held when he told police the woman had suddenly darted into the path of his machine. Her death and three others raised the toll for Cook county since Jan. 1 to 983. The other victims:

Lee Hords, fatally injured last night when the motorcycle on which he was riding collided at 62d street and Wentworth avenue with an automobile driven by Miss Florence O'Brien, 8032 Maryland avenue. He died in the German Deaconess hospital. Hords is believed to have lived near the Englewood police station.

Walter Osuchs, 17 years old, 1758 West 17th street. Died in the Bridewell hospital of injuries suffered Tuesday night when a stolen car in which he and two other youths were riding got out of control and crashed into the Damen avenue bridge at 20th street.

Martin Scanlon, 56 years old, 2228 West 54th place. Died in Holy Cross hospital this morning as the result of being struck last night by an automobile driven by Albert Dust, 10321 Avenue M, at 54th street and Western avenue.

NAMES BOYHOOD CHUM IN $100,000 ALIENATION SUIT

A "Damon and Pythias" friendship was revealed as shattered yesterday when William Evans, 32 years old, of the Pinegate hotel, 557 Surf street, filed the declaration of a $100,000 suit for the alienation of the affections of his common law wife, Arlene Beman Evans, 24 years old, 819 East 47th street. He charged that he had been betrayed by E. H. Smith, jobber of women's lingerie with offices at 222 West Adams street, his boyhood chum.

Although never legally married because he suffered from tuberculosis, Evans asserted, he and his sweetheart had read together a church marriage ritual on Jan. 15, 1927, and thereafter considered themselves husband and wife.

On Nov. 2, 1920, he learned that his wife had been working in an office next door to Smith's, and had frequently seen him. She then admitted, he charges, that they had grown to love each other. Evans also charges that Smith used promises of jewelry and clothes, and numerous gifts to win away her regard. Smith, according to the bill drawn by Attorney James R. McKnight, is the son of Dr. Isaac J. Smith, an eye specialist with offices at 5 South Wabash avenue. Smith, it is charged, is married and resides at Crystal Lake with his wife, Beulah, and their 6 year old daughter, Martha Mae.

DRY AGENT HELD FOR SHOOTING UP BARBECUE STAND

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Wild west tactics in a middle west barbecue led to the arrest of Patrick Curry, federal prohibition agent, here early today. Curry was charged with drunkenness and disorderly conduct by deputy sheriffs after he was alleged to have fired four revolver shots in the Happy Hour barbecue stand. One of the shots narrowly missed a customer, it was said.

MRS. IDA WOOD, RICH RECLUSE, IS RETURNED TO HER OLD QUARTERS

New York, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Mrs. Ida E. Wood, 93 year old recluse, was moved back today to her former quarters in the Herald Square hotel after the furniture and carpet had been examined for possible hidden money or jewels.

Jewels, the exact worth of which had not been determined, were found in the suite after currency and securities totaling nearly $1,000,000 were discovered.

Examination of forty trunks, kept in a storage warehouse, was postponed until tomorrow.

Mrs. Woods has lived in her apartment for thirteen years, cooking her own meals on a small stove. She was moved temporarily to another floor while the search was in progress.

MRS. FLORENCE MAGNUS, SINGER, IS DEAD AT 75

Mrs. Florence Reynolds Magnus, 75 years old, musician and vocal teacher, died yesterday in the home of her son, Rudolph Magnus, 1104 East 46th street, after an illness of three weeks. Mrs. Magnus, whose career began as a child in New York, taught voice and filled concert engagements for thirty-eight years in Chicago. She was trained by Severini, an Italian opera singer, and studied the piano in Hamburg, Germany. Her health never permitted her to realize her ambition as an opera singer. Many of her pupils, however, have since become opera singers.

Mrs. Magnus was president of the Cordon club, an honorary member of the Musicians' Club of Women, a member of the Society of American Musicans, the American Opera society and the Musical Guild. She is survived by her son, also a singer and teacher, and a granddaughter, Florence Ann. Funeral services will be held today from the chapel at 4227 Cottage Grove avenue. Burial will be at Oakwood cemetery.

Hold Last Services Today for Bernard C. Peterson

Funeral services for Bernard C. Peterson, 77 years old, retired furniture manufacturer who died on Wednesday, will be held at 2 o'clock today from his home, 134 North Austin boulevard, Oak Park. Burial will be in Graceland cemetery. Mr. Peterson retired in 1925, after being engaged in the manufacture of furniture on the west side for forty years. He was an active supporter of the workman's compensation act in Illinois.

Nab Gangster's Chauffeur as Suspect in Robbery

Frank Leino, 4649 Lexington street, chauffeur for "Dago Lawrence" Mangano, hoodlum and gangster, was held at the detective bureau yesterday as a robbery suspect. Leino, with Florence Purvis, 20 years old, 417 West 60th street, was arrested by Sergt. James Hayes of the Des Plaines street police at Jackson boulevard and Halsted street. A revolver, with its serial number defaced, was found in their automobile.

Louis Walz, Oil Company Founder, Is Dead at 85

Oil City, Pa., Oct. 15.—(AP)—Louis Walz, 85, pioneer in the oil industry and one of the founders of the Pennzoil company, died today. He entered the petroleum industry in 1867 as manager of an independent refining company.

LINDBERGHS TO FLY HOME OVER U. S. NEXT WEEK

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 15.—(AP)—Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh will fly next week to New Jersey from either Victoria, B. C., or Seattle, a radio message from the couple said today.

The Lindberghs are returning home from China because of the death of Senator Dwight W. Morrow, Mrs. Lindbergh's father. They are aboard the steamship President Jefferson, due in Victoria and Seattle Tuesday.

A transcontinental railroad office here invited the couple to go on a fast train, but Col. Lindbergh declined, in a reply by radio.

Six Evanston Policemen to Share Patten Award

Six Evanston policemen were named yesterday to share the Patten award for the most efficient work done in the department in September. They are Eugene Ruland, Auvergne Feeley, Philip Reiman, Oscar Swanson, Edgar Fellows, and Fred Radermacher. Detection and arrest of two robbers and a burglar won them the award.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

CHICAGO GREETS YALE FOOTBALL SQUAD TODAY

BADGERS HOIST STORM SIGNALS; PURDUE COMING

It'll Rain Footballs Tomorrow.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., Oct. 15.—It is sure to rain Saturday at Wisconsin's Camp Randall football premises—rain football. All indications point to one of the forward-passingest games in the history of Big Ten competition when the Badgers meet up with the Boilermakers from Purdue.

The shower of footballs is not likely to endanger the paying guests, however, for both teams have men who know just about how and where a football should be thrown in a given emergency. Past performances of the two teams when pitted against each other have been aerial games to an extreme degree and often the heaves have had vital parts in ultimate decisions. But this year, the dope has it, both outfits and especially Purdue, will go in for longer and wickeder forward passes than ever before.

These Purdues Are Smart.

One reason for this is that Purdue knows the forward pass, regardless of the foe. But a more potent reason in this instance is that End Coach Mel Hein, who has been scouting the Badgers, has reported that the one weakness he noticed in the Cardinal battle front was a certain vexation in the matter of forward pass defense. Being quite kosher to concentrate on every weakness, Purdue naturally has buckled down on plans to give the Badgers annoyance in their most vulnerable department.

Coach Thistlethwaite, of course, has heard of these plans, and while he does not O. K. the Purdue appraisal of the team's weakness, virtually his every defensive instruction and drill this week has had to do with forward passes.

The Wisconsin coach also is concentrating on passes as offensive technique, although there was only one year in the last six years, 1929, when the Badgers weren't able to gain many more yards from scrimmage than Purdue.

Now, Back in 1492——

In 1929 the Purdue Big Ten champs gained 180 yards from scrimmage to defeat by Wisconsin. Last year, though they were defeated, the Badgers gained 286 yards to 154 by Purdue.

On the other hand, Purdue never has failed to cope with this scrimmage advantage of Wisconsin's with its avid use of the forward pass.

The strategy hasn't always worked for Purdue, however, even when the passing attack was most strenuous and amazingly accurate. For instance, in 1927, the last time Wisconsin beat Purdue, 12 to 6, Purdue made twenty-five passes and completed fourteen for a total gain of 241 yards, as compared with two completed forward passes by Wisconsin, for a total of 30 yards.

In 1928 Purdue lost, 7 to 0, even though the Boilermakers made thirty-one forward passes and completed twelve for a gain of 122 yards, as compared to the victors' three completed passes for a gain of only 45 yards.

Here's a Record, Pal.

Last year Purdue completed only four forward passes in seventeen tries, but one of the four won the game, 7 to 6. In six years against Wisconsin Purdue has completed 45 passes in 111 attempts, for an average of 43.3 per cent. In these six games Wisconsin has completed twenty-six passes out of seventy-six, for an average of 34.3 per cent. The total scores of the two teams in these years has been 45 for Purdue to 44 for Wisconsin.

While Purdue has been busy ferreting out Wisconsin's weakness on forward pass defense, Badger scouts have not been asleep. They think that they have discovered Purdue's weakness—at the guards and tackles. It is believed here that Kabat and Knahoid can more than look after Wisconsin's interests at guard and Capt. Smith and Cuthbert are reported to be ready for anything Coach Kline's tackles may have to offer.

Improved weather conditions and the promise of a fine day Saturday have led to the hope that 40,000 persons will be on hand to see the game—which will form half of Wisconsin's major program at home. The Badgers will play on foreign fields the following three Saturdays and their other home encounter is the homecoming affair against Ohio on Nov. 14.

34 PLAYERS MAKE TRIP

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Purdue's football squad was given a rousing sendoff here tonight by 4,000 students and townspeople as it left for Chicago en route to Madison, Wis., where it plays Wisconsin Saturday.

The Boilermakers, it was expected, would resort to the air in their effort to score their second Big Ten victory. Three full teams and one extra quarter back accompanied Coaches Noble Kiser, Mel Edward and Frank Carideo, making a squad of 37. The players making the trip follow:

Backs—Richard Bateman, Paul Calvert, Emmett Lowery, Ben Mertz, Paul Moss, Roy Vosik.

Guards—Eugene Boswell, Richard Chubb, Paul Rossmann, Livy Edward, William Fehrman, John Husar.

Tackles—Don Fassler, Fritz Febel, Clarence Kasnak, Howard Leisinger, Sam Voinoff, Marko Westerman.

Centers—Capt. Charles Miller, John Oehler, Elmer Sherbeck.

Quarter backs—Fred Keegan, Paul Pardonner, Ed Ross, Jack White.

Half backs—Fred Hecker, Louis Heim, Dale Moore, Jim Purvis, Ed Risk, Richard Weisbrech.

Full backs—Roy Horstmann, Roland Kurtz, Joe Tumerich.

FOOTBALL TOMORROW.

PRE-EMINENT among tomorrow's football games, at least in sentiment, is that between Chicago and Yale at Stagg field. Departing from custom to make a western trip in honor of an illustrious alumnus, Yale will exhibit in these parts for the first time not only its football wares but also that famed Yale spirit and such of its traditional customs as may be supplied by the sons of Eli present.

So far as football is concerned, the contest promises an interesting combat. Yale, we are told by those who should know, will be a much better eleven when it meets Harvard and Princeton later than was the Yale which began its practice on Sept. 15, as do conference elevens, and succumbed to a much further advanced Georgia squad last Saturday. That experience gained against the southerners will be on call today.

Chicago, conceded to have good backs with a line under suspicion, played far better than expected against the strong Michigan eleven. Those Maroon forwards thus proved of fighting caliber. This showing has aroused Maroon hopes of victory to high pitch.

Another contest of the day is the annual struggle between Michigan and Ohio State at Ann Arbor. Wolverines and Buckeyes have a well developed rivalry which brings out the best in the contending teams. As undefeat co-champion of 1930, Kipke's men early were strong favorites. Since then we have heard much of Ohio's man power. It lost to Vanderbilt, always a tough customer, from its own mistakes and weakness against forward passes. Michigan is logical favorite, but anything could happen.

Meantime Wisconsin and Purdue will be engaging in a fray which means title elimination for one or the other. The Boilermakers, held 7 to 0 by Illinois, should be stronger and perhaps will not perpetrate so many costly fumbles. Wisconsin's material is impressive in appearance. Apparently it needs more consistent offense.

PURPLE WILL START REGULARS AGAINST U.C.L.A.

Irish, Wildcat Reserves Play Preliminary.

Northwestern's football squad engaged in its last rigid drill yesterday for its intersectional clash with the University of California at Los Angeles tomorrow in Dyche stadium. A crowd of 30,000 is expected to see the game.

Another Northwestern-Notre Dame contest is scheduled for tomorrow also. This one will find the "B" teams of the two rivals meeting in a preliminary to the California game. This is the first of six games on Northwestern's reserve team schedule and will start at 12:20 o'clock.

The U. C. L. A. squad of thirty-three players will arrive in Chicago at 9:30 o'clock this morning. This is the Bruins' first eastern appearance and is Northwestern's first game with a Pacific coast conference team.

Duncan Is Star.

U. C. L. A. comes east with one of the strongest teams in its history. It boasts a first string line almost a match for Northwestern's in weight, but which probably will lack the Purple's reserve strength. Dimas and McMillan, the tackles, average 200 pounds. Oliver will start at center, through his fine performance against Washington State.

Capt. Norm Duncan is the visitors' back field ace and will be intrusted with most of his team's offensive duties. In addition to being a fine plunger, he does practically all of the Bruins' kicking and passing. His back field associates are Bergdahl, quarter, and Keeble and Decker, half backs.

The Purple engaged in one of the hardest workouts of the season yesterday. The practice embraced all the fundamental drills in the book, including calisthenics, blocking, dummy scrimmage, kicking and passing. The workout terminated with a long offensive and defensive shadow scrimmage.

Will Use Reserves.

Coach Dick Hanley plans to start his regulars tomorrow. The lineup, with one exception, will be the same as that which kicked off against Notre Dame last week. Ed Manske will start at left end.

Considerable time has been spent with reserves this week. Many of these will get a chance to acquit themselves. Against Nebraska and Notre Dame the regulars were required to play most of the time.

Among those who will see action tomorrow are Sid Burnstein and Jackie Sullivan, half backs; Al Moore, full back, and Will Lewis, quarter; Froberg, center; Crizevsky and Larocque, guards; W. Riley and Heuss, tackles, and Kostbade, Streubing, Jens and Hall, ends.

RUTH PREDICTS DECLINE OF A'S, RISE OF YANKS

Denver, Colo., Oct. 15.—(AP)—Babe Ruth predicts Philadelphia's domination of the American league will end next season. In Denver on a barnstorming tour, Ruth said the New York Yankees needed only one winning pitcher to climb into the championship parade.

"The Athletics are through," he declared. "Grove and Earnshaw were burned up this year. They had four years taken off their baseball careers by overwork. Cochrane and Simmons are slowing up, and Bing Miller is about through."

On the subject of the Yankees he was enthusiastic.

"We had the most powerful outfit this year," said the Babe. "Think of it—the Yanks drove in something like 1,064 runs this year, nearly 300 more than the Athletics. We didn't have the pitching. One great pitcher next year and we'll crash through."

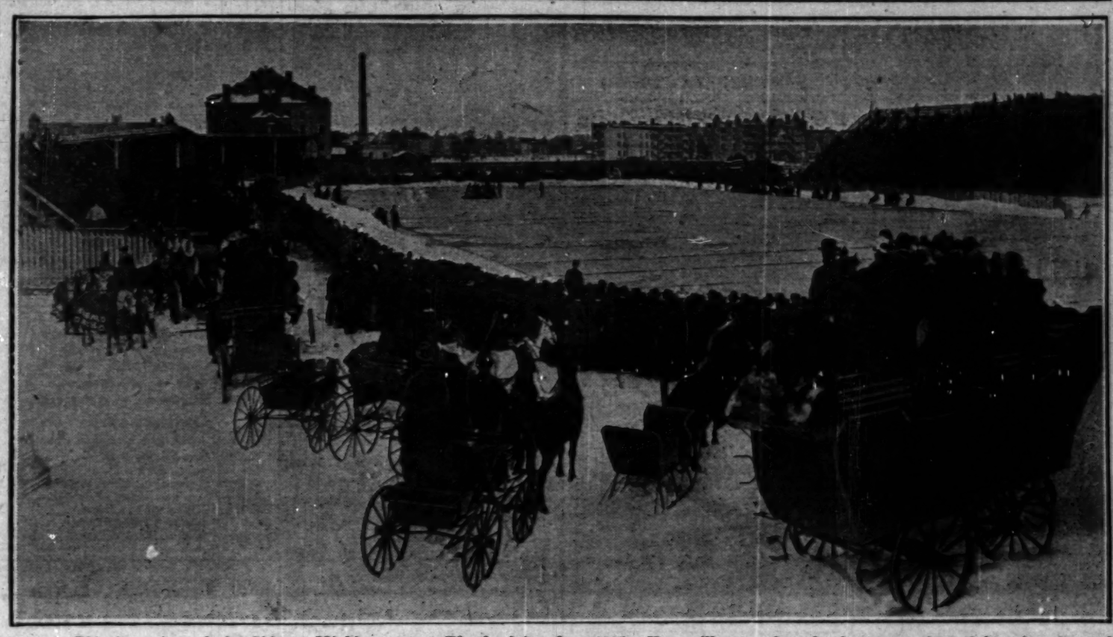
WHEN MICHIGAN BEAT CHICAGO IN 1895



This is a view of the Chicago-Michigan game, Thanksgiving day, 1895. You will note that the fans came in tallyhos, buggies and sleighs. It was played on Stagg field, then called Marshall Field, after the donor of the ground. Michigan won the game, 12 to 0.

Urges Harvard vs. Princeton to Aid Charity

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 15.—(AP)—Hamilton Fish Jr., chairman of the congressional committee investigating communistic propaganda, today telegraphed A. Lawrence Lowell, president of Harvard university, suggesting that Harvard and Princeton play a football game in New York City to aid unemployment.

Harvard and Princeton have not met for several years, due to differences. Fish, who captained the Harvard teams of 1908 and 1909, said he believed this would be a fine time for them to resume football relations.

"Strongly urge that Harvard authorities consider favorably the suggestion of Owen D. Young [a member of President Hoover's unemployment commission] to play a post-season football game to help the unemployment relief fund and take the liberty to suggest that game be arranged with Princeton in New York City," Fish telegraphed Lowell. "Am certain such a game would be welcomed by graduates of both colleges and by the public."

HARVARD NONCOMMITTAL.

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 15.—(AP)—A. Lawrence Lowell, president of Harvard university, tonight declined to comment on the suggestion that the Crimson reunite football relations with Princeton to aid unemployment.

Officials announced some time ago that the athletic policy prohibited post-season games for any purposes. Harvard, however, has donated the stadium to Boston college and Holy Cross for their Thanksgiving game to aid the Boston unemployment fund.

Frequently, since Harvard and Princeton broke relations, Representative Hamilton Fish of New York has urged his alma mater to change her policies, but his suggestions always have been unheeded by Dr. Lowell and the athletic association.

TOURNEY ENDS SEASON.

Hanover, N. H., Oct. 15.—(AP)—The winners of the unemployment fund football tournaments will not meet in an extra contest, E. K. Hall, chairman of the intercollegiate football rules committee and spokesman for the eight eastern colleges entered in the elimination competition, said tonight.

"The tournament in the Yale bowl of Dec. 5, in which Dartmouth, Yale, Brown, and Holy Cross will take part, will conclude the efforts of these teams for the season," he said, "and the only benefit exhibition to be played by Pennsylvania, Princeton, Cornell, and Columbia will be held in New York on Dec. 9."

Forty Years on the Midway
The Life Story of Amos Alonzo Stagg

BY ARCH WARD.

While the University of Chicago ranks second to Michigan in percentage of conference football victories since the organization of the Big Ten, it is rather surprising to note that only four of the thirty-nine teams coached by A. A. Stagg completed their schedules undefeated.

The teams with a clean slate were in 1899, 1905, 1908, and 1913. However, twelve of Stagg's teams were charged with only one defeat. Michigan, Minnesota, or Illinois usually was the eleven that deprived the Maroons of an all victorious season. Chicago's "one defeat" teams were 1897, 1902, 1904, 1906, 1907, 1909, 1911, 1912, 1921, 1922, 1923, 1924.

Asked his opinion of the strongest team he has coached, the Old Man said:

"I couldn't name the strongest team we have had, so much has to be taken into consideration in the selection of great players and great teams."

Mr. Stagg's refusal to name his leading player or strongest team is consistent with his attitude on all-star elevens. He always has opposed mythical post-season lineups on the grounds that they are meaningless and usually unfair. He recently declined to be a party to the selection of an all-America team for 1931, realizing that the public no longer accepts them seriously.

Victory Over Wisconsin in 1899 His Favorite.

In the forty years he has been serving the athletic department at the University of Chicago Stagg has had his share of victories. There is one, however, that he prizes above all others. That was the 17 to 0 triumph over Wisconsin in 1899.

This is Mr. Stagg telling about that game:

"Michigan, Illinois, and Chicago banded together in 1898 and refused to schedule games with Wisconsin because the Badgers had used two players, Maybury and Cochems, whom we believed to be professionals. The next fall Wisconsin ruled the men ineligible and at the same time we found that the Badgers had allied themselves with Michigan and Illinois to boycott Chicago for what they called 'haughty tactics.'

"Chicago had to carry on its year around athletic program from the receipts of the football season. Consequently we insisted on playing most of our games at home where we could draw larger crowds than at Champaign, Madison or Ann Arbor, all relatively small towns. We had no alumni body to help finance our sports activities because Chicago was an infant university.

"Consequently we looked to the east to fill out our football schedule in 1899. Brown and Cornell were encountered for the first time. It was a profitable adventure, for we made more money that season than ever before. We went through the schedule undefeated, whipping Notre Dame, Purdue, Northwestern, Minnesota, Brown, and Cornell as well as several smaller schools. We were tied by Iowa and Pennsylvania.

Alumni Begin Agitation for Championship Game.

"Meanwhile Wisconsin had gone through its season undefeated and immediately the supporters of the two universities agitated a post-season game for the western championship.

"I was in favor of the game because I felt we had the better team. When an alumnus approached me on the proposition I lost no time in giving my consent. He arranged with a Wisconsin graduate, who also wanted the game, for a luncheon to which Chicago and Wisconsin men were invited. It was not ostensibly called to steam up a post-season contest, but soon after the guests assembled the two conspirators opened an argument as to which was the stronger eleven.

"After the discussion had fired alumni of both schools the Wisconsin man suggested that instead of wrangling over the dinner table that the two teams get together and fight it out. The Chicago alumnus who had helped set the stage retorted that Chicago was ready but that Wisconsin didn't have enough courage to accept the challenge.

"The Badgers resented this insinuation and brought pressure to bear upon the officials at Wisconsin to approve the game. It was arranged for Dec. 9 at Madison and we demonstrated conclusively that we had the stronger team."

Maroons of 1894 First Team to Visit Coast.

When you think about intersectional football, the first school that generally comes to mind is Notre Dame because of the South Bend team's invasions of the east, far west, and south. But long before Notre Dame became a factor in national football, Stagg's teams were traveling from coast to coast. In 1894 Chicago went west to play Stanford and the Salt Lake City Y. M. C. A. It was the first time an eastern football team had crossed the Rockies. Pennsylvania was on the Maroons' schedule in 1898, and the following year both Brown and Cornell appeared.

Asked the other day for a list of the major football reforms in which he had a hand, Mr. Stagg answered that he didn't like to be thought of as a reformer. He confessed to the following "innovations":

1. Abolition of the student manager system at Chicago and placing the

Beat Ohio and Breeze to Title, Michigan Plan

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 15.—This football contest Saturday between Michigan and Ohio State is the apex of the Wolverine conference schedule, but there is a noticeable lack of anxiety among fans over the outcome. Seventy thousand will watch the game.

The Chicago game last week may have warned the public that Michigan is not a point a minute eleven. But since the early days of Fielding Yost's régime Michigan has not gone in for unnecessary scoring. The team with the most points wins, and Michigan lately has been cutting the corners on the margin.

Unbeaten in 15 Games.

A few seasons back the Wolverines smothered Navy with a half hundred points or more, but that excessive production was extraordinary and an exception which proves the rule. Illinois in 1929 was the last team to whip Michigan. A week later Michigan defeated Harvard, 14 to 12, by two successful kicks for extra points after touchdowns. Including that game, the Wolverines have run up 13 victories and two scoreless ties.

Iowa was responsible for one tie when the Hawkeyes, bidding farewell to conference competition in 1929 after its expulsion, played inspired football. The other tie was against Michigan State last season.

Game Is Title Test—Yost.

This game against Ohio State is regarded by Yost as Michigan's championship test.

"If Michigan wins," Yost said last night in a radio address at Detroit, "it should at least tie for the title."

Yost went on to eulogize Ohio State and its rivalry with Michigan. He harked back to 35 years ago, when, as coach at Ohio Wesleyan, he first met the Buckeyes in combat.

Coach Kipke, who followed his superior on the air, spoke of the three year competition between himself and Sam Willaman, Ohio State coach. Both started their Big Ten activities in 1929. That year Ohio won, 7 to 0. Last season Michigan triumphed, 13 to 0.

Plans Game with N. U.

Michigan admits that Northwestern should score five conference victories to repeat its 1930 championship performance. Yost and Kipke see no cause to worry in Illinois, Indiana, and Minnesota. Yost already is planning a charity game between Northwestern and Michigan and wants that contest for Ann Arbor.

Ohio State, or more particularly Coach Willaman, must win. Willaman's tenure of office may be termi-

45 PLAYERS TO HOLD WORKOUT AT STAGG FIELD

Lineup Announced for Maroon Game.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 15.—In a burst of old fashioned collegiate exuberance, 200 Yale students gathered on the lawn in front of the athletic office and barked a parting salute to the 45 members of the football squad as the buses started to roll for the railroad station this afternoon, beginning the journey to Chicago for the testimonial game in honor of Alonzo Stagg.

Bags had been stowed and a final check-up had discovered Albie, or Abie, Booth, the smallest football captain Yale ever had, doing road work under a seat. The noncombatant Yales who had come down to cheer the team fell into a loose formation on the grass and one hatless young man with a trace of self-consciousness in his bearing took the center to lead them in a crackling, measured yelp for the team. This was so successful that he called for one for Albie, or Abie, and the cheering concluded with a good substantial yell for Dr. Marvin Stevens, the head coach.

Nearly Forgets His Baggage.

Mr. Harold Woodcock, general manager of the Yale Athletic association, arrived carrying a paper bag containing his comb and brush hastily dispatched from home. The Yales are inveterate home bodies and the manager of athletics, unaccustomed to packing for journeys, had forgotten part of his kit. He climbed aboard a bus as the migration began and a little later, at 1:05 p. m., the Yale football team was off on a trip beyond the great Yale football barrier of the Alleghenies.

There were many more hands, and heads, on the squad than Dr. Stevens is likely to call upon for service in Saturday's game against the University of Chicago, and these extras were being taken along, frankly, just for the choo-choo ride in reward for their helpful participation in the general mêlée of competitive football practice.

Arrive at 1:35 Today.

There were about 70 in the entire party, including, aside from the players, Mr. Woodcock, Jack Cates, the graduate director of athletics; G. Hutchinson, chairman of the football committee, and the invaluable Paul Barnett, the Yale press agent. The party traveled on a special train, following the New Haven line into Penn station, New York, then the Pennsylvania to Chicago. The entire troupe will unload at Englewood station at 1:35 o'clock Friday afternoon and move by bus to the Hotel Windermere, where the players will be allowed about thirty minutes to dress for practice at Stagg field.

There were no known undergraduate stowaways on the train, another evidence of Yale's inexperience in long football journeys. A school the size of Yale, given a little practice in carpet bagging, should be able to turn out at least four unofficial passengers to ride in the duffle bags or stifle under the seats for 24 hours, eluding the conductors. This is one phase of football in which the eastern schools, by comparison with those of the west, are distinctly old fashioned.

What! No Band?

There was no sign or sound of the Yale band at the send off, but here again there is a difference between the east and the somewhat west. The bands of Yale and Harvard play only on great provocation and they perform the chaste and simple evolutions of their gala marches without shakos, epaulets or ballbearing spurs.

Prof. William Lyon Phelps—Billy to the young and old Yales—though indispensable to any authentic Yale doings, did not accompany the team and the supernumeraries on the special train, but he will be there nevertheless. The professor, who is expected to swing out into space and discourse at the Yale dinner in Chicago such wit, philosophy and erudition as has not been heard since Chauncey W. Depew began to choke up his elder years, is traveling by another train. He is a strange professor, indeed, whose students would tear the front off the building to get into, not out of, any hall in which he happened to be dealing his routines.

Although Adam Walsh, the Yale line coach, momentarily degraded four members of the regular Yale line Wednesday for yawning at their work, the supposition is that they will be back at their jobs in Chicago, the better for it.

The lineup reading from left to right therefore probably will be: Ends, Flygare and Bares; tackles, Wilbur and Hall; guards, Nichols and Rotan; center, Doonan; quarter back, Parker; half backs, Booth and Taylor, and full back, Muhlfeld.

The left guard position is manned by a No. 3 man in Ed Nichols, as both Mark Tyson and A. Burton Strange Jr., who have prior claims on the jobs, are limping from injuries. Tommy Taylor, the other half back, was slightly hurt in last Saturday's Georgia game, but recovered during the week.

DE PAUL BATTLES ST. MARY'S GRID TEAM TONIGHT

Demons Seek First Home Victory Over Old Enemy.

De Paul university will meet St. Mary's of Winona, Minn., tonight at Mills stadium in the fourth football game of the season for the Blue Demons. St. Mary's eleven is undefeated in three games, one of which resulted in a tie with Montana State.

A bitter rivalry dating ten years back exists between De Paul and St. Mary's. The Blue Demons have never been able to defeat the Minnesotans on a Chicago gridiron and won only one of the ten contests between the two schools, whipping St. Mary's last year at Winona, 13 to 7.

De Paul Wins Twice.

De Paul has two triumphs—over Illinois Wesleyan and Detroit—to its credit so far this year.

Tonight's starting lineup has been revised from last week's when Illinois Wesleyan was defeated. John Sexton will be at left tackle instead of Barskis, Jack Kelly has the call at center over Jim Gorsky; Eddie Lyons will handle one of the ends; Whitey Engle will play half back in the place of the injured Butcher, and Art McGivern takes over the full back job, Jablonski also being on the disabled list. Mat Steffen has recovered from injuries.

Doody at Quarter.

De Paul's main line strength is embodied in Capt. McClane and Emmet Cowhey, guards. Jim Doody will direct the Demons at quarter back. Lineup:

DE PAUL.		ST. MARY'S.
Cosa	L. E.	Hass
Sexton	L. T.	Lewis
Cowhey	L. G.	La Franiere
Kelly	C.	Almquist
McClane	R. G.	Kinney
Cherne	R. T.	Hennessey
Lyons	R. E.	L. Prestenik
Doody	Q. B.	Voelker
Steffen	L. H.	Dick
Engle	R. H.	R. Prestenik
McGivern	F. B.	Huennekens

Referee—Schommer (Chicago). Umpire—Kerrane (De Paul). Head linesman—Blake (Columbia). Field judge—Lipp (Chicago).

Football Still Million Dollar Sport at Yale

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 15.—(AP)—Football continued its reign as a million dollar sport at Yale during 1930, netting a profit of $600,456.92, which was used in wiping out deficits incurred by less lucrative sports.

The athletic association ended its fiscal year June 30, 1931, without a surplus, but the revenue from football saved it from the red side of the ledger in its athletic financial affairs.

A financial statement issued today by H. F. Woodcock, general manager of the athletic association, showed that football had contributed gross receipts of $1,140,568.63 to the gross revenue of $1,225,121.62 realized during the year from university athletic activities. From the football receipts was deducted disbursements of $540,611.71, which included payments to visiting teams.

The gross receipts from all sports, including football, showed a decrease over those of 1929-'30, when the association reported gross revenue of $1,370,204.11, of which $1,164,964.36 came from football. A net profit of $230,009.48 was realized for the year this amount being applied toward previous liabilities and to new plant construction and improvement costs.

With the exception of football, all of the 16 university sports were operated at a loss. Rowing ended the year with the largest deficit. This sport brought in only $2,228.77, as against disbursements of $80,284.11, leaving a deficit of $78,055.34. Track and cross-country were responsible for the next largest deficit, one of $55,382.68. These sports was maintained at a cost of $57,939.13 and brought to the association's coffers only $2,556.55.

SPARTANS WHIP PHILADELPHIA IN MUD FIGHT, 19-0

Portsmouth, O., Oct. 15.—(AP)—Slipping and sliding over a field of mud, Portsmouth defeated the Philadelphia Yellow Jackets, 19 to 0, here tonight in a National league football game.

Two blocked punts paved the way for the Spartans' first two touchdowns. Full Back Schwartz crashed through right tackle for 16 yards for the first in the third quarter, and Dutch Clark, on a fake buck, skirted left end for the second. In the final period Clark broke through left tackle on a fake pass and ran 33 yards to score.

HARTIGAN HEADS MIDWEST PRO CAGE CIRCUIT

Bill Hartigan was elected president of the newly organized Midwest Professional Basketball league last night. Other officers elected are: Tom Brice, vice president, and M. J. Pauley, secretary-treasurer. Twelve teams will hold franchises in the league.

They are Duffy Florals, McNamara Brothers of Whiting, Hartigans, Cicero, Golde Clothes, Kenosha, Racine, Milwaukee, Joliet, Beloit, Rockford, and East Chicago.

$2 Combination Ticket at Fairmount Pays $1,606.78

Collinsville, Ill., Oct. 15.—(AP)—With Noble Wrack, a 60 to 1 shot, and Shonn, another outsider, forming the winning combination, the "daily double" at Fairmount race track this afternoon paid $1,606.78 for $2 in the special pool, the highest refund on the combination at the present meeting. Four winning tickets were sold.

Beat Ohio and Breeze to Title, Michigan Plan

nated unless the Buckeyes come through, but Ohio State cannot win unless it quits wasting effort. Against Vanderbilt Ohio made 18 first downs to 8 by the opposition and lost, 26 to 21.

Michigan plays football at the other end of the scale. It might make eight first downs and four touchdowns, if four were needed.

Michigan Seldom Blows Up.

Michigan's teams always play intelligent football, and the eleven which will face Ohio State is no exception. The players seldom become panicstricken. The last time a Michigan team blew up was before Purdue's whirlwind fourth quarter finish in 1929, when the Boilermakers won, 30 to 16, in a first step to a conference championship.

Tonight's drill began with a long session for the kickers with the linemen and ends racing down under the punts, which on occasion bettered 50 yards. The varsity then brushed up on its attack in a dummy scrimmage. Using a single wing back formation and calling signals in a huddle, the team flashed through its running plays which, judging from the sidelines, will be especially strong at the ends of the Ohio line.

Kipke then set his regulars to work defending against Ohio's formations demonstrated by a freshman team.

Hoser to Start at Guard.

Hewitt and Williamson were at the ends; Auer and Samuels at tackles, La Jeunesse and Kowalik at guards, and Morrison at center. Stan Hozer, however, is expected to start in place of Kowalik Saturday. In the back field were Hudson, full back; Fay and Heston, half backs, and Newman, quarter back. Later on Hewitt was sent to Hudson's position and Fielding Yost Jr. worked at left end.

Michigan had no difficulty stopping the Ohio plays. Most of the time six men played in the defensive line with Hudson and Morrison about three yards to the rear. Heston, over whom Chicago completed its touchdown pass last week, had the defensive left half position, all-important because he faces the strength of plays designed for a right hand passer.

Newman was kept down field, for Ohio utilizes a quick kick to advantage and Kipke is not willing to chance losing valuable ground by having a punt sail over the head of his safety man's head.

OHIO SQUAD ENTRAINS

Columbus, O., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Forty Ohio State football players left tonight to meet the University of Michigan football team at Ann Arbor Saturday. The party will stop off at Ypsilanti, Mich., tomorrow. More than 5,000 students joined in a pep parade and session in the university bowl before marching the team to the special train.

Pep talks were made by Coach Sam Willaman, Capt. Stuart Holcomb, and other notables of the campus. The Ohio State band of 120 pieces then led the parade to the train.

Ted Rossquist, star tackle, did not make the trip, while Marshal Oliphant, the best passer on the squad, was left at home with a broken bone in his ankle. Ferrall, with his broken hand in a special glove cast, will be able to start the game at end.

Coach Willaman announced his starting lineup as: Ends—Ferrall and Gillman. Tackles, Bell and Haubrich. Guards—Varner and Gailus. Center—Smith. In the back field—Cramer at quarter back, Vuchinich at full back, with Hinchman and either Carroll or Holcomb at halves.

Five special trains carrying more than 3,000 university students and football fans will leave Columbus tomorrow and Saturday for the game.

The following players will make the trip:

REIHSEN REJOINS GOPHERS

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Minnesota will have the services of Bob Reihsen, veteran guard, who has been suffering from a sciatic nerve injury for weeks, when the Gophers line up against Iowa Oct. 24. He received that news today after a visit to a specialist, who gave him a thorough examination. Reihsen's return will improve the caliber of the guard material, which was exceedingly weak, for the Stanford game. Jim Dennerly, who injured his hand last week, also is rounding into form and will be ready for the team's first conference game.

The regulars, at least those who haven't any serious injuries, were sent through a long scrimmage this afternoon against the freshmen. Crisler devoted much of the drill to improving the blocking of the backs and the line. This has been the Gophers' outstanding weak spot this year.

The scrimmage was preceded by a long drill in fundamentals. Crisler probably will leave his squad Friday night to watch the Purdue-Wisconsin duel at Madison Saturday.

Four Notre Dame Changes Stand for Drake Game

Notre Dame, Ind., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Changes made in Notre Dame's varsity lineup will be permanent at least until after the game here Saturday with Drake, according to Coach Anderson.

"The four men I advanced to the varsity yesterday," said Anderson, "earned this chance on the basis of their showing against Northwestern. Any further changes will depend on how they look against Drake."

Krause, Devore, Greeney, and Melinkovich are the new men.

INDIANA OFF FOR IOWA

Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Thirty-three Indiana university gridmen left this afternoon for Iowa City on their first road trip this season. No practice was held this afternoon, but one will take place in the Municipal stadium at Davenport, Ia., tomorrow afternoon.

IOWA TAKES TO AIR

Iowa City, Ia., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Hopes for a successful passing attack, unknown in University of Iowa football during the last five years, rose today as the Hawkeyes began tapering off for Indiana Saturday.

Passing and pass defense received undivided attention in practice today, with Kriz and Hickman, half backs, doing the tossing. The latter was used in the starting lineup for the first time in a week because of a sprained ankle. Kenneth Trickey, latest end choice, made a good showing by catching several long passes. Kriz and Merten completed a half dozen against the freshmen.

Harold Hantelman, senior guard, who turned his ankle in practice yesterday, attended the drill on crutches. He probably will be unable to play against the Hoosiers. Akin continued as his replacement in the line tonight.

St. Mel and De Paul to Risk Undefeated Records Tonight

De Paul academy and St. Mel, undefeated thus far in the north section of the Chicago Catholic High School league, will meet tonight under the lights at Loyola field, Sheridan road and Loyola avenue, for the benefit of the Convent of the Cenacle. More than 5,000 are expected to attend.

It will be the third league contest for both teams, De Paul having won from St. Patrick and St. George, while St. Mel defeated St. Patrick and tied St. George. All members of De Paul's squad will be in the lineup tonight with the possible exception of Eddie Napolilli, who was injured in the St. George game.

The fourth annual cross-country run of the Chicago Public High School league will be staged over a two mile course in Washington park on Nov. 7. This was announced yesterday by A. H. Pritzlaff, secretary of the league.

Harrison Tech and Austin will go through light drills this afternoon for their game tomorrow, which is expected to draw the largest crowd of the season at Mills stadium.

Tilden, which drew a bye in this week's central section schedule, will face St. Rita tomorrow in a non-league game at St. Rita field, 63d street and South Oakley avenue.

Capt. Sarroco will lead McKinley against Marshall this afternoon in a west section game at Mills stadium. Both squads were defeated in their opening games.

Another west division team, Crane Tech, will visit Rockford, Ill., tonight to meet Rockford High school, which already has scored victories over Marshall and Bowen.

Lefty Hayes, St. George half back, who suffered a dislocated hip in the De La Salle game, will return to the lineup Sunday afternoon when St. George meets St. Patrick at Evanston. However, Bob Zuercher, St. George's star end, who also was injured, will be on the hospital list for three weeks.

Games Today

De Paul vs. St. Mel at Loyola field, 8 p. m.
McKinley vs. Marshall at Mills stadium, 4 p. m.
Crane at Rockford, Ill., 8 p. m.

WHEELER LOSES TWO MATCHES IN CUE TOURNEY

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Don Tozer, Decatur, Ill., defeated John Wheeler, Newton, Ill., 100 to 60, in 21 innings in this afternoon's game of the northern section, south division, pocket billiard tournament being held here.

Wheeler suffered his second defeat of today and fifth of the tournament when Rolla Brown of Champaign won over Wheeler in the first game, 100 to 26, in 15 innings.

George Nuss of Kansas City defeated John Layton of Sedalia, Mo., tonight, 100 to 74, in 24 innings. Both played cautiously, with Layton leading at one time by 25 points. With the score standing 74 to 55, Nuss took a big chance on a bust and made a run of 45 points to win the match. Present standings:

	W	L	Pct.
George Nuss, Kansas City, Mo.	4	0	1.000
Coy Julian, Springfield, Ill.	3	0	1.000
John Layton, Sedalia, Mo.	3	1	.750

SID TERRIS SUES HIS MOTHER FOR RING EARNINGS

New York, Oct. 15.—(AP)—A son went to court against his mother today in an effort to force her to return to him funds estimated at between $83,000 and $150,000.

Sid Terris, the boxer, testified that his mother induced him to turn over to her the earnings of the first six years of his ring career. She offered to create a trust fund for him, Terris said. When he asked for the money, he asserted, she refused to give it to him.

Mrs. Gussie Terris, his mother, who is supported by five of her children, told a different story.

Sid gave her the money outright, she said, "because he was a good boy before he decided to get married, and wanted me to live like a swell lady on Riverside drive, with an automobile, too."

Find Weed Seed Is Pheasants' Favorite Diet

BY BOB BECKER.

The pheasants that roam the fields of Illinois and adjoining states are great seed eaters [especially weed seeds], according to a survey taken by A. R. Cahn of the department of zoology of the University of Illinois. Mr. Cahn's evidence is based on 68 stomach examinations made during every month of the year.

Although it is evident that more than 68 pheasant stomachs should be admitted to evidence on this question of food habits, nevertheless, this number gives farmers and sportsmen a pretty good idea of the kind of free meals that the ringneck likes.

Here are some percentages which Mr. Cahn arrived at following the stomach examinations. He found that waste grain comprised 24 per cent; good grain totaled 8 per cent; weed seeds comprised 30 per cent of the pheasants' diet.

Insects made up 19 per cent of the stomach contents and berries just 2 per cent.

In commenting on this evidence Mr. Cahn's report says:

"These percentages vary, according to locality and season; more grain is eaten in fall than in spring; more seeds in winter than in summer, etc. If we divide this 100 per cent into categories according to the economic value of the food, we find: Damage done, 12 per cent; benefit done, 61 per cent; neutral, 27 per cent.

"The benefit derived from the food habits of the pheasant becomes more striking with a glance at the following figures, taken from published records and my personal observations: One stomach contained over 3,000 chickweed seeds, 16 stomachs contained 335 webworms, 28 stomachs contained 738 insects, 628 of which were injurious to crops."

As Mr. Cahn points out in his scientific report, the amount of weed seeds destroyed by pheasants is enormous.

BOYLES' SERIES OF 3,162 SETS BOWLING RECORD

The Boyle Valves and the A. J. Cermaks turned in high scores last night in the Randolph bowling league. The Valves, who won two games, shot a 3,162 series for a season's record. Their 1,150 game was also a new mark. Adolph Carlson led the victors with a 678 series. Scores:

CATHOLIC YOUTH CLUBS SPONSOR BOXING TOURNEY

Bouts to Serve as Prelude to Golden Gloves.

Chicago's prospects of holding its place as the amateur boxing capital of America was given fresh impetus yesterday. The Catholic Youth organization, sponsored by the Rt. Rev. Bernard J. Sheil, plans to conduct next month a city-wide tournament which is expected to attract more than 1,000 boys.

This meet will serve as a prelude to the Golden Gloves tournament, which opens in February with elimination rounds on the three sides of the city. The leading fighters in all of the 160 parishes of the archdiocese will compete for Golden Gloves.

Finals of the Catholic Youth tournament will be held at Chicago Stadium Dec. 4. These will be preceded by qualifying meets in all sections of the city. The territory embraced by the Catholic Youth Organization includes the counties of Cook, Lake, Will, Grundy, Du Page, and Kankakee.

See Value in Boxing.

"THE TRIBUNE tournament has demonstrated the value of amateur boxing," Bishop Sheil said last night. "It is developing virility and sportsmanship among the youth of the district, especially for the underprivileged boy. There is a particular need for this type of work in periods of depressions when thousands of young men are unemployed."

The Catholic Youth organization was founded 18 months ago. Its purpose is to develop an athletic and social program to keep boys off the streets. It also has fostered the 160 Boy Scout troops, located in parishes from one end of the archdiocese to the other, of every nationality and creed. Each troop has its spiritual director who looks after their advancement in this field just as his Scoutmaster looks after his progress in scouting.

Three Rules for Tourney.

The boxing meet has been sanctioned by the Central A. A. U. The only qualifications for competition are: [1] Entrant must be a Catholic; [2] he must be over 16; [3] he must be an amateur.

The tournament has the endorsement of Mayor Cermak and the city's leading sportsmen.

NAME GENERAL COMMITTEE FOR SERVICE GAME

Committees in charge of the second annual service football game between St. John's and Culver Military academies at Soldiers' field, Nov. 14, under American Legion auspices, were announced yesterday.

The general committee is made up of Gen. Milton J. Foreman, Gen. John V. Clinnin, Brig. Gen. John J. Garrity, Brig. Gen. Frank R. Schwengel, Col. Robert Isham Randolph, Col. Horatio B. Hackett, Col. John A. Holabird, Col. A. A. Sprague, Col. Fred E. Rand, Lieut. Col. Jack Richmond, Maj. John L. Griffith, Joseph L. de la Cour, C. E. Taylor, David L. Shillinglaw, James P. Ringley, Arthur G. Poorman, Charles W. Schick, Ferre C. Watkins, Howard P. Savage, Edwin H. Felt, Nate T. Feldt, Joseph F. Novotny, and William M. Wilson.

The Legion committee is composed of David S. Oakes, treasurer; Harold H. Higgie, tickets; George M. Kellogg Jr., reception; Paul Kenny, parade; Sig. Nothelfer, 40 and 8; James E. Cogan, publicity, and L. A. Twomey, ushers.

Sidney N. Strotz has been appointed chairman of the St. John's alumni and L. J. Brady, chairman of the Culver alumni group.

Tramblie Fights Matthews Tonight on Eagles' Card

The only professional boxing show in Chicago this week will be held by Billy Cepak tonight at the Eagles' arena, 5241 West Madison street. Ray Tramblie, Chicago middleweight, will meet Matty Matthews of Kenosha, Wis., in the ten round windup. Johnny Baima faces Sid Speck in the eight round semi-final and Kid Irish meets Paul Dazzo in a six rounder. Two other contests are on the card.

Jack Dempsey's business manager, Leonard Sachs, will leave tomorrow for Kansas City, Mo., to complete preparations for the former heavyweight champion's middle western boxing tour, which starts at Moline, Ill., Nov. 6. Sachs will meet Dempsey in Salt Lake City, Utah, Nov. 1, where Jack went to vacation with his mother. Dempsey will not appear in Chicago to perform until early December. Jack weighs 193 pounds at present, the lightest poundage he has carried since the last Gene Tunney fight in 1927.

Nate Lewis, Chicago Stadium matchmaker, arrived in town yesterday from New York, where he signed two champions to defend their titles. Christopher [Bat] Battalino on Nov. 4 and Tony Canzoneri on Dec. 1. Earl Mastro, local featherweight, will be Battalino's opponent. Although such names as Billy Petrolle, Kid Kaplan, Sammy Fuller, and King Tut are announced as probable Canzoneri opponents in a 140 pound championship match, Tut is the most likely foe. The latter recently deposited a forfeit of $1,000 with the National Boxing association to bind a Canzoneri match for Tony's heavier title. The N. B. A. approves the Minneapolis boxer as the outstanding junior welter contender.

Maxie Rosenbloom, who was dethroned as light heavyweight champion by the N. B. A., leaves tonight for Minneapolis to go through with his scheduled ten round bout with Dick Daniels next Monday. He arrived here yesterday and will box with Tom Jones this afternoon at a loop gymnasium.

Bears, Cards in Final Drill for 1st Game

The Bears and Cardinals, Chicago's representatives in the National Professional Football league, will conclude preparations today for the first contest of their two game city series at Wrigley field Sunday. The twenty-second meeting between the teams on Sunday will be the Cardinals' home game. The second of the series will be played on Thanksgiving day.

Followers of the Bears and Cardinals are speculating on the ground gaining duel which is anticipated between Red Grange of the Bears and Ernie Nevers, coach, captain and full back of the Cardinals. They figure the game will be decided by a long run with Grange or Nevers carrying the ball.

ALL STARS PLAY BOOSTERS.

The colored All Stars will play the Portage Park Boosters Sunday at Portage Park, Irving Park boulevard and Long avenue.

HANDICAPPERS FOOLED BY OLD CALF ROPER AGAIN

Beats My Dandy Despite Interference.

BY FRENCH LANE.

The track handicappers cannot take so many liberties with Calf Roper, a 3 year old son of High Time, which ...for young Jim Norris of Chi...

They tried it in the Tanforan handi... at Hawthorne yesterday, a dash of six furlongs in which Calf Roper was opposed by such flyers as My ...dy, Tannery, Flag Bearer, Abdel, ...d, Ulundu.

The handicappers let Calf Roper ...the struggle under the feather-...ht impost of 104 pounds. My Dandy was asked to pack 115 over the ...ddy course. Tannery was in at ...and Flag Bearer at 114.

Brothers Make Early Pace.

Flag Bearer and My Dandy, full ...others, both being sons of Port ...Scepter and Staff, made all ...e early pace and until the field ...d the last turn it looked as if they ...d the race sewed up between them. ...Then, staging a brilliant rally, Calf ...Roper came on the extreme outside ...to roll up on even terms with them ...as they straightened out in the ...stretch for the run home.

My Dandy was leading at this time ...and Flag Bearer was quitting at a ...pace that soon found him running ...last. Jockey Melvin Knight on My ...Dandy, realizing the danger of Calf ...Roper's challenge, carried the latter ...wide all the way down the ...stretch. Finally Calf Roper shook ...himself loose from the interference ...and went on to win by a length. My ...Dandy was second and Ulunlu third. ...The stewards suspended Jockey ...Knight for 10 days because of his ...rough riding tactics.

Calf Roper ran the six furlongs in ...1:13⅘, and the Hawthorne strip was ...very difficult. In the mutuels ...paid $3.26 for a two dollar ticket.

Listo Beats Juveniles.

Five year olds were asked to race ...against older horses for the first time ...this year in Chicago in the Ambassa... purse at six furlongs.

Two juveniles accepted the issue. They were Dis Dat, owned by Tom ...Sharpe of French Lick Springs, Ind., and Worldly Lad from Ald. John J. ...Melville's stable.

They performed nobly but were not ...good enough to turn back such a ...good runner as Listo from Calli... and a horse like Guide Right, ...which was at home in the tough ...going.

Listo, after taking the lead right ...from the beginning, never left the result ...in doubt and Guide Right always ran ...good, although he was beaten four ...lengths by Listo. Then came the pair ...of two year olds, Dis Dat in third ...place and Worldly Lad fourth.

Winner Pays $13.56.

Listo had been trying to win a ...race around Chicago all season but ...this was the first time he entered the ...winner's circle. He ran the 6 fur... over the difficult track in ...1:13¾, not fast time. Listo was over... played in the betting and paid $13.56 ...for a two dollar ticket. A plunge on ...Guide Right made him the even ...money favorite at post time.

As the program opened Adsum, a ...two year old son of mighty old Hour... was a handy winner from Sport... Maudie and the favorite Bon ...Jockey Leyland rode one of ...the best races to get Adsum up in ...time to win. The long shot players ...gave him a big cheer, for Adsum re... paid $43.46 for each two dollars in... mutuels. Maillw had been a red hot ...pick, but quit to a walk in the late ...stages.

Sun Beau Sets Record.

Gallant old Sun Beau, 6 year old star of Willis Sharpe Kilmer's barn, won $113,225 for the year in climbing to the top of the money winning class for all time with a grand total of $376,744, nearly $50,000 more than Gallant Fox's record established last year. He is still in training, but probably will be retired to the stud without fulfilling his Maryland engagements.

Sun Beau finished fourth on the list of the 1931 winners, however, as Top Flight, a two year old filly flying the silks of C. V. Whitney, swept six stake events, including the $100,000 Belmont Futurity, to net her youthful owner $162,830. With her schedule calling for at least one more start in Maryland, the juvenile champion has an excellent chance of passing the record of the great Domino, which set a two year old money winning mark of $179,890.

TOMMY COOK SIGNS CONTRACT WITH HAWKS

Tommy Cook, canter ice star of the Blackhawks, arrived in Chicago yesterday and signed a contract for this season. Although Cook was handicapped last season when his line mate, Earl Miller, was removed from the game in midseason because of illness, he finished second among the Hawk scorers, with 29 points.

He will be teamed this season with Miller, who is again in form. The Cook-Miller combination led the Hawk scorers season before last.

The Hawks elected Cyclone Wentworth, veteran defense man, captain.

TRADING TURNS DULL IN CHICAGO STOCK MARKET

Final Share Prices Show Little Change.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Trading turned dull on the Chicago exchange yesterday and stocks held around their previous closing quotations. Final prices in most instances were under the best quotations of the day as late realizing had reduced or wiped out the modest gains which were recorded in the early bulge.

Insull Utilities Investment led in activity and made a small fractional gain, while the second preferred jumped 4¾ points on light trading. Middle West Utilities finished unchanged but the 6 per cent preferred rose 4 points. Commonwealth Edison and Northwest Utilities preferred advanced more than 2 points each. On the other hand, Southwestern Gas and Electric preferred dropped 6¾ points.

Automotive Group Firm.

The automotive group showed firmness. Bendix Aviation, Borg-Warner and Corn corporation made fractional gains. Waukesha Motors sagged 2¾ points. In the miscellaneous section Quaker Oats, U. S. Gypsum and Noblitt-Sparks advanced a point or two, while Cities Service, Swift International and U. S. Radio made fractional gains.

Permission is being sought by twelve Indiana telephone companies to consolidate as the Indiana Associated Telephone corporation, the control of which will be held by the Associated Telephone Utilities company. Shares of the latter concern are traded in on the Chicago exchange.

Representatives of the twelve concerns appeared yesterday before the Indiana public service commission with a petition for authority to merge and issue securities to the sum of $6,300,000. It is proposed to issue $3,150,000 in bonds and the remainder in common and preferred stock.

Associated Investment Report.

Associated Investment company yesterday reported net operating profits for the nine months ended Sept. 30 of $758,094 as compared with $766,004 in the same period last year. The earnings are after deductions for reserves including state and federal taxes.

Exchange governors yesterday approved the listing of 748,481 shares of the $8 optional preferred stock of the Corporation Securities company of Chicago. Allotment certificates and common shares are now traded in. Permanent stock certificates will be admitted to the list on official notice of issuance.

MONEY AND EXCHANGE

Money rates are quoted by Chicago banks as follows: Customers' commercial loans, 5 per cent; collateral loans, 4½@5 per cent; brokers' loans, 4½@5 per cent; commercial paper, 4½@5 per cent; bankers' acceptances, 2¾@3 per cent on thirty to ninety days' maturities. Chicago bank clearings were $58,700,000, compared with $53,600,000 a week ago, and $103,100,000 a year ago.

RESERVE BANK OF N. Y. BOOSTS RATE TO 3½ PCT.

ct Follows Gold Withdrawals.

BY O. A. MATHER.

The New York Federal Reserve bank, which is the chief reserve institution in the United States, late yesterday raised its rediscount rate from 2½ to 3½ per cent. Just a week before it had advanced the rate from 1½ to 2½ per cent. The rediscount rate of any reserve institution is the interest charge on money borrowed by the member banks.

The two advances of the New York reserve bank, both of a full point and coming within eight days, have come as somewhat of a surprise to bankers. The reasons advanced last night were varied. However, it was the opinion of Chicago bankers that the principal reason was a tightening of money rates and credit as the result of the heavy withdrawals of gold by foreign countries in the last six weeks and the hoarding of money in this country.

Start "Run on Dollar."

As explained in this column yesterday, there has been a "run" on the American dollar by foreign countries. These countries, both because of their desire to build up their own reserves and also as the result of misunderstanding the financial position of the United States, have converted credits held in this country into gold and either taken it home or had it "earmarked," which means set aside and stored.

Thus it has been that nearly $600,000,000 of gold has been withdrawn from this country since Sept. 1. At the same time, ill-considered hoarding of money by Americans, who have withdrawn it from their banks, has resulted in a large increase in issuance of federal reserve notes. Bankers estimate such hoarding has resulted in nearly $1,000,000,000 of money being locked up.

Bring Firmer Money Rates.

These combined movements have resulted in narrowing the credit base of American money and have caused a hardening tendency in money rates. However, the last week has shown a declining tendency in foreign withdrawals of gold and also in hoarding in this country. The New York reserve bank's daily statement on the gold movement yesterday showed a decline of $1,334,000 in gold earmarked for foreign account, although $17,215,000 was exported. For the week ended Wednesday, however, gold exported totaled $129,327,000 and gold earmarked for foreign account increased $6,616,000.

Hastening in the hoarding of money by Americans also was indicated in the weekly statement of our federal reserve system. While it showed an increase of $51,828,000 in federal reserve notes in circulation this was a smaller expansion than had occurred in the two preceding weeks.

See Failure of Former Policy.

With the New York reserve bank advancing its loaning rate sharply and with other reserve banks expected to conform, Chicago bankers expressed belief that the policy of "cheap money" inaugurated by the federal reserve board last year has been abandoned. This policy has failed of its purpose to stimulate trade; on the other hand, it has resulted in banks paying low interest rates on deposits. Low interest rates also have been a factor in causing withdrawal of foreign deposits.

It was the "cheap money" policy that resulted in the New York reserve bank fixing a rediscount rate of 1½ per cent last May, which brought the rate to the lowest level in the history of the reserve system. It culminated a series of reductions from a 6 per cent rate which prevailed in August, 1928. On the other hand, the Bank of France, which has withdrawn the bulk of gold from this country, has been maintaining a 2½ per cent rate.

Money Rates Advance.

The recent New York rediscount rates have been artificial because of an increase in open money market rates. Rates of bankers' acceptances have risen in the last week or so from 1 to as high as 2½ per cent, commercial paper rates have risen to 4¼ and 5 per cent, call money has advanced from 1½ to 2 and 2½ per cent, and time money has risen to 3 per cent.

Both Chicago and New York bankers insisted last night that there will be no lack of credit for all legitimate needs of American trade and industry. They believe the bulk of foreign withdrawals of gold already has taken place and that considerable of it will return eventually. They also believe American hoarding of money will cease and that it will return to the banks for useful credit purposes.

Largely as the result of foreign conversion of credits into gold, the federal reserve system in the last week purchased $149,051,000 of bankers' acceptances, bringing such holdings up to $730,607,000. Loans to the member banks also expanded $164,186,000, now totaling $627,579,000. Federal reserve notes in circulation now total $2,321,817. Gold reserves declined $109,936,000, but still stand at $2,836,-814,000. The ratio of total assets to liabilities now is 61.8 per cent, compared with 67.1 per cent last week.

Explains Plan for Bank to Discount Real Estate Paper

Details of the plan for a federal mortgage discount bank to make real estate securities more liquid were outlined to members of the Illinois Association of Real Estate Boards at their annual banquet at Aurora last night by Harry S. Kissell, president of the national association. Mr. Kissell stated that he conferred last week with members of the Hoover administration and with the Hoover housing council and that the proposal is to be placed before congress at its coming session.

Under the proposal real estate paper would be discounted by the federal bank the same as the federal reserve banks discount commercial paper.

"This scheme is no novelty," Mr. Kissell said. "For the last 100 years government sponsored mortgage discount banks have been in operation in foreign countries and have proved successful in making real estate securities the favorite investment.

Reasons of Plan.

"I have discussed this proposal before dozens of state realty organizations in recent weeks and all have indorsed it. In addition many papers, bankers and financial leaders have approved it."

In discussing the reasons for advocating the plan, Mr. Kissell continued:

"It is our desire to make real estate securities liquid and to create an institution which will assist in the flow of real estate capital from one section of the country to another. It is our desire to help save the many sound savings institutions in this country and to continue them in the very wonderful work which they have done in making homes possible for American citizens.

"It is above all our desire to create such a condition that the working man who for five or ten years has put his hard earned savings into a home should not be faced again in a period of distress with conditions which face him at this time and which are causing innumerable people all over this land to lose their homes because they cannot finance them during this period of depression."

Eugene Klaber, architect, told the realtors that in the long run they would find it profitable if they revised their methods of selling houses. He asserted that the past practice of selling dwellings to persons at prices they could not afford had resulted in many properties returning to the hands of owners in poor condition and at times of poor markets. He stated that the number of families who could afford to pay between $8,000 and $18,000 is limited.

Mr. Klaber also decried the use of freak designs and architecture unsuited to this climate in the building of homes meant for sale. The demand for residences of this type he attributed as being in part due to the Hollywood moving picture influence. Residences of this type, he said, often were difficult to dispose of when put on the general market for resale. Simplicity of design and good workmanship are essential points in selling, he added.

Downtown Lease.

A well known downtown restaurant is to return to the loop after an absence of two years as a result of a lease closed yesterday by Alex Schwartz, head of the Alex Schwartz Original Restaurant corporation, with the Lutheran building, 109 North Dearborn street, for the entire second floor of the structure. Mr. Schwartz formerly had his restaurant in the building at 117 North Dearborn, which was torn down to be replaced by a Commonwealth Edison substation.

Following alterations, Mr. Schwartz plans to open his new establishment about Nov. 1. H. E. Green and A. Z. Ohlzen of Hooker & Slosson represented the lessee, and Walter F. Clow represented the Lutheran Building corporation.

Another eating house deal was closed yesterday when S. I. Frank leased the store fronting fifteen feet at 735 West 63d street, just east of Halsted, to Palmer Brothers for five years and six months. Palmer Brothers, who operate the Cottage in Norman's Land, between Wilmette and Kenilworth, plan to open a new type of lunch room.

NATIONAL CREDIT CORP. ANNOUNCES GENERAL BASIS FOR PLEDGES

Directors of the National Credit corporation, which is the corporate name of the $500,000,000 banking pool designed to "unfreeze" banking credit throughout the country, yesterday announced a general basis for subscriptions. It was suggested that banks pledge an amount equal to 2 per cent of their deposits, provided that this does not exceed 10 per cent of their combined capital and surplus.

This basis was made necessary by the fact that the national bank act provides that national banks may not lend more than 10 per cent of capital and surplus to one borrower. A general instruction to this effect was made public yesterday by J. W. Poole, controller of the currency. The directors of the pool then decided that the same basis should prevail for subscriptions by state banks.

Subscription blanks were received from New York headquarters of the pool yesterday and distributed among the Chicago banks. The headquarters of the Chicago-Illinois group, whose chairman is Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National bank, will be set up in a day or two in the Chicago Federal Reserve Bank building.

Halsey-Stuart Leads in Third Quarter Offerings

Halsey, Stuart & Co., led all bond houses in the country in new offerings of securities in the three months ended Sept. 30, heading syndicates with total offerings of $136,710,000. The firm was the only one that managed offerings totaling more than $100,000,000 in the period. The firm also participated in the offerings of $25,500,000 of other bonds in the quarter, bringing the total to $162,210,000.

U. S. Foregoes $100,000 to Keep Employes at Work

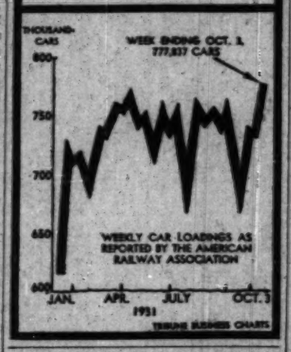
New York, Oct. 15.—The United States government has waived its right to preferential payment of a $100,000 income tax claim against Morris White, Inc., pocket book manufacturers, in order that the company may continue its business under a reorganization plan and keep 1,000 employés at work.

Union Oil Contracts to Furnish Nicaraguan Needs

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 15. — The Union Oil Company of California announced today it has closed with the Nicaraguan government a five year contract to supply the republic's entire requirement of refined and lubricating oils.

Storage facilities are being constructed at Corinto, a harbor on the west coast of the Central American republic. First delivery will be made about the first of the year. The company estimated the supply at 3,000,000 gallons.

CAR LOADINGS REACH PEAK FOR THE YEAR



TIGHTER MONEY MAKES GOVT. PAY MORE FOR SHORT TERM BILLS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15.—Administration officials today disclaimed any concern over the removal of gold from this country by foreign central banks, corporations, and individuals. There is a tendency abroad, it was explained, to build up their metallic reserves and follow a more conservative policy.

Money in circulation for the week ending Oct. 14 amounted to $5,473,000,000, an increase of $42,000,000. During the year money in circulation has increased $973,000,000, and since Sept. 17 the increase has been nearly $400,000,000. It was this increase, unattended by any appreciable demand for commercial money, which gave warning that the money was being hoarded.

The gold movement and hoarding of money, coupled with some seasonal developments, has tightened the money market perceptibly and forced the government to pay 2¾ per cent for the $50,000,000 in bills put on the market today, in contrast to less than a half of 1 per cent on 90 day paper three months ago.

GEORGE S. GIBBS HEADS POSTAL TELEGRAPH CO.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 15. — [Special.] — George S. Gibbs was elected president of the Postal Telegraph-Cable company at its annual meeting today. He succeeds Clarence M. Mackay, who becomes chairman. William J. Deegan was elected vice president and controller, and A. H. Griswold was re-elected executive vice president.

Maj. Gen. Gibbs joined the Postal organization on July 1, when he retired as chief signal officer of the United States army and head of the signal corps. He then become vice president of the International Telephone and Telegraph corporation in charge of its telegraph, cable, and radio companies.

Liabilities of 3 Montreal Brokerage Firms 25 Million

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 15.—(AP)—The Montreal Star asserts that the three brokerage firms which went into liquidation in Montreal last week have total liabilities of close to $25,000,000, according to indications in a check of statements which will be presented to the creditors at meetings to be held next week.

"McDougall & Cowans, largest of the three, will show liabilities of close to $20,000,000," the Star said. "Claims of secured and unsecured creditors of Greenshields & Co. will total $3,160,-589. Liabilities of Watson & Chambers will reach $1,640,916."

Crude Rubber Consumption Drops 14% in September

Consumption of crude rubber by manufacturers in the United States for the month of September decreased 14 per cent as compared with August, the Rubber Manufacturers' association reports. The usual seasonal decline is 11 per cent. September consumption is estimated by the association at 23,638 long tons, against 27,-586 tons for August and 25,515 tons for September, 1930. Imports of crude rubber for August totaled 40,505 long tons, an increase of 5.6 per cent over the August figure of 38,370 long tons and 2.6 per cent above September last year.

Bethlehem-Youngstown Steel Merger Abandoned

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 15.—As the climax of a long and bitter fight, Eugene G. Grace, president of the Bethlehem Steel corporation, announced today that the contract for the billion dollar consolidation of Bethlehem Steel and the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company had been canceled.

EUGENE G. GRACE.

In announcing the cancellation at his office here Mr. Grace said that due to changed conditions it was deemed impracticable to carry out the contract which was made in March, 1930. Bethlehem has exercised its option to cancel the contract, he said.

The contract had been extended from time to time by agreement of the parties, said Mr. Grace, in the hope that conditions would justify consummation of the merger.

Follows Litigation.

The cancellation of the contract follows considerable litigation in the Ohio courts. At the time the contract was made Bethlehem common was quoted around $100, while Sheet and Tube common was approximately $125. Bethlehem agreed to give one and one-third shares of its stock for each share of Sheet and Tube.

Stockholders of the latter concern who refused to accept were offered an alternative of $110 a share in cash. Many set upward of $160 a share as their price instead of $110.

Bethlehem common is now approximately $28, while Sheet and Tube is quoted around $23.

Fight Led by Cyrus S. Eaton.

In January of this year the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company and its directors filed an appeal in the Ohio courts from an injunction restraining the merger. The fight against the merger was led by Cyrus S. Eaton of Cleveland. A few days later Bethlehem joined the Youngstown company in the appeal from the merger. The Appellate court had been expected to rule on the injunction on Oct. 26.

In obtaining the injunction the dissenting interests alleged, among other grounds, that stockholders had received inadequate information. The injunction was granted in Youngstown on Dec. 29 last by Common Pleas Judge David G. Jenkins.

About 500 Youngstown stockholders, holding approximately 230,000 shares, were aligned against the merger.

NEW YORK CURB TONE AT CLOSE FAIRLY STEADY

New York, Oct. 15.—(AP)—The curb market closed with a fairly firm undertone today, although in the late afternoon it lost most of a fair rally. Trading was in moderate volume. The trend paralleled that of the big board.

Utility shares pushed up rather vigorously for a time, under the leadership of Electric Bond and Share, which responded to the optimistic statements at the annual meeting yesterday. The stock sold up more than 2 points, and closed up 1¼ net. American Gas and Electric, a Bond and Share affiliate, pushed up more than 3 points, then lost all but a point of its gain. Middle West, Niagara Hudson, United Light A and some others had fractional gains at the close.

In the oils, Gulf rose 1½ in a fair turnover, then fell back to close unchanged. Standard of Indiana was fairly active and firm, closing up ⅝ of a point. Cities Service, which as a matter of fact is now drawing the bulk of its revenues from its utility properties, rose ½ point, then lost its gain, closing unchanged.

Gets Contract to Build $450,000 Paper Machine

Wilmington, Del., Oct. 15.—The Pusey & Jones corporation of Wilmington announces that it has received a contract from the Champion Fiber company of Canton, N. C., to build one of the largest book paper machines ever constructed. It will cost between $450,000 and $500,000. About three hundred men will be given employment over the winter as a result of the contract.

$7,500,000 Marland Oil Notes to Be Redeemed

New York, Oct. 15.—Holders of series D 5 per cent gold notes, dated June 15, 1927, of Marland Oil company, now Continental Oil company, have been notified by D. J. Moran, president of the successor company, that all $7,500,000 principal amount of the notes due June 15, 1932, have been called for redemption Dec. 15, 1931.

TRAFFIC LEAGUE GROUP CONFERS WITH RAIL HEADS

New York, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Proposals for federal legislation in the interest of railroads were discussed today at a conference of committees of the National Industrial Tariff league and the Association of Railway Executives.

A statement issued after the meeting said "consideration was given to the serious effects, both as to traffic and revenues, which the various forms of transportation, now unregulated, are having on the railroads."

Further conferences are expected, the statement said, adding that progress was made toward reaching "a better understanding as to the general transportation situation." Presidents of several large carriers attended the conference.

BROKERS' LOANS DECLINE BELOW BILLION MARK

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15.—(AP)—Loans to brokers and dealers held by New York federal reserve member banks for the week ending Oct. 14 were announced by the federal reserve board today as $928,000,000, representing a decrease of $73,000,000, as compared with the preceding week. The loans for the week ending Oct. 15, 1930, were $2,752,000,000. At the peak brokers' loans were over six billions.

RAILROAD BONDS ACTIVE ON TALK OF RELIEF PLANS

New York, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Expectations that Washington would soon make public a plan to help railroad bonds, perhaps in the form of an arrangement for helping roads that were unable to refinance because of current conditions, brought increased activity in railroad bonds today.

Carrier liens firmed briskly in the afternoon, although some of the gains were lost during the late trading and a number of issues closed lower. Other groups were inclined to irregularity, this being especially true of the foreigns. United States governments sagged, perhaps in anticipation of a higher rediscount rate.

High grade rails generally were well supported. Atchison general 4s rallied more than 2 points, holding a net gain of 2¼. Baltimore and Ohio listings, the Rock Islands, most of the New York Centrals and several Pennsylvania issues firmed, while in the lower rated groups the Missouri Pacific 5s and Nickel Plates were stronger. Frisco 4½s, up a point, were active. Wabash 5s and 4½s, Pennsylvania 4¾s, New York Central 5s, and Union Pacific refunding 4s, Chesapeake and Ohio general 4½s closed heavy.

American Telephone 5s of 1965 had a busy market and closed with a small fractional loss. Laclede, West Union 5s, Columbia Gas May 5s, Kansas City Power 4½s, and a few other utilities showed heaviness.

Aviation Corp.

Will you please give me your opinion of Aviation corporation stock?—R. O.

Aviation corporation was incorporated in March, 1929, primarily as a holding and developing company in the aviation industry. It constitutes a practically complete unit engaging in the manufacture of airplanes, operation of mail and passenger routes, flying schools, airports, etc. Its subsidiary, Aviation Shares corporation, owns securities in other industries. The company operates twelve air passenger routes and eleven of the twenty-six contract air mail routes in the United States.

A thorough reorganization of the system was started in 1930. All manufacturing activities were transferred to American Airplane and Engine corporation, and American Airways, Inc., was organized as a holding company to control air transport operations. The program of consolidation is still in progress.

Net loss for 1930 was $4,703,601, against $1,443,822 for the period of March 1, to Dec. 31, 1929. For the first half of 1931 operating income was $39,621, against an operating deficit of $983,076 for the corresponding 1930 period. Net loss was $729,480, against $3,236,318 for the first six months of 1930.

On Dec. 31, 1930, current assets were $16,571,159 and current liabilities were $524,067, a ratio of 31.6 to 1. Cash and cash assets were $14,451,112, against $21,505,856 on Dec. 31, 1929. Working capital on Dec. 31, 1930, was $16,247,092 against $21,593,381 the year before. The company operates under heavy costs.

At the close of 1930 there were outstanding 3,175,469 shares of no par capital stock on which no dividends have yet been declared.

The stock is highly speculative at present.

General Steel Castings.

I purchased a General Steel Castings 5½ per cent first mortgage bond due 1949 some time back. I would like some information on the company.—R. J. S.

General Steel Castings corporation was incorporated in 1928 by several of the largest railroad equipment companies to manufacture steel castings for their use.

Interest in 1930, the first full year of operation, was earned 1.78 times, against 4.12 times for the five months to Dec. 31, 1929. For the first half of 1931 the company suffered a loss of $634,181 before fixed charges of $572,-121. Fixed charges were earned 3.27 times in the first half of 1930. Recent unfavorable earnings are a reflection of decreased buying by railroads.

At the close of 1930 current assets were $14,875,494 and current liabilities were $1,479,637. Cash alone was $5,-498,265. Funded debt was $19,999,300.

The first 5½s, series A, due July 1, 1949, are currently regarded as somewhat speculative.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 15.—For a while in the early trading today the stock list looked up rather smartly. There was a report that an important statement bearing on the railroad situation would be forthcoming from the White House before long and the speculative fraternity took it to mean that the administration is planning something of a beneficial nature in behalf of these downtrodden factors of our industrial life.

New York Central, Atchison, Union Pacific, Baltimore and Ohio, and other favorites of the department which might be expected to profit from any relief dished up down the capital way were bought in rather generous fashion, and their price ratings ran ahead for as much as five and six points. The remainder of the list fell in line, and by noon it looked as though the bull crowd were going to pull off something worth while.

Gives Good Accounting.

By and by, however, they began to find the burden too heavy, since the rank and file refused to take the rally seriously, and the tide gradually turned. Most of the important gains were either wiped out or largely reduced by the close of the session, but the selling never reached the stage of a reaction and the final tables still showed a healthy preponderance of plus signs. Taken all in all, the market gave a very good account of itself, even though it did disappoint a lot of fond hopes of a substantial upturn.

That it was once more an out and out professional affair was testified to by the figures on the day's transactions. Only 1,400,000 shares changed hands in the whole five hours, a quarter of a million less than figured in yesterday's dull session. It is becoming more and more apparent to unbiased observers that the public is not yet ready to get back into the market, regardless of the business revival projects being put forward here and there.

Has Little Effect.

About the only domestic news of the day with a market bearing was the definite announcement that the negotiations looking to the merger of Bethlehem Steel and the Youngstown Sheet and Tube had been abandoned, and since the street has been "guessing" this to be the case for some time the statement had little effect on trading in steel shares. Bethlehem showed a gain of a half point on its final sale. United States Steel common, fairly strong in the early trading, sold off with the rest of the list in the afternoon and finished with only a fractional gain for its overnight record.

Group movements were of little account, but there were more than the usual number of individual performers to attract attention. Auburn Auto again ran up sensationally, registering a gain of some ten points, only to turn downward on profit taking toward the close. Pullman rallied rather briskly in face of the dividend cut announced by the corporation, but was able to hold only a fraction of its gain. The upturn of this issue was due in a large measure to short covering. The stock obviously had been oversold in anticipation of the rate reduction, and with the "bad news" out there was a rush to cover.

Hear of New Sponsorship.

National Biscuit was conspicuously strong. The street heard that a large block of stock of this corporation which had been overhanging the market had been quietly disposed of. There were reports also of new sponsorship for the issue.

General Foods dipped a point in face of reports that the company's earnings for the nine months would be in excess of $2.70 a share, as compared with $2.93 for the corresponding three quarters of 1930.

American Telephone started out with a whoop and ran up some 4 points before capitulating to realizing.

PROFIT TAKING REDUCES EARLY BULGE IN WHEAT

Cash Market Is Stronger; Advance Bids 1/2c.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

The wheat market continues to give a good account of itself, and, while fractionally lower early yesterday, there was a good class of buying and prices advanced rather sharply, being around 1c above the finish of the previous day at the top. However, profit taking developed on the bulge and a reaction followed, with the finish ⅛c higher to ⅛c lower. December closed at 50@50¼c; March, 53c; May, 54⅛@54⅝c, and July, 54⅝@54¾c.

According to pit brokers, it was difficult to trace where all the profit taking sales in wheat went to, and the December delivery was said to have shown decided resistance to pressure below 50c, presumably a reflection of the strengthening in the cash position. The trade had reports of liberal export sales to the orient from the Pacific coast in the last two days, with three cargoes, or around 750,000 bu Manitobas, to China. As far as known, however, there has been no sales made by the Stabilization corporation, although a cargo is being loaded for shipment to China.

Cash Wheat Firmer.

An advance of ⅛c was made in the bids for cash wheat to arrive by Chicago handlers, and a cargo of 230,000 bu is being loaded for shipment to a Buffalo mill.

Houses with Winnipeg connections were credited with having sold wheat futures in Chicago, and the trade had an impression part of it was for foreign account. Uneasiness still prevails over the political situation in the far east, but the general run of cables from there during the day was of a more pacific character, and efforts to confirm reports that Japan had been buying wheat at the Pacific coast were without avail.

Russian clearances for the week aggregated 3,468,000 bu, or somewhat in excess of the previous week, although European reports indicated that importers were inclined to look for a decreased movement from that country. Winnipeg wheat closed ⅛@¼c lower, with December at 54⅛c in Canadian currency, the latter being 11 per cent discount as compared with American.

Favorable weather and crop reports were received from Argentina, and had some effect on Liverpool, which closed ⅛@⅝d lower, with December quoted at 55⅝c, with sterling at $3.88. With the exception of southwestern Kansas, the greater part of the winter wheat belt has received sufficient moisture for the time being, and seeding is progressing in all sections of Indiana and Kansas.

Short Covering in Corn.

Local traders showed less disposition to press the selling side of corn, and fair short covering developed during the day, with the early strength in wheat having some effect. However, the close was well toward the inside figures, with prices unchanged to ⅛c higher. December finished at 38c, May 33½c, and July 40¼c. The country sold 448,000 bu to arrive, while shipping sales were 35,000 bu. South Africa cleared 621,000 bu cash corn to Canada during the last week. Favorable weather prevailed for field work over the greater part of the belt.

Oats were dull and prices held within a range of ⅛@¼c, with the action of other grains having little effect. The finish was ⅛@⅜c lower, with December 21⅞@22c, May 24⅝c, and July 24½c. Shipping sales aggregated 44,000 bu.

Rye cleared 535,000 bu during the last week, but the domestic trade has about given up looking for any movement of consequence of new crop grain in this country. December was bought and May sold at 2⅞c difference. Closing trades were ¼@⅝c higher, with December 39c and May 41⅞c.

Canada Dry Covers Full Year Dividend in 9 Mos.

A letter from the company to stockholders of Canada Dry Ginger Ale company asserts figures for the year ended Sept. 30 show the current annual dividend of $3 fully earned.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw was quiet today and prices declined ½ of a cent. The only sale reported was 22,000 bags of Cuban for October shipment at 3.40c duty paid.

Domestic: Liquidation and exchanging from that position to later months were the feature in futures and following the easier tone to the spot market, prices were easier closing at last declines of 3@4 points. The day's business aggregated 18,800 tons. Prices follow:

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. close.

Refined was unchanged at 4.60c for fine granulated.

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Bleachable cottonseed oil closed easy today, 5 to 40 points net lower on sales of 20, contracts, equivalent to 3,600 bris. A decrease of approximately 7,000,000 pounds in contract lard stocks at Chicago for the first half of the month was largely ignored. Crude oil was quoted 3½c bid in the southeast and the valley and nominal in Texas. Bleachable spot closed: 4.50c; Oct., 4.95; Dec., 4.05; Jan., 4.59c; Mar., 4.73c; May, 4.77. There were no sales in the prime summer yellow contract. Spot closing prices as follows: Spot, 4.40c; Oct., 4.50c; Jan., 4.50c; May, 4.60c.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Cotton goods continued in fair demand in the gray goods sector today, with prices firmer. Finished goods were selling steadily. Viscose rayon yarns were quiet. Acetate cellulose and low other protected lines some business was passing. Wool goods were generally quiet. Cashmere was active, others quiet. Cotton futures were selling well. Burlaps were quiet and easy.

LIVERPOOL COTTON.

LIVERPOOL, Oct. 15.—(AP)—COTTON—Spot, good business done; prices 3 points higher. A sharp advance in lamb prices was the feature of the live stock trade yesterday. Uneven gains of 25@ 75c were recorded, the market improving as the day progressed, with the stock soaring to $7.90 on the fortnight closing trade. This is the highest price obtained for lambs since the last day of August and it compares with a peak of $6.50 at the corresponding time last week.

Prices were surprisingly sharp in view of the big increase in offerings of all of the leading points in the country yesterday. Seven markets received 87,000 head, the largest combined supply of the year and 30 per cent more than on the previous Thursday. Still, local packers here were hard pressed to fill orders, and were even more aggressive than order buyers toward the finish. Eastern demand is broader than usual. During the first four days of the week packers obtained 42 per cent of Chicago's receipts, against 27 per cent during the four days of last week.

Prices Off 25@35 Cents.

The last of Thursday hog receipts in February reversed the trend at the market and prices kept slipping lower all day, closing on a 25@35c basis with 8,000 still in the pens. The weakness ranged from steady to 35c lower, underweights and pigs selling to the best advantage.

The extreme top and general average declined down 10c at $5.60 and $5.25, respectively. Large local packers bought freely at the full decline in the session and later, Armour, Swift and Wilson obtaining 7,500 of the best quality hogs of the season at closing 150@220 lbs at $5.10@5.35. Quality of hogs on recent sessions has been the best of the season and 170@225 lb averages make up the bulk of offerings, with more of the spring pigs averaging up to 240 lbs lately. Few immature light and pigs are coming. Receipts at all points yesterday exceeded exceptions, but packers late were encouraged to hold stock over when a shorter run was reported in sight for today. Five markets expect 47,000, against 53,500 last Friday.

Hog Futures Unchanged.

Little change was noted in the hog futures market yesterday. Bids and offers were in line with the previous ending, with winter contracts bid nearly $4.50. December offers at $5.00 were the lowest posted during the day. Close weights for today were bid $5.25 and mediums $5.50.

Action was good in the cattle market yesterday and some classes closed slightly higher, scattered sellers of the $9.00@10.00 kinds showing as much as 10@25c advance, while the rank and file of plainer kinds went over the scales at steady prices. Highly finished weighty beeves were not offered. Choice 1,039 lb yearlings from Tazewell county, Ill., sold to Swift at $10.35, the day's peak, and the bulk of sales of beef steers were made at $6.00@10.00, compared to a range of $6.00@9.75 for most cattle last Thursday.

Broader eastern demand and a little better support from the hide market have been the supporting factors in the cattle trade the last two days. Cows and heifers were mostly steady. Calves ruled steady to 50c higher. Stockers and feeders were slow, but not fully steady.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 2,000 cattle, 23,000 hogs, and 20,000 sheep, against 3,491 cattle, 31,459 hogs, and 15,531 sheep the previous Friday, and 1,875 cattle, 18,000 hogs, and 15,008 sheep a year ago.

COFFEE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—(AP)—The market for coffee futures was very quiet today with prices barely under some European and Brazilian selling. No. 7 contracts closed 5 to 5 points lower. Sales, 5,000 bags. Santos contracts closed 12 to 15 lower; sales, 8,000 bags. Opening quotations: Santos contracts: Dec., 7.14c; Mar., 7.35c; May, 7.55c; July, 7.58c; Sept., 7.66c. No. 7 contracts: Dec., 6.59c; Mar., 6.79c; May, 6.99c; July, 7.03c; Sept., 7.10c.

HEDGE SALES FEATURE LATE COTTON TRADE

An increase in hedge selling of cotton had a depressing influence on prices late yesterday, but losses were not heavy. In the early trading cooperative trade was credited with selling. Buying support was fair and prices receded and finished at the lowest of the day. The range was only 13 points hard and losses on futures in Chicago 5@9 points, with other markets 4@9 points. Buying came from shorts and trade interests. Prices in dry goods circles were said to be well maintained on certain lines which are having a somewhat better trade. Spot cotton declined 5 points to 9.40c, New Orleans, 5.90c, Galveston, 5.85c, and Houston 5.90c. Liverpool closed 1@4 points lower. Prices follow:

LARD STOCKS DECREASE

Lard stocks in Chicago are 23,186,699 lbs, a decrease of 6,437,943 lbs in the past two weeks. Present stocks are 3,954,480 lbs over last year. The make of new lard was rather surprising, being 2,577,761 lbs, against 1,662,574 lbs last year. The make of new bellies was 2,471,000 lbs, against 1,780,000 lbs last year. Stocks of regular bellies decreased over 5,000,000 lbs in the last two weeks.

Trading in lard was fair yesterday. There is said to be a good sized short interest in October, and with stocks decreasing sellers are becoming uneasy. Cash houses bought more freely and are said to be friendly to the buying side of the market. Cash trade in lard and meats was fair. At the close lard futures were up 2½@5c, after a range of 7¼c for the day. Liverpool lard was 3@6d lower; exports of lard were only 2,800,000 lbs. Hogs were lower, with receipts at western markets materially larger than a week and one and two years ago. Prices follow:

HIDE FUTURES

Hide futures on the New York Hide exchange closed today unchanged to 25 points lower. Total sales, 1,840,000 lbs.

According to preliminary estimates, shoe production during the month of September was 31,000,000 pairs, or 5.6 per cent above the output during the corresponding month last year, when the production totaled 29,334,000 pairs. September was the seventh consecutive month to register a material increase over the production during the corresponding month last year. Total shoe production for the first nine months of 1931, including the preliminary estimate for last month, was 250,067,000 pairs, against 240,359,000 pairs the same time last year. Prices follow:

London Stock Exchange Quiet; Prices Are Steady

LONDON, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Numerous small buying orders maintained a cheerful undertone on the stock exchange today, although business was not expected to expand until after the general election. Gilt-edge securities were a fraction better and Trans-Atlantic issues were quiet. Hydro Electric was quoted at 10¼, International Nickel, 11¾; Brazilian Traction, 11⅝, and Radio, $16. Foreign exchanges were dull, the pound on New York was $3.87⅛ and on Paris, 98⅝ francs.

Why pay more than Household's low rate?

The Nationally known Household Loan Plan offers cash loans of $50 to $300 to husbands and wives at reasonable rates.

Household's rate on all loans above $100 is almost one-third lower than the maximum permitted by the small-loan law. We voluntarily established this low rate in 1928, and our customers have benefited ever since. This rate remains the same until the loan is paid off. It does not increase as the unpaid balance decreases.

For example:

The average monthly cost of a $200 loan, repaid in 20 equal monthly payments; is $2.68. This is the lowest cost in Chicago.

Commonwealth Customers Pay LESS for LOANS

$2.93 is the average Monthly Cost of a $225 loan under COMMONWEALTH'S Reduced Rate. This allows 25 months for repayment. There is no lower cost than this in Chicago.

COMMONWEALTH'S rate on amounts above $100 is substantially lower than the lawful rate usually charged.

THE personal property which nearly every family owns and the signature of husband and wife enable one to secure any amount up to $300 quickly and easily.

THERE ARE NO fees or deductions. You may take 25 months or pay all or part sooner. Interest at the Reduced Rate is charged only while you keep the money.

Also Salary and Auto Loans.
